EATON ASKS SHELBY ACCOUNTS AT ONCE

Today

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

AT HALF-PAST three next Tuesday Gov. Roosevelt, in the White House, will talk to President Hoover about Europe's debts. It is an interesting subject, particularly to Americans that will have to make up the debts, in taxes, if Europe decides not to pay.

JUSTICE MINTURN, of New Jersey, suggests "nations which have island possessions at our doors (a standing menace to our peace and security) should transfer such possessions to us as a quid pro quo" for cutting down the war debt on a fair basis of appraisal.

Justice Minturn adds:

"This proposal, which will test their sincerity, involves no cash payment."

AT THE ARMY and Navy Club two nights ago in New York, Gen. Mosely, second in command of the United States Regular Army, said to the writer:

"In Paris I talked for some time with President Woodrow Wilson, by order of Gen. Pershing. President Wilson, who seemed tired, told me:

"'The British will discuss everything until I bring up freedom of the seas. This they will not even discuss at all. But I have one trump card left. THE UNITED STATES CAN BUILD THEM OFF THE SEAS.'"

WITH OUR growing fleet, we were in a fair way to do this. But instead of "building them off the seas" we obligingly destroyed magnificent battleships, including some only partly finished, while England destroyed beautiful blueprints. Gen. Mosely added, with permission to quote him:

"We lost our power to collect foreign debts when we sank that fleet in 1922. If that fleet were afloat today the money would come."

MR. RIPLEY, of "Believe It or Not" fame, prints a picture of a little pile, a foot and a half long, one foot high and one foot wide, composed of small slips of yellow paper. That pile is made up of ten thousand dollar gold certificates and the whole pile is "worth" $400,000,000.

It is, however, worth only as much as the national defense is worth, and that means the strength of the United States in the air and beneath the surface of the water, in planes and submarines.

WE ALL have our troubles, the farmer especially. When the British pound sterling dropped, the price of wheat dropped on the Chicago Board of Trade. World prices of wheat are largely made in sterling. When the pound is worth less, the bushel of wheat is worth less.

Is it, perhaps, possible to have a dollar "TOO SOUND?"

CRIME, WOMAN'S weakness, man's duplicity, and other things, unpleasant, are old. In Otterdail County, in Minnesota, scientists have found what remains of a 17-year-old girl's murdered body. She was "partly Mongolian, partly ape." Somebody, presumably also part Mongol and part ape, killed her 20,000 years ago and threw her into a glacial lake.

There are worse things than that in our modern crime. How far are we really above the Mongol-ape?

THE GIRL living 20,000 years ago seems a little antique, but is modern, compared with a "cat-sized" creature found half a mile under the earth in Caddo parish, Louisiana, by the drill of an oil well. The Smithsonian Institution delights in this little creature, early ancestor of the mammal tribe, now ruling the earth.

You know that you, President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt are all mammals. This cat-sized creature lived not 20,000 years ago, but FIFTY MILLION YEARS AGO.

Five hundred thousand centuries have passed since it began its long sleep in the ground. Unquestionably an ancestor of many respectable modern mammals, it survived because it could climb trees, live in or out of the mud, and was able to enjoy life when change in climate dried the swamps.

CLINTON W. GILBERT, who sometimes knows what is going on in Washington, predicts that Roosevelt as President will merge the Army and Navy in one "department of national defense" and that Bernard M. Baruch, financier of New York, will head the consolidated departments.

IT IS TO be hoped that Gov. Roosevelt, who flies, will also have a department of defense in the air, keep that in his own hands and see that this country is really protected.

Gen. William Mitchell, who ran our air force during the war, writes that the most powerful engine in a United States government plane has 700 horse power, whereas every European country of consequence has airplane engines of 2,000 horse power.

HENRI MOUQUIN, who years ago ran a good French restaurant running through from Ann to Fulton streets in New York, has issued his new French wine list, first since 1918. More interesting than Mr. Mouquin's wine list is the fact that he himself is 97 years old. He and his wife used to wait on Charles A. Dana, before Dana's whiskers turned white.

And Mouquin, which may surprise you, attributes his health and energy to the fact

Forced by Gun To Drive Bandit

Amy Johnson Breaks Husband's Air Mark

MISS LILLIAN HENRY . . . SHE WAS KIDNAPED AT GUN'S POINT

Miss Henry, kidnaped by a lone bandit who had just killed another girl's escort in a hold-up, forced for hours to drive her captor around Chicago streets after he had gagged, attacked her, ditched her escort. She's a niece of Chicago's former Commissioner Alcock. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

MANIAC KIDNAP KILLER SOUGHT

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—(Universal.)—James Varecha, alias Ware, 17-year-old mental defective, was the object of a city-wide search today as the youth is suspected of killing one man in the presence of his sweetheart and half an hour later kidnaping a niece of Deputy Police Commissioner John Alcock from her escort.

The latter girl, Miss Lillian Henry, was terrorized, mistreated and held captive four hours before the young desperado released her and escaped.

Previously, the youth had come upon Miss Emma Dahnke and Frank D. Jordan in a parked car. When Jordan resisted a holdup, the young bandit shot him through the heart and ran.

Varecha answers descriptions given of the bandit-killer. He first was seized in 1927 as an incorrigible truant. Last year he was sent to the Dixon State Hospital as a defective, but escaped last August.

JAMES GUISINGER, 22

VOTE CHEATING CHARGED HERE

AMY BREAKS HUSBAND'S RECORD

London to Cape Town Hop Lowered by 11 Hours

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Amy Johnson, flying alone from England, landed here at 1:30 (8:30 a. m. Pittsburgh time) today, clipping nearly 11 hours off the record held by her husband, J. A. Mollison.

Last March Capt. Mollison made the trip in four days 17 hours 19 minutes. His wife's time was four days six hours 55 minutes, or 10 hours 24 minutes faster than his.

When Mollison made the flight the strain was so great that he cracked up at the finish. Amy was heavy-eyed, but otherwise surprisingly fresh when she stepped out of the plane today.

GETS WILD WELCOME

She brought her small monoplane, Desert Cloud, down to a skillful landing to the accompaniment of shrieking motor horns and the cheers of 2,000 persons waiting to greet her.

They whisked her off to an office on the other side of the field and as she left the car the young woman collapsed for just a moment, burying her head in her arms. She recovered quickly and went inside, remaining in the office for an hour before starting to the home of a friend where she will stay while she is here. She said:

"All I want now is sleep. I had only five hours during the whole trip."

MOLLISON PHONES

There was a telephone call from her husband in London. She talked to him, but declined to answer several other calls because she was too tired.

She dabbed at her nose with a powder puff, which was about all the baggage she had brought with her. She said:

"Perhaps I don't look as tired as I really am, because I took time out to powder my nose while I was skimming over that table mountain just over there. I wanted to be presentable at least."

When Mollison came down here nearly eight months ago Miss Johnson was one of those who welcomed him. She told him then:

"I think you're wonderful."

Four months later they were married. Two months after that Mollison made the first solo flight from East to West across the North Atlantic.

HUSBAND ELATED

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Capt. J. A. Mollison, who never thrilled much to his own achievements in the air, was excited today when he learned that his wife, Amy Johnson, had beaten his own record for the flight to Cape Town. He said:

"I'm so proud that she has done it. But I knew she would. For a man it would be fine, but for a woman it is splendid."

EATON ASKS SHELBY'S ACCOUNTS

BULLETIN.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—An extensive inquiry by the Public Service Commission, to establish the commission's control of holding companies, was suggested to the Senate investigating committee today.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The private and public business activities of Public Service Commissioners today bounded back into the limelight of the Senate's committee inquiry into the commission and public utilities.

The subject, which Gov. Pinchot has emphasized in his attacks on the commission during the past year, found the committee and its counsel not in complete agreement.

Oliver K. Eaton, Pittsburgh, urged the committee demand at once the bank accounts of Commissioner S. Ray Shelby, who yesterday questioned the committee's authority to delve into his personal affairs.

SALUS OPPOSITION

Senator Samuel Salus, Philadelphia, acting chairman in the absence of Senator William S. Rial, Westmoreland, advised Eaton to communicate his suggestion to Rial.

Salus contended the Shelby records were requested along with the banking and brokerage accounts of all present and former Commissioners and that, under the order issued Wednesday, and returnable November 30. It was Salus' belief that to ask an immediate return of Shelby's accounts would nullify the blanket subpena of Wednesday.

Eaton, in advising immediate

NO SALES, FREE RUM HOLDS 2

The depression has hit the speakeasy.

So two persons charged with keeping disorderly houses testified today. A woman said she used moonshine and alcohol, allegedly found in her home, to rub her children.

Maynard Carroll, 28, of 3 Wandless street, and Robert Locket, 36, of 2228 Forbes street, testified they were giving parties in their homes when raiders found liquor. Carroll said:

"I did sell it once, judge, but the depression has hit the business so hard that I lost all my customers and I gave the party to get rid of the stuff."

Locket had a similar story. Both were held and their visitors fined.

Anna Sable, 44, of 2411 Wylie avenue, said she rubbed her four children with alcohol and moonshine. Magistrate James O'Connor, ordering her held, declared:

"I have 10 children of my own and I never have rubbed any of them with alcohol or moonshine."

Shanghai's Strikers Hurl Bomb at Troops

SHANGHAI, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Fifteen persons were wounded, three probably fatally, when demonstrating Nantao street car workers today hurled a bomb in the midst of a party of troops.

The soldiers were proceeding to the rescue of the company's manager, who was besieged in a car.

School Head Sees Snobbery as Peril

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Dr. Samuel S. Drury, rector of St. Paul's School, said today in his annual report that "boarding schools, if they wreck, will break not on the rock of scholarship but on the shoals of snobbery."

Levine's Child Tells Court of 'Other Women'

ELOYSE LEVINE, 14

Assists Mother in Suit for $52,000 Yearly Income

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—A 14-year-old girl is the link in the chain of evidence which Mrs. Charles A. Levine hopes will win her a legal separation and $52,000 a year alimony from her husband, the trans-Atlantic flier.

The child, Levine's own daughter, has told a Supreme Court justice of at least two other women in her father's life, one the internationally famous Mabel Boll, "Queen of Diamonds," and the other Mrs. Doris Della Berne, widow of the plastic surgeon.

In the placid tones of childhood, Eloyse Levine, named for her mother, strengthened her mother's case against the flier who now claims that not only his fame but his fortune has dwindled to almost nothing.

She told how she went to the pier when her father was sailing for Europe with Miss Boll, reciting:

"I begged and begged daddy to come home with mother and me, but he looked the other way and the boat sailed."

Another time, after she had been taken to Peekskill to visit her father in a hospital, driving in the car of Mrs. Berne, Eloyse asked her father for money. She declared he gave her $20 although he had a roll of $1,000 bills. With satisfaction, the child said:

Monongahela Fire Loss is $15,000

MONONGAHELA, Pa., Nov. 18.—Fire of undetermined origin early today swept through the two-story garage of the Borello Motor Company, doing an estimated damage of $15,000. One automobile was destroyed.

U. S. PROBERS SIFT PHILA. ELECTION

Roosevelt Man Urges Atterbury Be Called; Ballots Marred

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Testimony that Democratic ballots were voided by "extra markings" and otherwise defaced and thrown out, was given today before the House Committee on Campaign Expenditures which is investigating the recent election in Philadelphia.

Testimony was presented that liquor was passed around at some polling places, and in one instance the election judge was "unconscious" when it came time to count the ballots after the polls closed.

ATTERBURY WANTED

Chairman Hartsill Ragon (Dem.), of Arkansas, said he wanted to conclude in this city today, but S. Davis Wilson, chairman of the Independent Roosevelt State Committee, said he wanted to subpena W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad and "at least 10 utility heads," who, he said, contributed heavily to the Republican campaign fund.

Ragon said he did not want to call any more witnesses to Washington than was necessary when the hearings are resumed after Thanksgiving Day.

Wilson said most of the persons he had in mind "could easily afford" to make the trip.

CLASH AT QUIZ

Wilson, who asked the committee to investigate the election, is examining witnesses. Nelson objected to Wilson's methods of conducting the examination. He said:

"I don't know whether you are a lawyer or not, but if you are a skilled lawyer you know you

PLEDGES EARLY VOTE ON BEER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—A speedy vote in the House on beer once a bill is reported by a committee, was assured today when Representative Pou (Dem.), of North Carolina, chairman of the Rules Committee, declared for action. Pou said:

"My hope is that we will get this subject behind us in the short session, but I realize the difficulty of putting through any important measure in the Senate in so short a time. There will be no difficulty about the House."

He will support a beer bill in conformity with the Democratic national platform.

Poison Pastor-Killer Begins Life Sentence

M'ALESTER, Okla., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Convicted of the poison murder of his first wife, the Rev. S. A. Berrie, hymn-writing cleric, began a life sentence in state's penitentiary today. Berrie married 19-year-old Ida Bess Bright less than two months after the death of the first Mrs. Berrie. He was convicted a month ago.

COUNTY QUIZ TOLD OF FRAUDS

Congress, Legislature Races Involved, Witnesses Say

Evidence of fraud affecting candidates for both Congress and the State Legislature were revealed by the recount of ballots in the Second Ward, it was charged at an "open house" meeting of the County Commissioners today.

John M. Henry, counsel for Anne E. Felix, defeated Democratic candidate for Congress in the Thirty-second District, said observers at the recount board had reported additional marks had been placed on straight Democratic ballots for Mrs. Felix's opponent and for two legislative candidates. He said that if boxes were opened in other wards, a scheme would be disclosed which should be brought to the attention of Congress.

"PHANTOM" MARKINGS

Henry said these markings were dissimilar to the usual ballot marking. He also said "phantom" markings were found, showing ballots had been marked with another ballot underneath.

The hearing, an innovation in Allegheny County politics, was held, Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said, as the result of widespread allegations of fraud and corruption. Seventy-five persons were crowded into the conference room when the hearing began.

A demand by Justice of the Peace Richard Lawry, of Homestead, that the borough be rid of wholesale corruption, was followed by orders from the County Commissioners that the county solicitor petition court for the removal of Joe Franks, register assessor. Franks, a spectator at the hearing, refused to testify after Lawry charged the voting of six unregistered persons in the Second District of the Third Ward; in the First District, First ward, where watchers said the number of ballots cast increased 100 votes in 10 minutes.

WOMAN THREATENED

A woman worker in the Second District, Third Ward, he said, was threatened with a beating if she remained around the polls. The investigation bureau was ordered to check and make informations. Lawry said of 2,500 registered in the Second Ward, not more than 1,000 were qualified to vote.

When Franks refused to testify, Commissioner C. M. Barr called

Recount Ordered On Averbach Plea

A recount of ballots in 14 districts in the Twelfth Legislative District was asked today by B. R. Averbach, appearing for the Republican organization before Return Judge James H. Gray. The court signed the order, directing the recount in the Second and Third wards, Scott Township; First, Third, Fourth and Eighth wards, Stowe Township; Third District, North Fayette Township; First District, Kennedy Township; First District, Heidelberg; First District, First Ward, and First District, Second Ward, Carnegie; First District, Second Ward, Coraopolis; Ninth District, Twenty-ninth Ward, and Thirteenth District, Sixteenth Ward, Pittsburgh.

Symphony Society Sells Sunday Concert Tickets

For the first time, the Pittsburgh Symphony Society today sold tickets for its concert Sunday night in Syria Mosque to the public at the society's headquarters, 626 Farmers Bank Building.

Representatives of the society said they had been advised by counsel such a sale was not in violation of the Blue Laws. They pointed to a decision by Judges R. A. Kennedy and D. M. Miller in County Court in 1927 as the result of an action brought by the Sabbath Association that Sunday concerts were not prohibited by the Blue Laws. Tickets will not be sold on Sunday.

Heretofore sale of tickets has been restricted to members or through them to friends.

The Rev. Dr. Robert M. Blackwood, president of the Sabbath Association of Western Pennsylvania, said he would investigate.

Repeal of the blue laws will be a policy of the Democratic members of the Pennsylvania Legislature, according to Joseph E. Guffey, former Democratic National Committeeman. He conferred yesterday in Philadelphia with Warren Van Dyke, Democratic state chairman, on proposed changes in state laws.

15 Monkeys Run Wild, Community in Uproar

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Life in suburban Upper Darby was more fun than a barrel of monkeys today—it was as much fun as a cratefull of escaped monkeys.

Freed when the door of a crate opened while it was being carried into an indoor circus, 15 monkeys fled up and down Upper Darby streets, climbing poles, trees and buildings.

Policemen, firemen and citizens, armed with mops, brooms and sticks, gave chase, but no suburban Frank Buck had brought any of them back alive.

HOOVER AND CABINET CONFER ON WAR DEBT SITUATION

POSTPONEMENT OPPOSITION DISCUSSED

President, Advisers In Lengthy Meeting

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—President Hoover and his entire cabinet devoted a lengthy session today to impending developments in the international debt situation.

It was the first time since last August that all of the presidential advisers were present, and they remained closeted in the cabinet room long after the time such meetings usually end.

Vice President Curtis, who makes a general practice of attending cabinet meetings, was not present because of a sore throat. He had, however, conferred with Mr. Hoover both yesterday and Wednesday.

Next Tuesday's conference with President-elect Roosevelt, the following day's assemblage at the White House of congressional leaders of both parties, and the problem of possible specific recommendations in his annual message to Congress, were the three interlocking topics brought up by the President.

It was understood the round-table discussion developed a unanimous agreement that Congress is unalterably opposed to extending the moratorium, or revising or reducing World War debts in any way.

Professor Will Advise Roosevelt on Debts

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 18.—(INS.)—When Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, President-elect, goes to the White House next Tuesday to confer with President Hoover on international debts, he will be accompanied by a professor and not a politician.

In announcing he had invited Prof. Raymond Moley, of Columbia University, to act as his advisor in the epochal conference on which the eyes of the world will be focused, Gov. Roosevelt said:

"Just breaking another precedent."

Prof. Moley is head of the public law department of Columbia, and is 46 years old. He once was a school teacher in Ohio, and he acted as advisor to former Gov. Al Smith on several occasions in the 1928 presidential campaign.

He was Gov. Roosevelt's "right hand man" during the recent campaign, accompanying him on his nation-wide tour and aiding him in the preparation of all his speeches.

It was Prof. Moley who sat by Gov. Roosevelt's bed earlier this week when the latter penned his telegram to the President in accepting the invitation to confer at the White House.

Prof. Moley has been mentioned as a possible appointment to the Roosevelt cabinet as Attorney General, but his friends have indicated he would prefer to remain in an advisory capacity to the next President.

Smoot Will Confer With Hoover on Debt

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—United States Senator Reed Smoot said today he would leave for Washington, D. C., Sunday to attend a conference with President Hoover on the war debt question at the White House at 10 o'clock next Wednesday morning.

Senator Smoot, a member of the first debt funding commission, which dealt with inter-allied debts, refused to comment on foreign debts.

Dunn Spent $15 To Defeat Campbell

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Matthew A. Dunn, of Pittsburgh, elected to the House of Representatives from the Thirty-first Pennsylvania District, in a report to the Clerk of the House listed his campaign expenditures on the Democratic, Independent and Jobless tickets at $15. Dunn defeated Representative Guy Campbell.

Wilson shouted back:

"You are a defeated 'lame duck' congressman, and you have not been fair during this investigation."

Nelson retorted:

"We will leave that to the public."

The clash between Nelson and Wilson came while Joseph Custodio, an overseer in a South Philadelphia division was testifying. He testified that 100 out of 203 persons who were assisted in voting had failed to sign the election book that they needed assistance.

JOBHOLDERS LINKED

Complaint that city employes were active on election day in the Fifth Ward was made by Joseph Kalensky. It is a violation of law in Philadelphia for any city employe to be active in politics.

Kalensky said he caused the arrest of the judge of election in the First division of the ward on a charge of conducting an illegal election, but that he was freed through bail obtained by State Representative Arnold M. Blumberg.

A woman Democratic watcher testified that after she had refused $50 offered by a Republican worker to leave the polls, a false alarm of fire was sent in, and she was told by the Republicans to rush to her sister's home because it was on fire.

EMPLOYE FIRED

It was further testified that a civil service employe was dismissed from his city position because he failed to contribute 5 per cent of his annual salary to the campaign fund of the Republican organization.

More testimony was heard by the committee today of alleged vote buying, intimidation of Roosevelt voters and illegal assistance to voters.

When a Democratic witness said he had protested to an election judge against throwing out Democratic ballots, the officials said he was running the election in the division.

BUS FIRMS PAY TUBE CITY TAX

Buses were running in and out of McKeesport today, as five bus companies sent checks for the bus tax, or arranged for payment with Mayor George S. Lysle.

The Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company sent a $70 check, paying the tax for two buses "under protest." Other companies sent $35 per bus. Mayor Lysle gave orders permitting the buses to operate pending a special meeting of Council, when the question of back taxes will be decided. The ordinance went into effect in 1927, but hitherto was not strictly enforced. A number of the companies still owe back taxes.

GIVES HEARING TO ELLENBOGEN

Congressman-elect Henry Ellenbogen, Democrat - Independent, will oppose his defeated Republican opponent, Congressman Harry A. Estep's efforts to obtain a certified copy of Ellenbogen's naturalization record.

Today when Attorney J. T. Philpott, acting in behalf of Estep, petitioned Federal Judge Nelson McVicar for an order on Court Clerk J. Wood Clark for the copy of the naturalization records, Ellenbogen appeared and said he had no notice of the action. Judge McVicar set 10 a. m. tomorrow for a hearing.

Estep yesterday obtained an order on W. M. Ragsdale, of the Immigration Bureau, for the records, but the order was later rescinded.

After the court had fixed the hearing time, Ellenbogen said:

"The act of Congress of May 21, 1931, prescribes the conditions upon which a certified copy of naturalization records may be issued. The petition of my opponent does not conform to that act."

Roosevelt Hears Plea Of 'Hunger Marchers'

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Closely guarded by secret service men and city police, President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt sat in his prevate study at the executive mansion today and listened for almost an hour to the demands of three representatives of the unemployed who are planning a "hunger march" to Washington.

Firmly, but politely, Gov. Roosevelt rejected their demands, particularly the request that he "tell President Hoover to let them come to Washington without any interference."

Gov. Roosevelt declared:

"I am just a private citizen and cannot tell the President to do anything."

A cordon of city police surrounded the executive mansion as the unemployed delegation was escorted into the Governor's study. Two Secret Service men and a state trooper stood within a few feet of Mr. Roosevelt.

The Governor was seated behind his desk and the three representatives of the unemployed sat in a semi-circle in front of him.

In refusing to call a special session of th Legislature, Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that $15,000,000 of the $30,000,000 unemployment relief bond issue, approved at the last election, is now available. He said:

"Obviously, that will be sufficient to last until the 1933 Legislature meets early in January."

CHARGE FRAUDS AT VOTE PROBE BY COUNTY

"You couldn't get nine in the house."

An investigator was ordered to a hearing of a suit brought by Rachel Felh, of 322 Taylor street, who said she had brought a charge against Manuel Mori, a city patrolman, because he tried to put her out of the voting place in the First District, Eighth Ward, where she was a watcher.

R. W. Hughes, of the Election Bureau, said E. J. Wuerthele, Prohibition candidate in the Forty-fifth Senatorial District, who failed to appear at the hearing, had declared there was something wrong in the Fifteenth Ward, because Roosevelt, James J. Coyne and M. J. Muldowney had carried it.

RANKIN HOLDS INTEREST

Interest in the recount board's activities today centered in the First District, Rankin Borough, considered by Democrats to have considerable bearing on the final outcome of the race in the Tenth Legislative District.

B. B. McGinnis, for the Democratic party, claimed that 15 names were added to the registration list by the election board. He said that of the first 50 ballots handled by the recount board, half of them were laid aside because of "phantom" markings.

Senator Coyne, received a majority of 5,367 over his Democratic opponent, George H. Rieke, in the Forty-third Senatorial District. The vote was Coyne, 20,108; Rieke, 14,741, complete returning board figures show.

Councilman M. J. Muldowney was the winner of the Thirty-second Congressional fight by 5,947 over his Democratic opponent, Anne E. Felix. The vote was Muldowney, 24,928; Felix, 18,981.

Official figures read to the returning board showed little change from the unofficial figures in the Eighth Legislative District. Figures from the Twenty-first Ward show Edward M. Hough, Republican, lost 27 votes, and his running mate, W. F. Stadtlander, lost 29. Walter R. Seymour, Democrat, gained 250.

Ten of the 39 districts gave Hough 2,042; Stadtlander, 1,981; O'Keefe, 2,389; Seymour, 2,375.

ERK MAKES GAINS

Congressman Edmund F. Erk gained 95 votes over Twing Brooks in 26 districts in the Thirtieth Congressional District. In these districts, the Twenty-first, Twenty-second and Twenty-third wards, Erk received 4,543 and Brooks, 5,192.

The return board discovered an error in the returns of the Ninth District, Twenty-seventh Ward, that cost Brooks 91 votes. A return of 312 for Brooks, it was found, should be 221.

Additional returning board figures for 73 of 82 districts in the Sixth Legislative District gave Gallagher (Rep. and Dem.), 26,239; Kane (Dem.), 16,244; Shenkel (Dem.), 14,111; Renne (Rep.), 12,019, and Cawley (Rep.), 12,735.

The returning board today ordered the ballot box of the Seventh District, Twenty-sixth Ward, brought in when it was disclosed that 1,166 ballots were cast and the voters' list showed only 900 registered.

Congressman Erk gained 15 votes in the Tenth District, Twenty-fifth Ward, and lost 19 in the Fifth District, Twenty-sixth Ward, when the returning board entered figures from those districts. In the latter district his opponent lost 20 votes.

Capone Turning 'Sissy' In Pen, Says Prosecutor

NORRIS AGAINST DEBT SLASH

M'COOK, Neb., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Senator George W. Norris today said he was opposed to any form of cancellation of the war debts and that the time had come for some alterations in prohibition. In an interview as he started to Washington for the "lame duck" session of Congress, he said:

"The settlement already made giving the foreign powers one-half reduction went entirely too far in my estimation. I do not favor a moratorium. There isn't anything for us to do if they want to repudiate their war debts."

Senator Norris said he had not decided what change should be made in prohibition, but that he did not want the return of saloons in some states which would result from direct repeal.

Alimony Exceeds Salary, Man Jailed

NEW LEXINGTON, O., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Speaking of moratoriums, consider the need of Harry Goodman, in jail today for failing to pay $2 a day alimony to his wife. Said Goodman:

"What I need is a lawyer to show how to pay $60 a month alimony on a salary of $8 a week."

Beaten Out for Ball Team, But Proves Good Worker

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Al Capone, arch gangster, has become a sissy, one of the men who helped send him to Atlanta Penitentiary, reported today.

United States Attorney Dwight Green returned today from Atlanta, where he took part in opposing Capone's bid for freedom on a writ of habeas corpus. He said Capone appeared to be in fine physical condition, but that he couldn't yet make the prison baseball team. Green said:

"Capone is a model prisoner. In fact he behaves so well the other boys are beginning to think he's a sissy. He obeys every order the second it is given.

FACE BRONZED

"His face is bronzed and his figure has become trim and lost its paunchiness. He has become a valuable worker in the prison shoe factory."

If this couduct so far were continued, Green indicated, Capone undoubtedly would earn every month the 10 days allowed off his sentence for good behavior.

As for fan mail, Capone got more of it than anyone else in the penitentiary. Most of the letters requested loans of from $5 to $1,000.

He has a cell mate, the prosecutor said, and there was a radio in the cell.

EARNINGS SMALL

His labors in the shoe factory earned Capone a small weekly stipend, Green said, and it would amount to a considerable sum if Capone served out his 10-year sentence and didn't spend too much money at the prison commissary.

Green reported that more agile and experienced players have beaten Capone out for first base on the prison ball club. Capone wore an almost constant smile in prison and had become popular through his good humor.

A federal judge is considering Capone's habeas corpus petition for release on the grounds that the statute of limitations made illegal his conviction for income tax violations.

Assassin Wounds Jail Head in India

action, reported the Uniontown bank in which Shelby had his accounts is ready to bring the Shelby records to Harrisburg. He said the bank had refused to permit a committee accountant to examine the Shelby records at the bank.

Eaton's demand, committee members said, raised a question which cannot be settled before tomorrow, when Senator Rial is expected to confer with the counsel.

Meanwhile, the committee ordered the six present members of the commission, including Shelby, to make a complete report on all their "public, private or quasi-public" business. The data was asked from two continuing members—Shelby and Samuel Walker—and four appointees of Gov. Pinchot—Chairman Clyde L. King, P. Stephen Stohlnecker, George W. Woodruff and Frederick P. Gruenberg. No date was specified for the return of this information.

Having disposed of this phase of the inquiry for the present, the committee resumed its study of the Associated Gas and Electric Company operations in Pennsylvania. With Charles Nodder, federal investigator on the stand for the third day, it delved into the financial transactions centered about the Clarion River Power Company.

REVIEWS FINDINGS

Nodder reviewed for the state investigators the findings and order of the federal body, made after a comprehensive inquiry. He said the net effect of the intercompany transactions involving the hydro-electric project was to destroy a $4,000,000 equity represented by stock held in the project by the public.

Nodder testified the Federal Power Commission had found the "reasonable" cost of the plant, located at Piney, Clarion County, to be $5,075,000, as compared with a figure of $11,487,000 shown by the Clarion company's books.

The public's equity, the witness testified, was jeopardized by a sale of the Clarion con... the Pennsylvania Electric ...ation to the Pennsylvania ... Company, all companies ...sociated gas and electric ...aries.

The Federal Commissi... der said, has ordered can... of the sale but the order ... yet been complied with.

David I. McCahill, Pittsburgh, counsel for the Pennsylvania Electric Company, told the committee the authority of the Federal Commission has been questioned by the utilities involved. He added that the companies "do not care" and will not contest the decision.

Public Service Commissioner Shelby had left Pittsburgh today following the close of commission hearings yesterday. Questioned before his departure, Mr. Shelby declined to state what attitude he would take in the demand of the State Senate Committee for banking records since the subpena had been issued.

He was served here ye... day.

EARLY YESTERDAY afternoon the pound sterling had dropped to $3.28½. If England pays the 95 millions due here next month she will have to pay in DOLLARS.

The wise British surely laid in their supplies of dollars while the pound was stronger. But that is not certain and the pound falls, because exchange speculators fear a weakening of sterling, caused by dollar purchases.

YOU LEARN on good authority that American women spend four and a half times as much on cosmetics, toilet waters, vanishing creams and such things as they do on dentists and tooth brushes.

This is wrong, but there is progress.

The savage lady who dances at the edge of the jungle will give everything she owns for a few beads, a piece of red flannel and a little color to put on her cheeks, yet she never spends a dollar on dentists or tooth brushes.

Alley Cat Wins Ribbon, Won't Quit Ritzy Show

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Fuzzy, a Brooklyn alley cat, sat on a satin pillow among 185 blue bloods of the feline world while hundreds admired his ribbon today—and liked it.

There were representatives of catdom from many states but there was not much chance of mistaking Fuzzy's attitude.

He gave a short but emphatic "me-ow" and clung to his pillow when his owner stroked his head and suggested that, now that he had won second prize as a household pet, he might as well go on back home.

And so he sat—right there in a gold tinted exhibition room in a midtown hotel—while cat lovers and cat judges paraded by for glimpses of the entries in New York's most pretentious cat show in history.

Fuzzy, owned by Mrs. George S. Hamilton, of Brooklyn, and Sherman, Conn., was born in the basement of an armory and is 8 years old. It is his first show.

BANDIT SUSPECT SHOT BY POLICE, WOUNDS BOY IN DUEL

WOMAN HELPS IN HOLDUP OF BROKER, WIFE

East End Pair Robbed Of Cash, Ring on Entering Home

Gunplay in which one bandit suspect was wounded in a battle with police, another was believed to have been hit by bullets fired through a door by a trapped victim and a boy bystander hit by a stray shot, marked a new wave of banditry in the Pittsburgh district last night and early today.

A woman bandit and her male escort also were sought after they had slugged an East End insurance broker and threatened his wife with death if she made outcry. The bandit pair escaped with loot estimated at more than $1,000.

SUSPECT WOUNDED

The wounded suspect, Matt Harmovich, 28, of 116 Forty-third and a Half street, was shot in the arm and leg in a running gun battle with Patrolman Joseph Egan. Adam Maciejewski, 15, of 114 Forty-fourth street, the bystander, was wounded in the leg by a bullet fired by Harmovich, police said. Harmovich is under police guard at the West Penn Hospital.

Egan, emergency radio patrolman, was sent to question three men who acted suspiciously near a grocery store at Forty-fifth and Willow streets. While Egan searched Harmovich, the latter drew a revolver and fired a shot which went wild, according to police. Then Harmovich ran down Forty-fifth street, with the patrolman in pursuit. In Long way, Egan fired and wounded Harmovich in the right arm, but the wound did not halt the man's flight, Egan said. The man sought refuge by fleeing through the doorway of the home of John Mierski, at 107 Forty-fourth street, as Patrolman Egan fired another bullet which struck him in the leg. Harmovich was alleged to have fired from the doorway, wounding young Maciejewski.

Harmovich was captured in an alley in the rear of the Mierski home. The revolver, with three discharged shells and two which failed to explode, was taken from the prisoner, Egan said. A search was then begun for two companions of Harmovich, who fled when the gun battle began.

Harmovich admitted he was an ex-convict, police said, having served a term in the Western Penitentiary for robbery.

Howard I. Hausman, an insurance broker and public accountant, and his wife, Ida Hausman, of 5540 Avondale street, were held up by two bandits, one a woman, on the porch of their home shortly after last midnight. The woman, placing her hands over Mrs. Hausman's mouth, commanded:

"Keep quiet or we'll kill you"

SHABBILY DRESSED

Hausman told police:

"They were shabbily dressed. My wife thought they followed us for a block in an automobile. I was inserting the key in the door and my wife was standing beside me when the couple approached, the woman told us to keep quiet."

Mrs. Alberta Hoffman, a widow, was held at bay in her first-floor apartment at 254 Atwood street by a Negro while he looted the place.

The Negro, his face covered with a handkerchief, crawled through a window and surprised Mrs. Hoffman when she entered a bedroom. He drove her into another room, where he picked up two diamond rings valued at $400 and $7 in cash. He escaped through the back door.

One of two bandits who held up H. C. Henderson, in his drug store at 7100 Hermitage street, was believed wounded when Henderson, shut in a small room by the pair fired through the door.

As the bandits fled through the front door, Henderson again fired. The bullet passed through the door. The bandits had forced the druggist into the back room, where a revolver was concealed, after looting the register of $10 in change.

Jacob Podolsky, proprietor of a meat market at 2820 Webster avenue, and his son, Max, 18, were locked in the refrigerator and Albert Jones, of 2812 Webster avenue, a clerk, was ordered to remain still by a Negro gunman who looted the cash register of $129.

After the robber's flight, Jones released the two from the refrigerator.

'Why, Girls, I Knew Her When—'

MISS TERESA MEREDITH

MISS RUTH GREELEY — JAMES STEELE, 65 — MISS CLAIRE CURRY

Doorman Steele, 12 Lakewood avenue, West View, the oldest of his unique profession in Pittsburgh, telling to three pert, young misses of the current Vanities of stars he has known. He's telling them how Pauline Hall, whose picture he's showing, "had it all over the modern girl for real legitimate acting." She opened the Nixon Theater. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

WALES MOBBED BY COLLEENS

BELFAST, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The Prince of Wales was almost mobbed by a rollicking crowd of Irish working girls today when he set out on another expedition among the populace this morning to "see things for himself" despite protests against his visit here.

The vivacious and smiling girls excitedly swarmed all over the Prince's car when it arrived in front of a linen thread works in Lisburn.

The girls clung to the mudguards, jumped on the runningboards and climbed on the baggage grid to get a glimpse of the popular heir to the British throne.

The Prince smiled throughout the incident and then inspected the plant. As he came out the throng of girl workers again crushed around him and detectives had to push their way through the crowd to open a lane for the Prince and his party to walk to the royal car.

3 Killings Entered As 'Unsolved Crime'

CONNELLSVILLE, PA., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The triple slaying of Mrs. Nellie Tressler, her mother, Mrs. Amanda Harden, and her daughter, Sadie, 11, which stirred this section a month ago, appears in the court record today as "an unsolved crime."

A coroner's jury attributed the crime to "party or parties unknown."

Vanities Girls Uphold Modern Stage, Players

Aged Doorkeeper Remains Loyal to Stars of Old

The eternal argument, the old versus the new, found its proponents today in an old stage door man and three beautiful Vanities girls.

James Steele, oldest stage door man in Pittsburgh, and who has known such stage stars as Pauline Hall, Maude Adams, Lillian Russell and Francis Carlyle, was upholding the players of days gone by. He said:

"Now take Pauline Hall, for example, who opened the Alvin Theater. She had it all over the modern girl for real legitimate acting."

Claire Curry, who has played in several Carroll shows, said:

"The modern show girl is far more original. The old time actress was six feet tall and marched around the stage wearing diamonds. She could not help but attract the audience. Today we not only have to display ourselves but we have to dance and sing."

"Daddy" Steele, who is now 65 and has worked backstage since he was 18, said:

It was then Ruth Greeley's turn. She explained:

"There is no point in being an actress today. Dramatic stars do not glitter on Broadway."

Teresa Meredith, of Bellaire, O., and formerly of Artists and Models, said:

Claire Curry then closed the argument, saying:

"And Mr. Steele, if you are thinking about morals, the old actress is no different than the twentieth century gal. The show business is always the show business."

2 AGED SISTERS DIE OF GAS IN 'HERMITAGE'

Victorian Stronghold Of Recluses Falls Before Death

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Death, stealing upon them from a world they shut out for 30 years, has struck down the Misses Emma and Amelia Richardson, spinster sisters for whom time stopped at the year 1902.

In an old house which they had made a hermitage of Victorianism in a bewildering world of modernity, the sisters, 76 and 73, were found dead yesterday, clad in the bustles and ruffles of a vanished day.

Today authorities decided that it was gas, one of the few conveniences in that quaint house, that caused their death. A partly opened burner on the kitchen range and the positions of the frail bodies told the story.

FALLS IN KITCHEN

Miss Amelia, the younger sister, had fallen in the kitchen. Her hand clutched a box of pills, as though she had felt herself growing faint and misunderstood the cause.

Miss Emma, mentally ill for many years because of the shock of a brother's death, is believed to have smelled the fumes as she lay in an upstairs bedroom. She wandered to the head of the stairs and toppled down. Her body, with the neck broken, lay not far from a what-not filled with bric-a-brac.

The sisters turned the key on the world 30 years ago, and neighbors had rarely seen them since. On the death of their father, owner of a grocery in the days when Toronto was known as Muddy York, they moved with their mother, another sister, and a brother into the old house.

'KNEW THEIR DUTY'

One of the sisters married, and the mother, it was said, disinherited her. Miss Amelia and Miss Emma "knew their duty" better. They stayed at home. After a year or two their mother died and then the brother. The death of the latter was a blow from which Miss Emma's mind never recovered. Her younger sister had to care for her throughout the years.

They never left the house together, neighbors said, and no visitor ever was known to be admitted. They spent long evenings in a darkened house, sitting by a window, gazing on a world they could not understand, but could not quite forget. At other times they could be glimpsed moving about in their old finery in the glow of gaslight.

7 FLEE FLAMES ON NORTH SIDE

Fire damaged a restaurant, an A. & P. store and threatened a drygoods store and apartment building in East street, North Side, today. Seven persons, some partly dressed, fled their apartments.

The flames, firemen said, started either in the rear of the grocery, at 3552 East street, or in the restaurant of M. J. Cook, 3550½ East street. Cook said firemen estimated his loss at $2,000.

The fire was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Hein, who live in the rear of their drygoods establishment at 3550 East street. William F. Abt, his wife, Mary, a son, William, Jr., and mother-in-law, Mrs. John Hein, who live on the second floor, and Aloysius Friedrich, 76, a lodger on the third floor, escaped.

Flames believed caused by an overheated furnace damaged the Homestead Elks' temple at Ninth avenue and Ann streets, Homstead, last night. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

ACTRESS SEEKS DIVORCE HERE

Hearing in the divorce action brought by Viola H. Sanford, former motion picture actress and magazine writer, against Jesse H. Sanford, Jr., was held before Judge James H. Gray in Common Pleas Court today.

Mrs. Sanford, who lives at 421 Clokey avenue, Mt. Lebanon, charged her husband with cruelty. She testified he had a violent temper and on several occasions mistreated her. Once, she declared, he twisted her arm and another time mistreated her while she was recovering from typhoid fever.

They were married in 1918. They seperated in April, 1930. They have two children who are in the custody of the husband on Long Island, N. Y. At the time of their marriage, the libel sets forth, Mrs. Sanford was 23 and her husband 28.

HITLER TO SEE HINDENBURG

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Adolf Hitler, Nazi leader, accepted the invitation today of President von Hindenburg to confer with him in connection with formation of a new German cabinet following resignation of the cabinet headed by Chancellor Franz von Papen.

In an attempt to pave the way for establishment of a new government the aged President planned to confer with leaders of the Nationalists, Centrist and Peoples parties today, and with Hitler Saturday.

It was said Von Hindenburg may offer the fiery Hitler leadership of a coalition government, but other reports stated Von Papen had resigned in order to permit formation of a non-party government headed by a man who might become virtual dictator of the Reich.

A suspected attempt upon the life of Von Papen three days ago, was revealed today when Paula Budde, wife of a postal inspector, was sentenced to three months in jail by a special court for possession of dangerous weapons. Police charged she intended to stab the chancellor "to teach him a lesson."

Adopted Son Saves Parents From Fire

Awakened by smoke early today, Joseph Buerrer, 25, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Martzsolf, led the couple to safety from their home at 1431 Hamlin street, damaged $300 in a fire of undetermined origin.

Singer First Heard 'Terrible' Rythm Only Week Ago

Lotte Lehmann, one of Europe's outstanding lieder singers, heard jazz for the first time a week ago and she thinks it "terrible."

Mme. Lehmann, in Pittsburgh for a recital in Carnegie Hall tonight, told about it with gestures:

"I went to a cinema. I was amazed. I heard them playing the Pilgrims' Chorus from Tannhauser—in syncopation.

"It was the first time I ever heard jazz. It was terrible."

Agrees to Quit Town, Veteran Discharged

Arrested on complaint of Attorney Harry I. Miller, secretary of the Helping Hand, in his campaign against "panhandlers," I. Curry, Negro, was discharged on condition that he leave town, by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today. The Negro said he was a disabled World War veteran and had left a veterans' home in Wisconsin because he had been penalized. Miller had caused his arrest, asserting the Helping Hand would feed all destitute men.

Miriam Hopkins Returning to Stage

JOYOUS RIOTING GREETS DUKES AT CAPITAL

Catholic University Whoopee Jails 2 Students

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The boys at Catholic University were having a red-hot time celebrating homecoming day, when it got so warm police and firemen stepped in to cool things off a little.

Just about the time some of the fire engine companies around Brookland—the suburban section where the university is located—were gathering for their checkers after supper last night, frantic alarms began to pour in.

From the first three calls, it looked like a holocaust. The firemen set out, unaware the students had merely set off a bonfire about two stories high, made up of scrap material, and were quietly enough, though brightly, celebrating the annual event.

MEET DUQUESNE

As an added excitant to high spirits, the good old football eleven is going to take on Duquesne University, of Pittsburgh, tonight, and hopes were high the Cardinal winning streak would be stretched out.

Trouble started with the alarms. When the first engine drew up alongside the bonfire the students gleefully helped the firemen unroll the hose and dragged it around telephone poles and everything else they could find. The fire burned on merrily and eventually out.

Somebody called the cops. Policeman John Foster drove up alone in a light cruising car. The students, said his report to superiors, sought to turn it over on him, to which Foster objected vigorously and successfully, though he was handled somewhat roughly.

'BOYS WILL BE BOYS'

Other students, meanwhile, decided it would be fun to stop all street cars, so they yanked off the trolleys as they passed and tied up all kinds of traffic while more police were coming.

Things soon were quieted down, but not until after a couple of arrests. Police refused to give out any names, explaining as neighbors that it was homecoming, they knew most of the students, and that "boys will be boys."

FAILS TO PROVE 'FREE LOVE'

Attorney J. I. Simon, who yesterday informed the court he would bring in witnesses today to testify that Mrs. Emma Rosen, defendant in a habeas corpus proceeding, believed in "free love," failed to produce the witnesses today, and the case closed on testimony taken yesterday.

Mrs. Rosen, of Colwell street, seeks to retain custody of her daughter, Dorothy, 6, against the protests of her estranged husband, Arthur Rosen, former Wylie avenue druggist. He testified his wife was a Communist and taught her daughter there is no God. Judge James H. Gray will give a decision later.

River Conditions.

The high, which caused the cool weather over this district yesterday and last night, is now central over the Lower St. Lawrence Valley, with a ridge extending southwestward to Kansas, while a trough of low pressure extends from western Ontario to South Dakota. Another low is central over the Middle Gulf. Pressure is high over the Canadian Northwest and the plateau. This distribution of pressure units is resulting in rains in the Gulf states and snows in the Northern Rocky Mountains, the Canadian Northwest, the Dakotas and northward into Canada. It is somewhat warmer in the Lower Ohio Valley and southward to the Gulf and in the Dakotas and colder in the Canadian Northwest.

DEFORMED BABE QUERY DIVIDES EXPERTS

An attempt to discover among medical men and children's workers in Pittsburgh the attitude toward the suggestion of an eminent obstetrician met with some contradictory responses.

The question, posed by Dr. W. A. Guild, of Chicago, was whether an obstetrician might not "legally, honorably, and with sincere humanity" do as little as possible to preserve the life of a child born deformed.

Dr. H. P. Pierce, chief of staff at the Children's Hospital, said:

"We must obey the laws as we have them."

But Miss Susan M. Boyd, executive secretary of the Children's Service Bureau, said:

"Life is hard enough for people with all their faculities. In some cases—if we were frank enough—we would come to take this (Dr. Guild's) view."

Dr. G. Walter Zulauf, of the Allegheny General Hospital, remarked:

"Most doctors, from my experience, would not take Dr. Guild's attitude. It is too heavy a responsibility, and one which they have no right to assume."

LILY BEWAILS SLENDER GIRTH

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Lily Pons, chic coloratura of the Metropolitan Opera, trilled through her first rehearsal today—and bewailed her slender girth. Said the diva:

"For an opera singer, I am too thin."

The belated opening of the Metropolitan gave Miss Pons several weeks of singing in Los Angeles and San Francisco opera.

From the West Coast, she returned Wednesday, leading a half-grown jaguar with a low slink and a yard-long tail.

"Ah—thees is Ita. She does not bite."

LIBBY 'BROKE,' STAGE CALLS

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Nov. 18.—(Universal.)—Libby Holman Reynolds is broke, according to Benet Polikoff, her counsel.

Polikoff's declaration was made after his return from a conference with the former glittering Broadway torch singer, just freed of the charge of murdering her young millionaire husband, Z. Smith Reynolds, tobacco heir.

The attorney said his fair young client had no idea how she would obtain funds to meet imperative needs. Birth of her baby is expected in January or February.

Polikoff said the former Miss Holman is considering a return to the stage after her baby is born. She has no plans to contest the will of her husband, Polikoff said.

In an interview at Havre de Grace, Md., yesterday, Libby Holman had indicated she was willing to quit the stage if necessary to take care of her baby.

HOLDUP KILLER CONVICTED

Accused of killing Ralph P. Miller, 39, of 6245 Hamilton avenue, in an attempted holdup, George Dillard, 32, Negro, of 124 Larimer avenue, was convicted of first degree murder with recommendation of life imprisonment today.

The jury returned the verdict before Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County, as court opened, having retired late yesterday. Sentence was deferred, pending a motion for a new trial. Dillard was remanded to jail.

Miller was killed July 17 while returning home from a circus. He was felled with an iron pipe. Two Negroes, said to have been with Dillard, will be tried later.

Grand Rapids Drops Jobless Dole System

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 18.—(INS.)—The famed "Grand Rapids Plan" of unemployment relief, started by former Mayor George Welsh, was abandoned today by the City Commission. Welsh resigned recently to run for Governor in the Republican primary. He was defeated.

Under the system, a city dole was established, the jobless receiving scrip good only at municipally operated stores. Private stores will be designated as commissaries for the unemployed under a substitute plan.

Karen Morley Soon to Marry Film Director

KAREN MORLEY

Movie Lot Romance Links Beauty and Charles Vidor

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 18.—The ring is waiting, and so is the bride. As for the bridegroom, he admits he is counting the days until Karen Morley becomes Mrs. Charles Vidor.

Romantic and interesting, isn't it, that the beautiful and popular Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer actress is shortly to become the bride of Charles Vidor, a director on the same lot?

The bridegroom admitted the marriage would take place in a very short time, but denied they were married yesterday. They entertained friends last night at the Frolics Cafe and there were reports that it was their wedding dinner.

Miss Morley has come to the front in an amazingly short time. Her work in "Mata Hari," "Washington Masquerade" and other M-G-M pictures has given her a world-wide reputation. She has also become known as one of the most intelligent of the new crop of actresses.

Mr. Vidor—no relation to King Vidor, also a director—directed "Fu Manchu" and is now in line for other pictures. He is a young man of more than average intelligence, and friends believe his career is just starting.

This romance started on the M-G-M lot, and although their interest in each other was known to their friends their engagement comes as one of the real surprises of the year.

CO-EDS ALL SET FOR 'MANLESS' DANCE

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Co-eds of Waynesburg College have finished plans for their annual dance tonight—and it won't cost the college boys a dime.

The decorations are up in the dance hall at the Armory, evening gowns have had those final little touches, and the men's evening clothes are clean and creased. The orchestra promises music sweet and hot.

College boys watched preparation, with different kind of interest, the blue and mournful kind.

They'll stand around the corners tonight and watch with envy as somebody else takes their girls to the dance. Then they'll saunter down toward the armory and hear the strains of snappy fox trots and dreamy waltzes. But they won't get in.

It's the co-eds' answer to the college boys' habit of bringing "outside" girls to the regular dances. Co-eds will be the girls, and co-eds will wear the tail coats of men's attire, and have a big night all to themselves.

The "Co-eds' Prom" was an innovation several years ago. Now it's an annual affair.

DIXON DEFENDS INSURANCE SALE

H. H. Dixon, member of the County Poor Board, has filed a separate answer to a taxpayer's equity suit in which he admits that some of the insurance on the Allegheny County Home property was placed through him as an insurance agent.

The suit, which was filed by Walter W. Riehl against the Poor Board, alleged mismanagement and asked an accounting. The action was directed against Dixon, J. Clyde Miller and W. L. Henderson, as the board was formerly constituted.

In his answer Dixon said that on the insurance he sold, the rates were those fixed by the Board of Fire Underwriters and there was no competition, also assenting he received only the commissions any other agent would have been paid.

Dixon denied he or his colleagues made large expenditures for architectural services, asserting all services obtained were necessary. He also denied that they bought illegally 77 acres of land from the Carnegie Coal Company.

2 FOUND GUILTY BY ARSON JURY

John Pane and Jacob Greenfield, of McKeesport, were convicted today of conspiring to burn a 10-family apartment building at 908-912 White street, McKeesport, April 12. The jury brought in a verdict when court opened this morning, having retired last night.

William H. Coleman, attorney for the defendants, said they would file motions for a new trial and the bail of each was doubled to $10,000 on motion of Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson. The defendants denied they were near the building when an explosion wrecked it. Police and firemen testified they found barrels which had contained gasoline, and the prosecution alleged Pane had taken them into the building after Greenfield has leased an apartment to him.

Woman Patient Kills Self in 2-Story Leap

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Leaving her bed in St. Vincent's Hospital, Mrs. John Meyers, 32, jumped two stories to her death last night as 10 other women in the ward watched, helpless to stop her.

LINDY PROBER BLAMES DEAD GIRL AS 'SPY'

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 18. — Police Inspector Harry W. Walsh, in the third of a series of copyrighted articles in the Jersey Journal describing his part in the investigation of the kidnaping and slaying of the Lindbergh baby, asserts he is "convinced" that Violet Sharpe, maid in the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, was the "informant—the agent—of the kidnapers."

GIRL ENDED LIFE

"I am convinced that Violet Sharpe deceived us, and that she did so deliberately.

"I am convinced that she was the informant—the agent—of the kidnapers.

"I believe she committed suicide in panic, fearing her guilt had been discovered, or overburdened with her guilty knowledge after news of the baby's death."

Walsh, who was in charge of the questioning of the employes at the Morrow home, said he arrived at these conclusions from the following facts:

"She was the recipient of the phone call at 10:30 Tuesday, March 1, that ordered Betty Gow (the baby's nurse) to Hopewell. This gave her knowledge that the baby would be in Hopewell that night.

"She insistently refused to reveal the identity of the person she was with on March 1.

"Her physical condition changed for the worse after it became known the baby was dead. I attribute this change to the working of her conscience. I believe that previously she had been buoyed by the hope that the baby would be returned safely. She would get a cut of the ransom money, and no one would be the wiser.

"She ended her life just before she was to be questioned again by the police, and, as I believe, when she feared the screws of detection of her guilt were getting tighter and tighter."

Walsh says that the persons with whom Miss Sharpe spent the night of March 1 later were located and exonerated of any suspicion.

DENIES 'THIRD DEGREE'

Walsh denies any "third degree" was applied to Miss Sharpe.

Walsh also reveals that Dr. John F. Condon, of the Bronx, the "Jafsie" who paid over $50,000 to the supposed kidnapers, reported to Col. Lindbergh that "John," the man to whom he paid the money, told him there were five of the kidnapers, divided into two groups, the first composed of two men and a woman and the second of a man and a woman. Walsh states:

"In my mind was the suspicion that the woman in the second group might be Violet."

Describing the search for the "Ernie" Miss Sharpe said she was with the night of March 1, and who she said she believed was a bus driver, Walsh states that the name of every bus and taxi driver in the states of New York and New Jersey was obtained and that every "Ernie" on the list was questioned.

Vatican Orders $50,000 in Coins

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 18.—(Universal.)—The Vatican City has given its order to the Italian government for minting $50,000 worth of new coins of the Papal realm.

The coins are to be minted in silver, nickel and bronze. The Vatican agreement with the government empowers the Papal state to issue $50,000 in coinage again in 1933. Pilgrims coming to Rome and Vatican City take away most of the coins as souvenirs.

PITT ARTISTS GIVE OWN 'EXHIBIT'

Even if the thirty-first International Exhibition of Paintings has been canceled, the Pitt Panther, humorous publication at the University of Pittsburgh, is not going to let the college students drag culturally.

Artists on the Panther held a bizarre and humorous exhibit in its place. Prizes are printed in today's magazine.

SATIRE ON CANVAS

"We will probably get booted out of college or sued for libel, but such is life.

"Civic pride will not permit us to leave this cultural demand unfilled, so we had to have this thirty-first exhibit."

First prize is called "Still Life" and is a satirical sketch on Pitt's unfinished Cathedral. Since engineers have said that it does not "rock just right," the picture is by Kent Rockwell.

'DIAMOND LIL' SHOWN

John Kane, house painter who turned artist, also goes "for a ride" by the Panther staff. Since Kane loves to paint Pittsburgh bridges this picture is a sketch of an upper set of false teeth and is labeled "Upper Sixth Street Bridge" by John Kain.

Other sketches are aimed at Congressman Sol Bloom, secretary of the Washington bi-centennial celebration, the Carnegie Tech Art students, and Mae West, who became famous for her "Diamond Lil" show.

ICE INDUSTRY NAMES HEADS

The convention renamed Frank L. Duggan, of Pittsburgh, as chairman of the national public relations committee. J. C. Thompson, Dallas, was elected vice president. Two officers re-elected were J. B. Mahoney, Charleston, S. C., vice president, and W. K. Martin, Crawfordsville, Ind., treasurer.

With the directors increased to 15 members, newly named members were: Retiring president, E. L. Bennett, Boston; I. H. Thomas, Binghampton, N. Y.; B. F. Lucas, Baltimore; B. C. Brown, New Orleans; C. F. Anderson, Oklahoma City; C. C. Eggert, Denver; S. M. Collins, Tacoma, Wash.; R. G. Hopkins, Boston; E. King, Decatur, Ill., and Horace Williams, St. Petersburg.

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

MISS MARGARET LAMBERT . . CUTTING 95TH BIRTHDAY CAKE

Thrilled by Modern Events; Wants to See Roosevelt

"Today girls get their thrills by going to roadhouses. When I was a girl all the amusement we had were some picnics in summer and a couple of dances in the winter.

"I only went with the best of company and that is what has kept me young."

Miss Lambert declared she is not too old for thrills. Recently she motored through Schenley Park and "marveled" at the Cathedral of Learning, which she never had seen before.

"Aunt Maggie," as her friends call her, at one time sewed for the William Thaw family on Smithfield street, and the H. K. Porter family on Fifth avenue.

During the interview messengers had been bringing flowers and congratulatory messages and the telephone rang for the fifth time as another friend called, wishing Miss Lambert a happy birthday.

Miss Lambert was born on Ross street near the Courthouse site. She remembers most of the important happenings in the city.

She says she has but one ambition. Being a Democrat, she explained:

"Polk was the first Democratic president that I ever saw and now I would like to see Roosevelt.

Family Absent, Fire Destroys Dwelling

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the two-story frame dwelling of John Saltez, Oak Glen and Mapledale avenues, last night.

The blaze was discovered by Arch Sharp, a neighbor, who turned in an alarm. Damage was estimated at $3,000. The family was absent.

$8,700 Willed Widow In Single Sentence

Anna Opferman, Bethel Township, left an $18,000 estate to eight children and five grandchildren. Charles W. Voelp, North Side, bequeathed $14,000 to his widow, Louisa.

HOME LOAN ACT HELD FAILURE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Extensive revision of the Home Loan banking law will be asked at the coming session by Representative Cochran, Missouri Democrat.

The reason, he said today, is that the act establishing the system "did nothing but extend false hopes to the people." He added the system's "failure" was attested by the fact that it had not yet made a loan.

Cochran, chairman of the House Expenditures Committee, recalled that Democratic and Republican House leaders had been somewhat apathetic toward the original bill, passing it only upon continued insistence of the administration.

Since the bill became law, Cochran says scores have complained to him that the provision limiting loans to 40 per cent of assessed valuation restricts benefits to too narrow a field. Contracted values makes it necessary, he asserted, to increase that minimum.

Small Birds Test Ingenuity of Zoo

BERLIN—(AP.)—The diet of the smallest inmates of the Berlin Zoo, kolibri birds from Brazil about the size of a man's thumb, taxed the ingenuity of the management until a small test tube was fitted with a long spout permitting the birds to dip their long bills into honey.

SCOT EDUCATOR TO SPEAK HERE

Sir James C. Irvin, principal and vice chancellor of the University of St. Andrews, Scottish institution of which Andrew Carnegie was once lord rector, will address the student body and faculty of Carnegie Institute of Technology at the annual Carnegie Day exercises in Carnegie Music Hall Tuesday morning.

Following the address, President Thomas S. Baker will announce scholarships and honors for the year, and will award fraternity, sorority and dormitory scholarship cups.

WOMAN ADMITS POISONING 4

CARO, Mich., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Miss Grace Hossler, 34, admitted today, sheriff's officials said, that she had poisoned her brother, sister, brother-in-law and a hired man on the brother's farm near here "because they ridiculed her."

The brother, Oscar Hossler, and Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Hatch, brother-in-law and sister, became violently ill after eating food prepared by Miss Hossler. All are recovering. The hired man was not seriously affected.

Pending a sanity hearing, she was placed in the county jail.

26 New Cases Put Under Quarantine

The City Department of Health today reports these new cases in quarantine: Infantile paralysis, 1; scarlet fever, 4; diphtheria, 1; measles, 1; mumps, 1; chicken pox, 7; whooping cough, 6, and pneumonia, 5.

Who Was David Haviland?

In 1839, David Haviland, in partnership with his brother Daniel, was an importer of English porcelain in New York. One day a customer brought into the shop a cup which she desired to match, a cup far finer than anything he had ever seen. David Haviland spent nearly a year, tracing the cup, and at last found its counterpart in Limoges, France. Here he erected factories—the beginning of the Haviland China business that has delighted the world since 1840.

Pattern 2303

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

by Anne Adams

One of those charming frocks that cause all your friends to "oh" and "ah." Here the intriguing seamings belie the real simplicity of the frock. Most unusual and winning is the novel scarft treatment which is decidedly chic in contrasting color. Puffed sleeves—what would we do without them?—add to the lovely silhouette.

Pattern 2303 may be ordered only in sizes 14 to 20 and 32 to 42. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 39-inch fabric and ⅛ yard 36-inch contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with pattern.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for this pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

The choice of a smart, sensible and economical winter wardrobe becomes very simple with the aid of THE ANNE ADAMS PATTERN CATALOG. This beautiful book contains 32 pages of select Anne Adams models for every WINTER need and ever so many delightful suggestions for Christmas sewing. SEND FOR YOUR COPY. PRICE OF CATALOG, 15 CENTS. CATALOG AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS. Address all mail orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4.—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.

Milne, Hoover Aide In Food Work, Dead

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—William A. Milne, 60, an aide to President Hoover when the latter was federal food administrator during the war, is dead.

After serving with the federal food administration, Milne became executive secretary of the Ohio Petroleum Marketers' Association.

COX BREADLINE GROWS APACE

Father Cox is watching the weather reports with dread. With winter setting in, his responsibilities for the care of hundreds of destitute jobless grow in such proportion that he needs, more than ever, the help of all friends and sympathizers.

Intensely cold weather will double the already almost endless breadline at Old St. Patrick's and will require twice as much aid for the needy families in the home. Clothing and fuel are as much in demand just now as food. With him conditions are becoming acute because he has no income from organized charities. He depends entirely upon voluntary contributions at the services in his church and from others who are in a position to help in the big work he has shouldered for two years or more.

Father Cox is particularly hopeful that his Thanksgiving basket distribution will be successful and he makes an appeal to all farmers, truck gardeners and poultry raisers to donate what they can spare of their surplus for this purpose.

These are some of the reasons why the Sun-Telegraph is again inaugurating a subscription drive for the benefit of the Father Cox Unemployment Relief Fund. For every subscription that comes in with his name on it he is given a liberal commission in cash for his relief fund. If you want to help in his work you can use the blank on this page. Father Cox says that every subscription will bring him enough cash to furnish baskets for three families.

Persian Lamb Trimmed Coats

They're Best Sellers Here at

$55 $75 $100

Because Persian lamb is an aristocrat among furs. Because its durability is well known. And because the Persian lamb that trims Horne coats is distinguished by a tight, flat, uniform curl, a fine sheen and soft texture, with no suggestion of fuzziness.

Our collection of Persion-trimmed coats includes all types, from dignified mama coats to young deb fashions, chiefly in black with black fur. In women's and misses' regular sizes, and women's half sizes.

Hats have continued to grow tinier and snappier, fabrics lovelier, and colors clearer and brighter, and here is a brand-new group of hats that mark the climax of all the recent changes. They have just arrived for Saturday.

We Started Something With

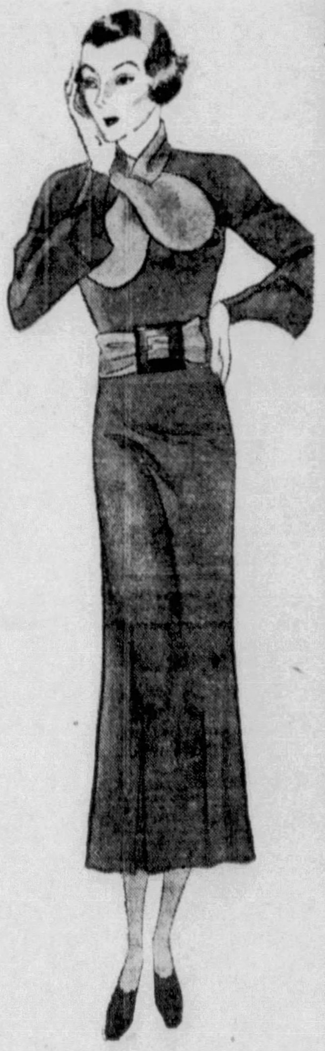
Black Polo Coats

$25

The Sportswear Shop's first intention in bringing out these stark, jet black coats, was to provide something startling. But we got a surprise, for they not only "took" as a daring, new thing in polo coats, but as a grand, untrimmed coat for women who had their own furs.

Three models of velvety Brittany cashmere (a mixture of cashmere and camelhair), a fabric exclusive with us, in Pittsburgh . . . Misses' and women's sizes, 12 to 42.

... Horne's, Sportswear Shop, Second Floor ...



Going to the Country for Thanksgiving? ... Then Have

A Wool Frock

The annual back-to-the-farm movement at Thanksgiving, calls for this type of dress. And the Misses' Shop believes it need not be merely a warm frock to offset the absence of a central heating system, but one smart enough to appear at the festal board. For example, the one sketched:

Of lusciously soft, lightweight rabbit-hair woolen, with velvet scarf and belt. Cherry red with gray, green with gray, or gray with vivid blue.

THE BEST PLACE TO SHOP, AFTER ALL

SIMS TO SHUN ELY'S SECRETS

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—If Ely Culbertson wants to talk to P. Hal Sims there must be a third party in on it.

No "private understandings" and everything open and above board—that's the gist of a public pronouncement issued by Mr. Sims.

The statement does not exactly say that there is to be a 1932 edition of the 1931 Lenz-Culbertson bridge marathon, with P. Hal Sims taking the place of Sidney Lenz. But there are broad hints at such a possibility. Sims said:

"I have been asked so often about a possible match against Mr. Culbertson, that I feel I must now make a statement.

"I am perfectly willing to meet Mr. Culbertson to discuss terms, but only in the presence of a third party. I am told that Mr. Culbertson wants to talk to me privately about such a match. This, I refuse to do; if any match does take place, it will be entirely an open matter with no private understandings whatsoever between Mr. Culbertson and myself."

Surgeon Divorced By 'Silver Queen'

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Suzanne Emery-Holmes Delitch, known as the "silver queen," today had a divorce from Dr. Radovan Novelkov Delitch, Serbian surgeon.

She testified to several acts of alleged cruelty by her husband. She is the heiress to a Utah silver mine fortune.

MILK FACTIONS INVITE KING

Dr. Clyde L. King, chairman of the Public Service Commission, will be asked to come to Pittsburg to attend a conference of milk producers and distributors in an effort to stabilize milk prices at a higher level than 8 cents a quart, effected last week.

Representatives of the Dairymen's Co-operative Association, who have asked Dr. King to arbitrate, said present prices do not give the producer a fair profit.

No date for the conference has been set, although it will be held within the next two or three weeks.

Keeps Dog in Rain, Woman Arrested

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Rain fell. Mrs. Rose Carrato's dog got wet, and Mrs. Carrato was arrested. The charge was that in permitting her dog to stand in the rain she was cruel.

The court suspended action when Mrs. Carrato told him she had got rid of the dog. If he is foolish enough to stand in the rain again, it will be his new owner's tough luck.

Democratic Chiefs Here Asked to Fete

Western Pennsylvania Democratic leaders have been invited to Greensburg to attend a victory dinner in the Penn-Albert Hotel on December 1 by J. Hilary Kennan, Westmoreland County chairman.

Among those invited are Joseph F. Guffey, former Democratic National Committeeman; State Chairman Warren Van Dyke, Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, Democratic national committeewoman, and David L. Lawrence, Allegheny County chairman.

Underwriter Chief Sees Business Gain

Business is on the upturn and field men of leading insurance companies can give it further impetus, Jay M. Holmes, president of the Pittsburgh Life Underwriters' Association, declared at a banquet of the organization last night in Kaufmann's dining room. Another speaker, Holmar J. Johnson, said:

"Things are getting better and the banking situation all over the country has actually improved."

Collapse of Factory Buries 12 in Rome

ROME, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Twelve persons were buried alive in the collapse of a factory building here today. Eight were taken out of the debris dead, and four injured seriously were extricated.

Mt. Oliver Man Loses Ring, Auto to Bandit

A lone robber early today held up S. J. Finn, of Mt. Oliver, at Watkins avenue, Thornburg, took $21, a diamond ring and his automobile, he reported to police.

Salary Base of 1913 Proposed for State

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Salaries of state employes would be returned to the scale in effect in 1913 under a legislative program prepared today by the executive committee of the Tax Justice League of Pennsylvania for submission to the 1933 Legislature.

The executive committee also drafted a series of bills designed to shift the burden of taxation from real estate to other sources.

RAIL WORKERS URGE PENSIONS

Federal old-age pensions and unemployment insurance today had been urged by the American Federation of Railroad Workers.

A national committee yesterday closed a three-day special executive session revising the federation's constitution. Provisions to admit workers on freight trucking lines into membership were voted.

A resolution was passed urging enactment of federal laws for pensions, workers' compensation, unemployment insurance, six-hour day and five-day week. Restoration of the 10 per cent wage cut made last year and terminating February 1 was urged.

Edward Hoskins, of Chicago, national president, conducted the sessions. The group is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. It includes railroad workers of the mechanical, maintenance and station departments.

MUSIC

Betty Jane Atkinson

PROGRAM

Sonata opus 30, No. 3..Beethoven
Allegro assai.
Allegro vivace.
Concerto G minor.....Bruch
Prelude—Allegro moderato.
Adagio.
Finale—Allegro energico.
Allegro .....Flocco
Chanson Louis XIII and Pavane ....Couperin-Kreisler
The Coucou .....Daquin-Press
Sierra Morena .....Monasterio
Romanza Andaluza .....Sarasate
Scherzo Tarantelle....Wieniawski

A good audience of friends came to Carnegie Music Hall last night to hear Betty Jane Atkinson in her first public violin recital. Betty Jane played a very ambitious program. She is but 10 years old and was a little tired before she reached the end of the program, but she has grit. More than that, she is an unusually charming little lady and has the poise of a society matron.

Mr. Lissfelt

I should not like to prophesy her fuure as a musician, but to judge from her performance last night, she undoubtedly has a beautiful talent; to memorize her program was a big enough task. From a child no one expects grand emotional climaxes, a continuous purity of tone, nor those subtleties in nuance which hold the attention during an entire evening, but her master is very likely looking to those details.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

OBITUARIES

Sergt. Thomas Flynn.

Funeral services for Sergt. Thomas Flynn, who died yesterday in the United States Veterans' Hospital, Bath, N. Y., from disabilities contracted in service, will be held tomorrow at the funeral parlors of Thomas Timothy O'Shea, 4026 Penn avenue. Flynn, member of Battery F, 107th Field Artillery, served on the Mexican border and in France. Until his admission to the Veterans' Hospital two years ago, he was active in the organization of American Legion Post 115, and Madison Post 575, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Disabled American War Veterans. He will be buried with full military honors in Calvary Cemetery by comrades with whom he served in France. Flynn leaves a sister, Mrs. N. K. Brickley, Pittsburgh.

Ben F. Fullwood.

Ben F. Fullwood, a resident of Pittsburgh all his life, died yesterday in Homeopathic Hospital. He had made his home with a brother, Hanley Fullwood, of 5960 Alder street. He was the son of the late Capt. W. W. Fullwood, for many years active in newspaper work in Pittsburgh. Besides his brother, Hanley, he leaves two other brothers, John and Riddle Fullwood, and a sister, Mrs. W. M. Alexander.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

So they've tempted Jimmy Walker with a job at doing a newspaper column? . . . Well, he could do one gracefully enough, I guess—his pithy stuff was always welcome in my pillar of piffle . . . There were times, it seemed to me, when Walker was almost as amusing as Elinson . . . But I doubt that Jim would like the job after the spell faded and the routine became more of a problem than a pastime . . . And the back of his head began to ache, wondering from where the next paragraph was coming . . . That's when Jim would hunger for an easy job such as mayoring . . . Oh, there are times, of course, when it is a cinch to prepare a column . . . After you've been ironed out by some sound slumber, that is . . . And you skip breezily into your cubbyhole and find that your contributors are exceptionally clever that mail . . . But, oh, the weariness that follows the two hours or more of searching every letter for a nugget you can use! . . . Only to waste that time feeding their pish-tush to your wicker! . . . And you regret having taken the risk of depending on them, and sigh: "Do I have to do this alone today?" . . . The chief trouble with columning daily is that your most affectionate admirers are fickle . . . They demand that your stuff be better than it was yesterday . . . You think you keep hearing them say: "A columnist is only as good as his last column!" . . . Which is too tough a verdict . . . When I do a feeble column, I know before anyone else does that it is rotten . . . But I also know when it's good . . . And when I think it's good, what any one else thinks doesn't matter . . . That's the real fun of the job.

Another exciting part of the columning routine is encountering this or that pill, who knows your boss, or someone who knows someone who knows him . . . And when you've written something offensive about that person, he threatens that he is going right to your employer and have you fired, or reprimanded, so that you won't offend him again . . . My 10 years at annoying people has taught me that no boss of a newspaper gives a hoot about people who use his friendship to square things with his staff or his paragrapher . . . And, unless you've written some dreadful thing which isn't a fact, you aren't even bothered by a visit from him . . . Oh, the legends that I've heard about how this or that "influential" party has had me stopped from mentioning him or her . . . Mustache wax' . . . . Take it from one who is sensitive about his accuracy—when you find you've made a boner in reporting something, the blood rushes to your cheeks, and you get a little ill . . . That, it seems to me, is the most severe punishment — finding out you are wrong! . . . For one glaring inaccuracy in anybody's column makes the rest of the contents look unconvincing and pale . . . No, the newspaper chief doesn't waste his time satisfying his friends, who demand their pound of flesh . . . The newspaper boss is a person who peddles newspapers, and a columnist is merely one of his newsboys.

The quip that flooded the nation during the final days of the recent campaign—the one that went: "Exactly four months after Roosevelt is inaugurated, every federal bank in the U. S. will be closed!" worried a lot of listeners—until they were informed that four months later would be July 4, a holiday . . . Well, many a wiseguy won money betting the guy who said so was wrong . . . For the banks in Texas aren't! . . . Wonder if there is anything to the talk that Willie Howard, of Willie and Eugene renown, is to be starred in a dramatic role? . . . The locals titter at the thought of it, because Willie is so funny a comic . . . But that's how David Warfield, one of the greatest tragedians, started his legit career . . . Very few know that before he achieved his ambition, Warfield was a comedian with Weber & Fields and left them to work for Belasco, who starred him!

Among other things more important is burning up about incidents like this . . . About nine months ago state troopers in Huntington, Lonog Island, arrested four men for robbery . . . When they were arrested they were positively identified by the victims, and police records here revealed that the bandits had long criminal records . . . When they were brought to the troopers' headquarters for questioning, it was alleged that one of them attempted to escape, and received a black eye . . . As a result of this injury, two sergeants were demoted to troopers, and two troopers were suspended without pay for three months . . . One of the troopers was Harold J. Quinn . . . The four bandits were admitted to bail, and shortly after, entered a Huntington theater, where they robbed the house, shot a policeman dead and wounded a watchman . . . A few days ago a trooper was a hero in a scuffle with a maniac at Highland Mills, N. Y. . . . That hero was Harold J. Quinn, the same who did his duty as he saw it—but was suspended without pay for three months . . . My idea of what ought to be done about Harold J. Quinn is that readers could clip this report and send it to Maj. Warner, in charge of the New York state troops . . . Plus a letter suggesting that Hero Quinn get his back pay for three months . . . That certainly would be better than the useless medal he probably won't get.

The pictures on the office wall serve to remind me of people I like, or of moments that were pleasant . . . That one with Madge Evans, frinstance . . . In the closeup of a movietone I made with her two years ago . . . The likeness of George M. Cohan, the only guy I know who can pose with his hand on a hip and not look like a sissy . . . That one there of Bernie and his College Inn boss, Byfield, with Ben holding a baby alligator, which he christened after his biggest radio earache . . . The photo of Bugs Baer, Rube Goldberg, Milt Gross and myself, posing with J. Connolly, the King Features head man, at that dinner in New Haven . . . Walda and Gloria, when they were tiny, when they were 2, 4, 5 and 9 . . . What kids! . . . There's Broun, who started the bombardment from which I emerged with a bruise or two . . . Jean Ackerman, of the "Follies" . . . Wonder what's become of Jean? . . . Ruth Etting . . . Walker . . . Nathan . . . June . . . the first proof of the "O. K. America!" back covers, the same that went on the billboards . . . Gee, I never dreamed that line would last . . . Fred Stone . . . Chevalier . . . Brisbane's "How to Be a Better Reporter" essay . . . Russ Patterson's original drawing from a piece I collitchumored, the title of which I forget . . . And those are Walda's baby-scribbling love letters . . . Poor thing. She can't sit down . . . Because her mother (and you'd think she'd know better) let her fall off a horse instead of a pony. I'll put it in the paper and shame her.

Secret About Crawford Story

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 18.

Before the camera starts grinding on her new picture, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer already has lined up another prospect for Joan Crawford. It is an original story by Elmer Harris called "Happily Unmarried."

Looking out to protect the idea, the studio isn't talking much about the plot, but it may be a tip-off that Harry Beaumont has been chosen as director. Beaumont directed most of those modern girl stories in which Joan first swept to popularity.

Joan Crawford

It is no secret, of course, that she grew very tired of them and spared no effort in talking the studio into giving her different types or roles, but that was some time ago. She has since done "Rain," and she will vary her characterization again in William Faulkner's war story now on the verge of production. Many fans would like to see her play one of the old roles again.

First, of course, she must dispose of her present assignment. And before this is possible, Director Howard Hawks must locate two English actors who will fit into the picture. One who has received several tests is John Lawton, now working at Fox.

Peter the Hermit, famous Hollywood character, who always used to be bare-headed and barefooted, threw the boulevard quite out of gear the other day by appearing in a green beret . . . And what was the idea of the eight policemen who escorted Daryl Zanuck from his automobile to the door of a bank?

Lillian Roth

The Warner executive was bent under the weight of a heavy bag. . . . Lillian Roth and Eric Linden were dancing at at the La Boheme the other evening. And Arthur Caesar left this important thought scribbled on the tablecloth: "Wonder if women critics wear panne velvet?" . . . Hollywood has a new late spot, the supper-room of the Beverly Hills Hotel. Joe Brown was there the other evening with a party of 10.

New Pictures Billed

Opening in the Warner today is "Bill of Divorcement," with John Barrymore, Billie Burke and Katharine Hepburn, the girl who rose to stardom in this picture.

The Davis, beginning today, will show "Thirteen Women." Heading the large cast is Irene Dunne, Ricardo Cortez and Myrna Loy. It is a story of a woman's revenge.

Guest Star

Blanche Ring will be the guest star in "Cradle Snatchers," comedy to be played in the Pitt next week by the Edwin Vail Players.

Janet Gaynor And Farrell In Stanley

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Tess of the Storm Country," talkie version of the Grace Miller White novel that once served Mary Pickford as a vehicle for one of her popular child-of-nature heroine portrayals, is the principal photoplay on the Stanley screen. In this day of gin-swizzling youth on the screen it seems a little old-fashioned, but there is an honest atmosphere about its romance that ought to satisfy if merely for the change. A story set amidst the dashing of the sea against a picturesque rocky coast seems to proclaim its own straightforwardness, and that is the locale of "Tess of the Storm Country."

Romantically, it is just a continuation of the love affair between Miss Gaynor and Mr. Farrell that began so auspiciously in "Seventh Heaven," and, since Heaven is the zenith, never has reached quite the same height since. Yet they continue to be satisfactory boy-and-girl sweethearts, and it is perhaps too soon to expect them to become grown-ups. Neither shows a wrinkle as yet.

Miss Gaynor is just as lovable as ever as Tess, daughter of the skipper of a sailing vessel who thinks it time to become a landlubber when he sees that his crew now look upon his girl as a woman. Safer for her. But life ashore is something else, and the strange land is unhospitable and soon betrays them, thanks to a selfish aristocrat, of whom Mr. Farrell is a son.

Mr. Farrell, too, is true to type, a manly young fellow who is attracted to the girl of the sea and who helps her in her day of deepest trouble—when her father is convicted of murder done by another. Each is natural and engaging, and the story is both romantic and melodramatic, not much for acting but strong on action.

Dudley Digges, prominent stage actor, plays the father of the girl, doing a good job. A well-trained monkey, pet of Tess, provides all the comedy the piece has—or needs. A short comedy and animated cartoon tune feature also are on the bill.

Soloist

Coe Glade, Chicago Opera Company contralto, will be the soloist with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra at Sunday evening's Syria Mosque concert.

Latrobe Group Will Produce Comedy

The Play and Players Club, Latrobe's Little Theater group, will produce "Salt Water" by John Golden and Dan Jarrett, in the high school auditorium next Tuesday evening. The club will offer a special musical program in harmony with the theme of the comedy.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

STAGE STORIES may come and go. But my choice of them all is the one I heard several weeks ago. It may be an old baby, but when I heard it I thought it very funny. Maybe you will, too.

It's the yarn of the struggling Shakespearean troupe that was finally stranded in a small town on the Mississippi River.

With no money whatever, they began to look around for the best method of getting out of that tough spot. Although it was a severe blow to their dignity, they were finally compelled to accept the offer of a captain of a small scow. His cargo was a mess of garbage, but he agreed to let the troupe accompany him—and things were so bad that they had to agree.

As they floated down the river, the leader of the troupe stood in front of the scow and gazed sadly about him. That he should come to this!

"Hey, Si," came a voice from the shore, "what you got aboard today?"

"My heavens!" the ham cried dramatically, "we aren't even being headlined!"

* * *

"DEAR MARK," writes Joe L——, "I've been planning for some time to write a story for your column. When I sat down to write it several weeks ago, I remembered that my typewriter was at the repair shop. I went to get it and brought it home with me. Then I discovered that I didn't have any paper.

"Several days later I remembered to buy some paper. Arriving home that night, I slipped a sheet of paper in the machine and commenced writing. Some time later, I was quite put out to discover no ribbon on the typewriter.

"Yesterday I tied a bit of string around my finger in order to remind me to buy a ribbon for the typewriter. On my way home I actually bought one. I have everything in readiness now—but there's one trouble. I can't remember what the story was that I was going to send you."

Well, Joe, maybe after all, it's just as well you forgot the yarn . . .

* * *

AMONG THE contributed stuff of the day is the story of the two men from New York who bought a number of diamonds on 30, 60 and 90 days' time. After talking it over, they decided to skip with the jewelry to Canada. So they placed the jewels in a coffin and shipped it.

Each of them took turns in watching the casket, and whenever the baggageman stepped into the car the watcher would begin to weep and howl. A traveling man finally came in to inspect his baggage. He observed the solitary mourner and approached him sympathetically.

"My friend," he inquired, "are you alone in your grief? Where are the other mourners?"

The fellow choked a phony sob.

"Some will be along in 30 days," he cried, "some in 60 and the rest in 90 days!" . . .

Huston Star Of 'Kongo'

By EDWARD W. GOSS

"Kongo," another in a long line of jungle pictures, is the hope of the Fulton for the next few days.

Like most other pictures with a tropical background, "Kongo" has a sinister character who is "just like that" with the natives. Walter Huston is the sinister boy and he does very well, too.

Huston is shown as a man with an evil eye, matted hair, great nerve and paralized legs. It seems a fellow who swiped Huston's wife also belted him to the ground and kicked him in the spine, thus paralizing the legs. Now Huston didn't mind the swift kick to the spine so much. What irked him was the sneer on the homewrecker's face.

With the sneer ever in his mind, the outraged husband lives only for revenge. To this end he establishes himself as ruler in a giant tropical swamp.

Into his swamp kingdom Huston lures the man who sneered, a girl whom he believes is the man's daughter and a dope-head doctor. Part of his revenge is sweet and part sour.

Concert Here Sunday

With Coe Glade, of the Chicago Civic Opera, as soloist, the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra will give its first concert of the season in Syria Mosque Sunday night, with Antonio Modarelli conducting. Miss Glade's numbers will be "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delilah," and "Habanera" and "Seguidilla" from "Carmen."

The society announces that guest tickets for this concert may be obtained from its members or at the society's offices today or throughout Saturday, such tickets being scaled at $1, $1.50 and $2.25 each, with good seats available on all floors. Memberships also are available in all classes, and the society this year permits payment of membership fee in installments. Application may be made at the Pittsburgh Symphony Society headquarters, 626 Farmers Bank Building.

Officers of the society feel that, since it is a local institution striving to put Pittsburgh among cities that support their own orchestras, it should have wider public support. The movement recently received the indorsement of Walter Damrosch in a radio address.

Slender Figures in Demand

Women must be slender. Fashion demands slenderness—men admire it. So women willingly submit to almost any form of mild torture to attain a slender figure. They take bitter-tasting medicines, go on the penance diet of a monk, take exercises that would wear out a trained athlete.

These methods of reducing are neither desirable nor necessary. I am glad, therefore, to be able to tell my readers about a system of reducing that is sure, pleasant and safe. It is called the Harvin System and was devised by experts in weight reduction.

It is so simple that many of you may doubt that it will take off the excess pounds, but let me assure you it will. And not only will it bring you down to your normal weight—it will keep you there.

The Harvin System, which is obtainable at consists of Harvin Salts and the Harvin Plan.

DOW DRUG STORES

The Salts are a combination of various salts of high therapeutic value, so delightfully flavored that they are as pleasant to take as an after-dinner mint.

The Harvin Plan is a blessing to fat people, for it denies them practically nothing. It allows them to have the foods that are usually barred—pies, cakes, cookies, wheat cakes.

I should like my readers who are overweight to try the Harvin System for a few short weeks. I am sure that they will be delighted with the improvement, not only in their figures, but in their general health as well. Margaret Murray—Harvin Products, New York.

A bride is going to wear her mother's wedding dress at her marriage ceremony this evening. The bride who'll wear this quaint gown of ivory satin, fashioned with a basque waist, a lace yoke and sleeves of lace with puffs of satin at the shoulder, and a train, of course, will be Katherine Elizabeth Stewart.

Katherine, who's the daughter of the George Cope Stewarts, of Butler, will wed Porter Sawyer Kier, Jr., son of Mrs. Porter Sawyer Kier, of Darlington road, this evening at 6:30 o'clock in the Stewart home.

The bride will have a tulle veil and a diminutive face veil, fastened in back with a cluster of orange blossoms. She'll carry white roses, lilies of the valley and bouvardia. Her father will give her in marriage.

Officiating will be the Rev. Dr. Hugh Meade, of Pittsburgh, assisted by the Rev. Jesse K. Brennan, of Butler.

Her maid of honor will appear in a chartreuse green crepe gown having summer ermine as sleeve decoration, and the bridesmaids, Mrs. John Henry, Mary Louise Miller and Mrs. E. Alexander Hill, Jr., all of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. George Walter Johnson, of New Castle, will wear eggshell crepe gowns having bell-shaped sleeves trimmed with three bands of bronze beading.

Green Gown

The maid of honor will carry talisman roses and pompon chrysanthemums and African daisies, and the bridesmaids will carry evening glo roses, and African daisies and pompon chrysanthemums in lighter tones than those in the bouquet of the maid of honor.

The mother of the bride has chosen a gown of snapdragon pink, and the mother of the bridegroom, white lace. Both will have corsages of orchids.

John Howland, of Worcester, Mass., will be best man, and Samuel S Scott, William Wolfe and E. Alexander Hill, Jr., all of Pittsburgh, and Kenneth Page, of Chicago, will be ushers.

Men in Party

After a reception and informal supper for 75 guests, the bride and bridegroom will leave for New York, from where they'll sail tomorrow for Nassau and Havana.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester and of Vassar. I might add, and the bridegroom of Shady Side and Dartmouth.

The Pittsburgh Morning Lecture Series will open January 12. Just who the speaker will be I'll have to tell you later. Beginning with that date, there'll be a lecture every Thursday morning at the Nixon.

* * *

Among the many who'll entertain parties at the benefit supperdance and bridge party, which the West Penn Cot Club is giving tonight in Longue Vue Country Club, will be Virginia Johnston, Mrs. Harrison Gleason, Jr., and Mrs. Theodore F. Smith.

* * *

Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman, of Bellefield avenue, who returned recently from abroad, spent a few days in New York, accompanied by her son, Harold Boyd Hershman. Mr. Hershman left last evening for his home in Pasadena, Cal. Mrs. Hershman will leave shortly for Los Angeles.

Frances Jenkins Names Wedding Attendants

Miss Frances Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Jenkins, of Manhattan street, North Side, announces her bridal party. Her marriage to Peter Beattis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Casimer Beattis, of Wickliss street, will be an event of Thanksgiving morning, at 9 o'clock, in the Church of the Ascension. There will be a breakfast and reception in the Jenkins home later.

Miss Jenkins has chosen her sister, Miss Helen Jenkins, to be her maid of honor, and as bridesmaids, Miss Peggy Ryce and Miss Katherine Aleks. Raymond McKinney will be the best man and serving as ushers will be John Betant and Francis Schroeder. Mr. Beattis and his bride plan to reside in Pittsburgh after a wedding trip.

International Trends Discussed at 'Y' Dinner

Among the "International Trends in Japan" mentioned last night at the East Liberty Y. W. C. A. world fellowship dinner by Miss Carolyn Marsh was the Japanese woman's peace movement. Suffrage, labor legislation, the development of social life for women and the opening of the universities to women were other "trends" discussed most entertainingly by the speaker. About 100 girls and women attended the dinner, for which there were some lovely decorations, chief of which were articles brought from Japan by Miss Blanche Best and Miss Marsh.

Mrs. Robert L. Shuler read and sang, with Miss Henrietta Feller accompanying. World fellowship week will close with vesper service at 4 o'clock Sunday, when Dr. Sam Higginbottom, of India, will speak and Mrs. Thomas K. Cree will sing.

Miss Lavenia Bergman To Wed on Thanksgiving

Miss Lavenia Bergman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Bergman, of Orchard avenue, Bellevue, whose marriage to Raymond Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Smith, of Crafton, takes place Thanksgiving Day, plans a small wedding in the Church of the Assumption, Bellevue. She will be attended by only her sister, Miss Frances Bergman, and John Lambing Smith will be his brother's best man.

A number of parties have been given honoring the bride-elect among which were a bridge party given by her mother and another by her sister.

Epoch Club Hears Talk On Traditional Home

Mrs. Charles Orchard's splendid paper on "The Passing of the Traditional Home" brought many delightful and amusing memories from the other members of the Epoch Club yesterday morning. Mrs. Henry D. James, of Locust street, Edgewood, was hostess. "Transitions in Social Life" was the day's general topic under which Mrs. William E. Elliott discussed "characteristics and Tempo of Modern Society" and Mrs. Harry C. Loudenbeck, "Women in Industrial and Professional Life."

Ellis Alumnae Pledge Hospital Fund Money

Juniors of Wilkinsburg To Give Washington Program Monday

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Wilkinsburg Juniors will spend Monday evening with George and Martha Washington by means of a bicentennial program. One feature of the evening will be an hour of music with Nellie Custis, directed by Miss Esther Wilt, during which several members in colonial costume will sing the songs of that day. Miss Elizabeth Storer will accompany the singers.

A talk by Mrs. Robert L. Hackett on "At Home With Washington" will be another contribution of interest, as will a playlet given by Wilkinsburg High School students under the direction of Miss Charlotte McMurray and a book review by Miss Mildred Gilchrist.

Some especially interesting antiques will be assembled for an exhibit, among them being a doll that is 100 years old, a handwoven tablecloth, old glassware, luster ware, coins, samplers and furniture.

Hostesses for the meeting, which will be held in the Y. W. C. A., will be Mrs. J. G. McRoberts, Mrs. H. L. Edwards, Mrs. D. A. Enelx, Mrs. E. G. Flint, Miss Gilchrist and Miss Alice McQuiston.

ORIGINAL COLOR COMBINATIONS ASSUME A NEW IMPORTANCE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Probably never before have color combinations been so important in Paris fashions as they are right now. Not that there are more combinations than usual—although some houses show hardly a frock that does not show at least two colors—but in the original way that color is being used.

* * *

THERE ARE, in general, two types of color plans; the one a repetition of double colors, such as a tweed coat in multicolor, with hat, gloves and bag which all repeat two or three of the tweed colors; the other a solid-color dress, coat or suit, contrasting accents in shoes, hat or bag.

* * *

THERE IS, for example, the type of costume which is all-black or all-brown, and which is worn with light-colored furs, hat and gloves. The grege hat, at the top of today's sketches, is designed for just such a costume; it is all one color—not a touch of contrast mars the smooth satin-like surface of the felt which makes brim, crown, trimming plait at the front, and all. It is worn with a grege fox.

* * *

THE HAT below, sketched at two angles, is, on the contrary, a mixture of colors—brown, red and beige—to be worn with a brown dress with red and beige trimmings. The hat itself is of brown felt, with the tufts of feathers at the front combining beige and red. Both are models from Henriot.

* * *

THE SHOE sketched is one of the American fashions to be adopted in the French capital—oxford variation, tying on instep, and with the back coming up to a distinct point up the back of the leg. It is done by Cecil, in blue kid with blue lizard trimming.

800 See Tom Thumb Wedding in Church

Nearly 800 persons witnessed the Tom Thumb wedding which was staged last night in the high school auditorium by the Mother's Club of Carrick and which will be repeated tonight. The wedding party and vested choir numbered 130, among these being many "distinguished guests." Little Carol Gene Miller was the bride and "Sonny" Weitzel, the bridegroom. Mrs. H. H. Parker, president of the club, saw herself in miniature in the person of her little niece, Helen Kerr, who wore a gown of exactly the same material and model. Another niece, Betty Kerr McQuaide, impersonated Maurice Chevalier. Howard Peters, in sheet and glasses, was Mahatma Gandhi and Frank Williams was Mussolini. Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were impersonated by Billy Johnston and Harriet Waters.

Taylor Allerdice Musicale Tonight

A group of students of Taylor Allderdice High School will give a musical program tonight in the auditorium of the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind, Bellefield avenue, under auspices of the Holmes-Schenley Literary Society. Friends of both schools are invited.

Modern Literature Savage, Says Noyes

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Art and literature of today are "savage and brutal," Alfred Noyes, British poet told last night's closing session of the conference of universities.

Nullify Indictment Of Ex-Harding Aide

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(INS.)—The District of Columbia Supreme Court today nolle prossed all the remaining indictments in the case of the F. H. Smith Company, a real estate concern with headquarters in New York City.

The indictments were returned against Dan R. Crissinger, comptroller of currency in the Harding administration; former Representative Fred N. Zihlman, of Maryland, and others. G. Bryan Pitts, former head of the company, is now serving a sentence of 14 years in prison.

Two Drys Cleared In Rum Smuggling

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—State Prohibition Inspector Hubbard F. Nelson and Coast Guardsman Chester D. Robbins, were acquitted by a jury in federal court here today of the charge of conspiracy to smuggle whisky into the United States.

The case grew out of the running aground of the schooner Hammit L. Robbins off Willis wharf, Northampton County, early in February, 1931, with a cargo of 2,000 cases of whisky aboard.

Church Forgives Returned Pastor

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Complaints against the Rev. Sigismund Laky, pastor of the Hungarian Evangelical Church here, who recently disappeared and was found two days later in Trenton, N. J., were held "not sustained" by the Mahoning Presbytery. The complaints were not revealed.

The pastor said he was unable to remember details of his trip. Physicians said his illness was due to worry over the church.

Dance Society Holds Convention Sunday

The annual fall convention of the Pittsburgh Society for the Improvement of Dancing will be held Sunday evening at McDougall's Crystal Ballroom, Shady and Penn avenues. Novelty, tap and ballet ballroom dancing will feature the program.

H. M. Robb, president, and Camille Carey, secretary, are in charge of the convention.

Cooks Lose Food Values, Says Expert

Millions of Americans consume food that in preparation is deprived of nutrition vital to health, P. S. Chambers, president of the Food Chemistry Corporation, told the Kiwanis Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday. After the boiling of vegetables, he said, the water is thrown away. The water, he asserted, is especially rich in mineral elements and has food value that should not be lost.

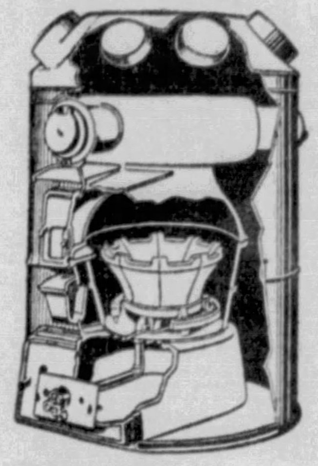
There's No Work or Bother to Househeating if You Use Gas Heat . . . . . .

The work and bother of furnace tending is entirely removed when you use gas heat . . . No ashes to remove—no soot and dirt to clean up . . . And a constant, even temperature is easily maintained at the turn of a valve. This remarkable convenience is now offered to you without the necessity of purchasing a gas burner.



You Can Rent the TAPPAN Gas Burner

We install this efficient Tappan Gas Burner in your present furnace and you pay only $2.00 per month . . . No down payment—no obligation whatever . . . However, at the end of 18 months, after a total of $36.00 has been paid, even this $2.00 charge is dropped and the burner is yours.

The Tappan Burner is easily installed in warm air furnaces having 20" to 22" fire pots and steam or hot water boilers 18" to 20" in diameter . . . Makes gas heating in the Fall and Spring months decidedly economical.

This Burner is Designed for the Average Five or Six Room House

New Beauty for Your Old Fireplace . . . . .

No matter in what condition your old fireplace is now, it can be remodeled with this nontarnishing Stainless Steel Humphrey Insert-Panel and Radiantfire . . . It will cover whatever defects there are, and lend new beauty to the entire living room . . . Then too, you'll find it mighty useful these cool mornings and evenings.

CIPHER OFFERS BRAIN EXERCISE

Now for Cipher No. 12.

It should keep even the experts guessing for about 59 minutes. Others, who have just started the interesting pastime of deciphering ciphers probably will be a bit troubled.

However, the brain exercise will be good—a means of properly ending the week.

A bit of a tip will be given tomorrow. But the Cipher Editor hopes you won't need it.

Try No. 12, "Bogie," 59 minutes.

Six Detours to Be Put on Highways

Six detours will be placed on the main highway system in this district in the next few days, it was announced by the Pittsburgh Motor Club.

Two sections of Route 80 between Sardis and Saltsburg will be closed. The detours are 13 and six miles long. Route 288 will be closed between Zelienople and the Beaver County line. Other detours are on Routes 88, 27 and 21.

ACCUSE BANKER AS EMBEZZLER

ROCHESTER, Pa., Nov. 18.—Elmer J. Mengel, 52, of Freedom secretary-treasurer of the Rochester Trust Company, is held under bond on a technical charge of embezzlement.

J. D. Swigert, chief state bank examiner, said defalcations with which Mengel is charged would reach $20,000 and covered a period of years. Swigert said Mengel's bond would amply protect the bank and that it would operate as usual.

A director of the bank said Mengel had been under technical arrest since November 2, when a shortage in his accounts was revealed. Mengel, according to the director, made a written statement at the time, saying he did not know how the funds were spent.

Bank directors announced Charles E. Ruth had been made secretary-treasurer and Henry E. Kirk, Bellevue, assistant.

WELFARE CAMPAIGN EXTENSION SEEN AS GIFTS LAG

DOUGLAS SEEKS WHARF FEE PAYMENT

'Acts for City' in Action Against Dock Users

An effort to compel complete enforcement of an ordinance providing collection of city wharf fees from practically all boats operating in the Pittsburgh harbor is being made by John Douglas, Jr., acting as a private citizen.

Douglas declares his action, which already has resulted in warrants being served on the representatives of four sand companies, is on behalf of the city.

BENNER DUBIOUS

Assistant City Solicitor T. M. Benner has expressed a doubt whether a private citizen has a right to bring a suit in behalf of the city.

Douglas has filed information before Alderman Thomas Flanigan against George S. Vang, of the Iron City Sand Company, C. C. Patterson, of the Pittsburgh Gravel Company, and Alex. W. Dann, of the Keystone Sand Company, and the Inland Rivers Wharf Company, and warrants have been served.

A hearing has been set for Vang for tomorrow at 11 a. m.; for Patterson, next Tuesday, and for Dann, November 25.

Douglas asserts the companies involved have not paid the wharf fees fixed by the ordinance of 1911, which sets annual payments for all types of boats and provides that violators be subject to a penalty not less than $5 a day for the period of the infraction.

A strict accounting would show that the city should receive more than $500,000 in penalties from the companies operating on the local rivers, Douglas declares.

WILD CARGO

By FRANK BUCK

With EDWARD ANTHONY

CHAPTER XXXII.

Unlike other cases I knew of where natives were in similar circumstances, Lal did not grow delirious. He kept repeating "Master, I think I die," but he had a complete awareness of what was going on.

When I asked him a question he would give me a rational answer and then begin sobbing once more, "Master, I think I die. Master, I think I die."

Needless to say, I kept telling him he was talking nonsense, although, when his arm turned black, I secretly agreed with him.

Now that the permanganate crystals were doing their work, I began the process of removing the tourniquet. I started by gradually easing it up, and then I took it off entirely.

Late that night I gave the boy a good dose of quinine. I knew it would help his morale if I sat up all night with him—and this I did, dozing off occasionally in a chair.

Several times during the night the boy complained of a terrific pain in his arm and of a stiffness that had set in. I told him that was a good sign, that it meant he was getting better. Of course, I hadn't the faintest idea what it meant. But this was no time for making such admissions. If I had any idea at all it was that Lal Behudar, the best Hindu boy I had ever employed, was dying.

BOY RECOVERS

At daybreak I gave the boy another sizable dose of quinine. The pain and the stiffness seemed to be letting up, and I took it as a good sign when he dozed off for an hour or so.

By 6 o'clock that morning, to my astonishment, the blackness had gone out of the shoulder and normal healthy color was gradually working down the arm. I took the boy's temperature and my amazement continued when I discovered that it had dropped to 99.5 degrees.

I began to feel for the first time that Lal was getting better. The most reassuring sign was that there had been no convulsions. If there were to be any they would have set in by now, and I was genuinely happy as I realized that the boy who had served me faithfully over so long a period of time was probably out of the woods at last.

Late that afternoon the boy's temperature dropped some more. It was now only slightly above normal and his entire arm had resumed normal color.

Three days after the accident the boy was out working with me again. I tried to get him to rest for a few days but he wouldn't hear of it. He felt well again, he assured me, and insisted on working. As a matter of fact, he was still pretty weak, but he was so overjoyed to know that he was not going to die that work—even in his rundown state—meant nothing to him. I saw to it that he did not exert himself until his strength had fully returned.

A GRATEFUL SERVANT

After this occurrence Lal would follow me anywhere. There was no task, no matter how dangerous, that he did not cheerfully perform. If the master was willing to take the risk, why should he, Lal, hesitate? That was his guiding principle.

I always felt that Lal gave me too much credit. All my efforts would have availed naught if he had been in a rundown condition. An anemic, Lal would have succumbed sure as fate.

Well, that was that. Zoologically, the experience had one unfortunate aspect. That hog-badger eluded me and I was never able to get another one.

On many occasions I have had to do first-aid work on myself, sometimes with the assistance of others. I have no intention of enumerating all these cases. But perhaps you'd like to hear about one that managed to become fairly amusing. It was also

SEEK PAYMENT FOR HALL SITE

In a demurrer filed in Common Pleas Court the Schenley Farms Company asserts a court order should be directing the County Commissioners to pay the company its claim of more than $1,400,000 for Oakland town hall site.

It is further held that the answer of the County Commissioners to the mandamus suit against them and other county officials, brought by the Schenley Farms Company to compel payment, is insufficient in law. F. F. Nicola, who as president of the company signed the demurrer, declares the answer is immaterial and is not specific.

In their answer the County Commissioners cited the present board had rescinded the hall site purchase. They denied the Schenley Farms Company owned a fee title to the property, but said it was encumbered by six liens and mortgages. They contended that Nicola, president of the company, had no authority to execute the contract of the former board of commissioners.

500 Manufacturers' Executives Banquet

Five hundred persons attended the sixteenth annual banquet of the Pittsburgh Association of Manufacturers' Representatives last night in the Hotel Schenley, at which executives of wholesale grocery companies and chain stores were honor guests. Speakers included State Senator Frank J. Harris, President Charles A. Kolb, Harry Mulholland and Con McCole, of New York.

Will Makes Niece Chief Beneficiary

Mrs. Charles McLean Moss, niece and adopted daughter of Ida E. Keen, formerly of Chicago, whose will has been filed here for probate, is the principal beneficiary in a $40,000 estate. Mrs. Moss, who formerly lived at 413 Lloyd street, but is now in Lakewood, O., will receive $800 a year from the estate left in trust with a Chicago company.

Denies Husband's Charge of Cruelty

Helen J. Hoffman, 1329 Maryland avenue, Johnstown, in an answer to the divorce suit of her husband, Lawrence R. Hoffman, Murrayhill avenue, Cheswick, denies his charge of cruelty. She declares Hoffman, an automobile mechanic, deserted her March 17, 1928.

SPEEDS TO BUY 18 SUITS

Charlie Ruggles will fly thousands of miles from Hollywood to his tailor in Philadelphia, but when he gets cold on the way he must thaw out.

Charlie terminated a plane trip from the coast here yesterday. He stopped just long enough to thaw out in a hot tub at the William Penn Hotel and boarded a train for Philadelphia. He was expecting to be measured for 18 suits today by the tailor who has served him a dozen years.

Once thawed, Ruggles reversed an interview by popping questions at a reporter:

"How did you know I'm here? How's Pittsburgh? How are Pittsburgh theaters? Let's see, how long since I played in a road show here?"

Ruggles ran out of questions. He got hearty laughs telling of movie lot experiences. Drunken reporter roles are taboo henceforth, he said, because he doesn't want to become a type. Was there fun filming "If I Had a Million?" With a sweep of a cane, a china shop was wrecked. He regretted there was not enough chinaware to stage a rehearsal.

A two weeks' vacation and back to work.

EX-ASSESSORS IN FIGHT FOR 'BACK PAY'

$25,000 Demanded by 120 Men Dismissed By County

Dismissed county tax assessors—120 of them—prepared to take legal action today to collect three weeks' back wages which they contend the county owes them.

The former assessors, who were dismissed last September, contend their wages were cut in half by the old Board of County Commissioners for November and part of December in 1931.

In November, 1931, when the appropriation funds ran low, the dismissed assessors agreed, they said, to work unpaid until such time as the Commissioners could find salary funds.

The Commissioners acquiesced, and the assessors worked as usual, receiving only half pay for a period of about six weeks. The back pay which they say is due them totals approximately $20,000.

The problem of obtaining the balance they claim was discussed at a meeting last night in the Monongahela House auditorium. A majority attended.

A committee was elected and authorized to negotiate with the present Board of Commissioners and to appoint an attorney if necessary to take legal measures to collect.

The committee includes Thomas Ford, chairman; P. J. Fallon, Arthur Kennedy, John H. Wade and F. J. Kirkland.

Name Bishop Boyle To Welfare Group

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle was named to the administrative committee of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, at a session in Washington, according to a dispatch from that city. Archbishops and bishops attended the two-day meeting.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Nov. 18.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

Well, the old propoganda is working, boys. Every night over the radio or in big lengthy editorials it keeps on saying, "What are you going to do? You can't collect, we have got to make some different terms."

Will Rogers

One message of three words will make every nation in Europe dig it up and send it over by plane, they would be in such a hurry to get it here. "Pay or default." There is not a country in the world that would dare default. It would spoil their credit, they couldn't borrow any money any more. England will pay you every dollar they promised, you can go bet your cent on that. And France is five times more able to pay than England, but a Frenchman is not an Englishman. You can see the whole thing is a frame-up, by 'em all "ganging" in with their protests at once. Yours, WILL.

2 GIRLS KILLED AS AUTO HITS ABUTMENT

Third Hurt Seriously Near Kittanning; Driver Held

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Police today investigated an automobile accident last night in which two girls were killed and one seriously injured as the car in which they were passengers crashed into a concrete abutment near Kittanning.

The dead are Mildred McCollough, 22, of Kittanning, and Ruth Davis, 18, of Slate Lake. Catherine Taylor, 16, of Kittanning, was injured.

N. P. Serianni, of Butler, driver of the car, said he was blinded by the lights of an approaching machine. He was detained by police pending the outcome of the investigation.

1 HURT, 4 HELD AFTER PARTY

A party at 828 Saw Mill way, North Side, ended in the injury of one man and the arrest of four persons when Simon Wypolovitch, 57, of the Saw Mill way address, is alleged to have made advances toward Anna Slumber, 35, of 834 Saw Mill way.

The Slumber woman told police she hit Wypolivitch on the head with a bottle. He was taken to Allegheny General Hospital suffering from a probable fracture of the skull. Police said Wypolivitch had $200 in old issue paper money wrapped around his leg in a silk handkerchief.

Police were summoned after Walter Sharkey, 29, of 2102 Forbes street, a friend of the injured man, found him unconscious. Sharkey, the Slumber woman, Anna Bobinsky, 46, of 1910 Harkins way, and Stanley Macelivas, 42, also of 828 Saw Mill way, were taken into custody on a suspicious person charge. Other guests who left before the arrival of police are being sought.

Thieves Enter Four South Side Stores

South Side police today were seeking thieves who entered four carson street stores last night by breaking windows. They took clothing from the store of William Berstein, and $20 and a topcoat from the drug store of Andrew Kobelak. They entered but took nothing from Robert Lee's drug store and the Pittsburgh Mercantile Store.

2 Slightly Injured When Auto Upsets

Overturning of the auto of Romeo Brandy, 36, of 471 Oliffe street, at the Big Bend, in the West End, halted traffic in Noblestown road this morning until the car was removed.

Brandy and his passenger, Lou Gagalirado, 38, of 38 Lelia street, were slightly injured.

Gas Victim

KATHERINE HALEY — Miss Katherine, 18, one of the six—three of them young children—overcome by gas fumes in their home at 852 East Ohio street. They were taken to Allegheny General Hospital for treatment. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

GAS OVERCOMES SIX IN HOME

Six persons overcome by gas fumes in their home on the second floor of 852 East Ohio street late yesterday were reported recovering today.

Those overcome were Mrs. Alice Altdorfer, 25; her sons, David, 6, and John, 4; her daughter, Helen 2, and her sisters, Catherine and Anna Haley. They were found by August Kletke, of 34 Fornoff street, Millvale, who was unable to get response when he knocked on the door. Kletke summoned an occupant of the third floor and they forced an entrance.

David Altdorfer, found unconscious, was revived by police with an inhalator and then taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

Property Tax Topic Of Citizens' Group

The citizens' committee appointed by City Council to suggest new sources of revenue met last night with Chief Assessor Thomas C. McMahon to discuss assessments on real estate. One of the purposes for which the committee was formed was the relief of real estate from some of its tax burden.

Held Up by Hiker, Walks Three Miles

D. J. Finn, of 114 Kearsage street, reported to county detectives that an unidentified hitchhiker whom he picked up early today in the Steubenville pike, robbed him of $21, a diamond ring and drove away with his car. Finn walked three miles to Crafton and boarded a trolley for the detective bureau.

LARGE DONORS TO HEAR NEW APPEAL

Re-canvass Proposed; Unlikely to Reach Goal Next Week

Extension of the Welfare Fund campaign for its budgeted $2,500,000 expenses during 1933 was seen today as subscriptions slowed.

Continuation of the drive was being considered by campaign leaders. It was learned that, while success is anticipated following the extension, hope of meeting their goal within the original time limit of November 23—the day before Thanksgiving—was rapidly fading.

Re-canvass of large givers will be included on the extension schedule; it was learned, on the theory that many have failed to donate in sufficiently generous proportions.

LARGER GIFTS SOUGHT

Meanwhile, reports of new contributions made yesterday showed M. L. Benedum, oil magnate, heading the list with a gift of $25,000. The total of 1,120 new pledges announced was set at $77,736.

Study of the totals announced by the campaign organization shows that large donors have given so far the greatest support to the campaign.

Of a total of $1,366,152 collected, gifts of more than $100 have accounted for $1,192,606. However, the bulk of small subscriptions has yet to be reported and is expected to swell the total reported to date.

At the opening of the campaign it was learned that only about $1,500,000 was expected from the large-gift group. It became evident that the full number and amount of expected small contributions would be necessary to the success of the campaign.

APPLICANTS INCREASE

Meanwhile, the Welfare Fund announced that during the first 16 days in November new applicants for relief from the Family Welfare Association averaged more than 170 families each day. Of these, approximately 54 were families returning to relief after a short period of self support.

The association was reported swamped with new applications for relief since arrival of colder weather.

At yesterday's report luncheon, State Senator Frank J. Harris told the workers Allegheny County must prove it has done everything possible to help the situation before it can look for further aid

HIT-RUN WRECK SUSPECT HELD

T. W. Spadd, 35, of 2036 Red Rose street, Carrick, was under arrest in Mt. Oliver today as an alleged hit-run driver of an automobile that wrecked a parked automobile at 531 Brownsville road.

After the crash Spadd sped away, police said. He was arrested later in Becks Run road by Pittsburgh police upon description broadcast by the Pittsburgh police radio. The automobile was stained with blood, police said, but no trace of an injured person could be found. Spadd was not hurt.

Auto Victim's Widow Gets $10,000 Award

Mrs. Mabel J. Walker, of Fairfield, Ia., won a verdict of $10,000 against Jack Siegals, of New York, whose automobile killed her husband, Charles E. Walker, February 23, 1930.

The case was tried before Judge W. Heber Dithrich. The accident occurred at Baum boulevard and South Beatty street. Siegals was here on business at the time.

Veterans Escort Cronkhite to Train

War Debt Game Is Hop, Skip and Jump Payments

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

We knew these countries would agree some time. But we didn't think we would be the victims.

The result is hop, skip and jump finance. They hopped up the borrowing, they're going to skip the interest and jump the principal.

We don't know much about finance, but we do know that moratoriums are a new form of collateral.

The next payment is set for December 15. And with Europe groaning, weeping and suffering, we don't want to postpone the happy day.

ECONOMY PLOT BY RICH SEEN BY LEGION

A charge that the National Economy League was organized by wealthy interests and big income taxpayers in an effort to transfer the cost of care for disabled war veterans from federal to local taxing bodies was made today by the Allegheny County Committee of the American Legion.

A sub-committee, of which Ronald L. Thompson is chairman, and which was appointed to investigate activities of the Economy League, issued a statement alleging that if the league achieves its goal, disabled veterans no longer will be cared for by the federal government, but instead will be thrown upon local taxpayers for support.

LEAGUE'S STAND

National officers of the Economy League, including Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, asserted here Monday that the primary object of the league is not to defeat veterans' legislation, but rather to obtain a reduction of all government costs, federal, state and local. The league officials added that they favored thorough care for veterans injured in the war, but were opposed to caring for men injured while civilians since the war.

The Legion committee said regarding these statements:

"The only concrete suggestion the National Economy League has made for reduction of government costs is to reduce present appropriations made for the care of disabled veterans. Officials of the league tell us that we must work out our own means for reducing local government costs—they have no program other than to remove from the federal appropriations the funds due the veterans."

CHALLENGE BYRD

The statement challenged Admiral Byrd's assertion that the nation's total tax bill amounts to $15,000,000,000 a year, and added:

"The National Industrial Conference Board of New York City in March, 1932, estimated the total tax bill at $10,266,000,000. The board estimated the total of federal taxes at $4,905,000,000 in 1921, while in 1930 federal taxes had been reduced to $3,468,000,000. Federal taxes in 1921 amounted to 55.5 per cent of the nation's total tax bill, while in 1930 federal taxes were only 33.8 per cent of the total. Meanwhile in this period, state and local taxes had increased, state taxes from 8.9 to 17.3 per cent of the total tax bill, while local taxes increased from 35.6 to 48.9 per cent.

"This means that federal taxation decreased by $1,437,000,000 during the 10-year period, while state and local taxes were increasing enormously by $2,865,000,000.

CHARGE PLOT BY RICH

"Wealthy interests and big income taxpayers have organized the National Economy League in an effort to further reduce federal government costs, a great part of which falls upon them. The easiest means they find is to eliminate from the federal budget funds provided for disabled veterans.

"A statement of the United States Treasury Department shows these interests to be a great source of federal income. This statement shows that of 4,070,000 persons who paid federal income taxes for 1928, 42,000, or only 1 per cent of the total, paid 80 per cent of the total income tax collected. These 42,000 persons had an average income of $150,000 a year.

"This is the group that is carrying the burden of the veterans' legislation. Members of this group, through the National Economy League, are endeavoring to enlist public sentiment behind a movement to reduce this burden, throwing up a smoke screen and conducting a fear campaign to hide their real intention—to remove the support of disabled veterans from their shoulders to the shoulders of local taxpayers."

ACCUSED ON WAR DEBTS

"The Treasury Department has estimated that had these debts been refunded at the rate of interest paid on Liberty Loans (4½ per cent) the total sum would amount in principal and interest to $32,848,000,000, which is more than $10,000,000,000 greater than the past, present and future cost, estimated by the Economy League, of World War veterans by 1945.

"This wealthy group behind the National Economy League therefore would cancel the war debts at the expense of the disabled American war veterans for the benefit of international bankers.

"The National Economy League accuses the veterans of abuses through political means at the expense of the taxpayer. At its last national convention, the American Legion appointed a committee to investigate all veterans' legislation and recommend removal therefrom of any inequalities.

"The veterans stand ready 100 per cent to co-operate with the National Economy League in an honest effort to reduce government costs, but the measures they propose will merely transfer the care of the veterans from the shoulders of the select few to the backs of the local taxpayers."

TOY LECTURES BEGIN MONDAY

There's more behind such a query than most people think. As they will learn by attending a program of lectures, sponsored by the Pittsburgh Council of Parent Education, on toys, children's clothing, and books, at Kaufmann's Store, November 21-23.

The lectures, delivered by prominent Pittsburgh child educators, will deal chiefly with the educational aspects of play.

Starting with the problem of children as young as two years, the lecturers will discuss methods of best developing the primary perception, of color, form, manipulation, sense of balance, and imagination, by the correct use of toys.

How Coughs and Colds Yield to Creosote

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

WILD CARGO

By FRANK BUCK

painful, but the humorous note predominated.

I was on my way back to America with a big collection of birds, among them a number of cranes and storks. These long-legged birds fare poorly in close quarters. Their legs get banged up and in general they do not thrive.

With the co-operation of the captain and the mate, I got the ship's carpenter to fence in a hatch—a sizeable one that measured about 16 feet by 12 feet. "Chips" got a lot of dunnage boards out of the hold and soon we had a fence about seven feet high around the hatch (which was raised off the deck about 18 inches). To keep our feathered cargo from flying off, we covered the top of our improvised pen with one of the ship's rope cargo nets.

BEAUTIFUL BIRDS

It was a fine assortment of waders that I turned loose in that pen—Indian saurus cranes, Tibetan snow cranes, demoiselle cranes, common white storks, adjutant storks and Indian black-head storks. This latter bird is the most powerful member of the stork family. It is also the handsomest.

It stands almost five feet high. The body is white, the wings and neck glossy black, and the legs bright red. It has an enormous horn-colored beak—the strongest beak to be found in either the stork or the crane family. Where it joins the head this beak is about two and a half inches in diameter, its foot and a half length tapering down at the end to a point of bayonet sharpness.

Many a fish and small animal that frequents the Asiatic marshes has found this beak of the black-headed stork a deadly weapon. Many a snake has also been speared by one of these daggers with an appalling suddenness.

Altogether I had about 35 storks and cranes in my improvised pen. Before I turned them loose in it I covered the floor with straw, which had to be changed regularly to keep the birds clean and comfortable.

As I passed this stork and crane house one afternoon after a heavy rain I noticed that the straw was in very bad shape. It had to be changed at once. I was so anxious to get it done that I volunteered to help Lal, who accompanied me on the trip. My other boys were busy elsewhere, and I decided to let them continue at their tasks. Lal and I could do the job in short order.

INJURED BY STORK

The pen was so crowded with birds that there was no point in trying to work with a rake or a pitchfork. The thing to do was to put on work gloves and scoop up the straw with our hands.

Lal and I got busy at once. We were cleaning out the thick straw at a great rate. As I leaned over to scoop up what must have been my tenth armload I felt myself being suddenly and painfully jabbed from behind. It was as if someone had dug an enormous darning needle into my posterior.

I'm afraid I uttered an obscene version of the familiar comic-strip "Ouch!"

The fact that the captain and the mate were standing on the deck above and looking down (gleefully, I'm afraid) at the proceedings below makes it possible for me to give you a first-hand report. They gave me the facts afterwards.

It seems that as I was leaning over to scoop up a mess of the unclean straw one of my black-headed storks suddenly dug his beak into my pathetically unprotected back. It wasn't quite fair. I'm told that I jumped...

Then began the process of administering first-aid to the wounded animal collector. It wasn't a serious case, but storks aren't careful about sousing their bills in antiseptics. . . . Plenty of iodine was applied with no ill effects. The animal collector recovered and all was well once more.

SPAN LEAPER'S BODY FOUND

The body of a man taken from the Monongahela River at the Glenwood Bridge today was identified as that of Theodore E. Webb, of 1122 Greenfield avenue, who was reported to have jumped from Brown's Bridge November 3.

Webb's father, Benjamin Webb, who made the identification, said he was not satisfied the young man leaped into the river intentionally, and an autopsy was ordered.

The autopsy, according to Deputy Coroner James R. Dunlay, showed no marks of violence on the body and, according to Dr. J. W. McMeans, death was due to drowning.

FREE HAIRCUTS FAIL TO LURE

Cut-rate barbers reduced their prices to 25 cents per cut, so the barbers at Joseph Marmarosa's shop, 6342 Frankstown avenue, said they would trim the locks of all comers for nothing until the price cutters boosted their charge back to 50 cents. Marmarosa's shop is being operated by the Barbers' Union.

You might think that Marmarosa's shop would be swamped by seekers of free haircuts, but not so. The move, it is said, only served to advertise a nearby cut-rate shop, and patrons approving the 25-cent price flocked there instead.

LION CUBS PART OF 'QUAIL HUNT'

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Nov. 18. (AP.)—Denver M. Wright, St. Louis manufacturer, who headed the unsuccessful 'home made' lion hunt in [illegible]sippi County several weeks ago came here last night, supposedly on a quail hunt. He left early today with two small lion cubs which he brought here with him. His destination was unannounced.

In his previous attempt to stage the hunt, Wright carted two nearly full grown lions about South Missouri looking for a place to release them without interference.

He finally let them out on an island in the Mississippi River and went to the mainland to eat lunch. When he returned he found the lions had been killed by a deputy sheriff.

Wright said recently his unfortunate venture had not dulled his eagerness for a lion hunt and that he would try again. The first pair of lions have been mounted and occupy a place in his game den.

Death of Juror Halts Cab Strike Assault Trial

When only 11 jurors took their seats to resume trial of an assault cases in court today, inquiry developed that the twelfth juror, Luther H. Cross, 63, had died last night while listening to the radio in his home, 2318 Los Angeles avenue, Beechview.

The court granted continuance of the trial, that of Tony Pastin, taxi driver, of 11 Sampson street, charged with attacking Charles W. Eiter, 111 Eleanor street, July 29, 1931, during the taxi drivers' strike. Pastin was placed on trial yesterday.

WINNIE FREED FROM BROKER

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Winnie Lightner, boisterous stage and screen comedienne, has won a referee's recommendation for an interlocutory decree of divorce from George Holtrey, wealthy broker, it was learned yesterday. Miss Lightner's counsel said:

"They have decided they are going to remain friends, sharing the affection of Richard (a son of 4) between them, and Mr. Holtrey has discontinued all charges against Roy Del Ruth."

Miss Lightner filed her suit for divorce earlier this year, charging Holtrey with misconduct. He later started a $250,000 action against Del Ruth, director of many of Miss Lightner's pictures, charging alienation of her affections. He and Miss Lightner were married in Chicago February 8, 1924.

In no time at all, my cough stopped; my cold got better; and I have been hitting on all cylinders ever since." R. W. Combs, 6451 Wentworth Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Problem of Unwed Mother Brings Varied Opinions

Has an unmarried mother a right to keep her baby?

Or should she cast it out of her life, to be raised by strangers?

Rose asked. She didn't want to give up her little son, the sweet result of that mad trust and ecstasy which had ended in her betrayal. Headstrong and reckless? Yes, she had been all that. But disaster had sobered her, and the clasp of helpless baby hands had taught her the deeper meaning of life.

"I'll keep him, no matter what anyone says!" she sobbed.

"But you can't!" cried her family, furious and aghast at this added shame. "We've done everything to shield you, but if you keep him around it will disgrace us constantly and advertise your shame. It is your duty to let him go!"

"Is it?" Rose wrote desperately. "Must I give him up? If I do, it will break my heart—kill me."

And we told her to keep him. Today the world is telling us what it thinks of that advice.

ADVISED TO KEEP CHILD

First, there is Mora.

"Keep your baby, Rose," she says. "You went with Love when you had him. Don't be afraid to go with Love again. Only be afraid to not do as your heart directs. There are only a few big things in this world—and motherhood is one.

"Always hold up your head and say that you are just as truly his mother as any wedded wife. You have gone through everything that any woman could to have him. Now hold him, unless you've decided that worldly advantages are more than love, and your position in the world counts more than your position in your son's heart.

"Hold up your head. You can make the grade. And never be ashamed that you had the courage to see through what you began. You went with Love once, a headstrong girl. Go with it maturely now, a wiser, stronger woman. And always, always, say to yourself, and to your son, that there is no such thing on God's green earth as an 'illegitimate' child."

DIFFERENT OPINION

Do you agree with that? Should Rose hold on to him and give him a real chance in life?

Margaret doesn't think so.

"You're all wrong," she begins, "to tell Rose to keep that baby of hers. She should give him up. What chance has he, with no father and no name? It would be far better to let some family take him and give him a break, where people won't point at him or whisper behind his back. That's what Rose has to think of and not what she wants."

Is that your idea? Will Rose be doing her son an injustice if she tries to fight through with him herself. Before you answer, listen to Mary.

"I want to thank you for your answer to Rose," she begins. "And I want to say to her: Don't let your son down. Keep him. He is yours. Life gave him to you, to guide and raise to manhood, just as life gives any mother a child. He is the same as any other child, to grow up and learn to serve life himself. Fight for him.

"You are far more human than your parents, who are afraid of 'what will people say,' and want you to give your own flesh and blood away. I know that thousands of people will agree with me.

CAN GAIN RESPECT

"All this 'disgrace' and 'taboo' business started back in the dark ages, and it's time to lay it away in moth balls, and do some clear thinking on the subject. It'll take a lot of planning and hard work, but that will be your opportunity to serve life and gain the respect of all the people who know you.

"I don't advise any girl to 'love unwisely,' of course. I think it is awfully foolish to do so. But I don't believe that any thinking man or woman will brand Rose's child as a 'disgrace' or turn away from him.

"I've never stood in your shoes, Rose, but a girl chum did, and I helped her see it through. And today her daughter is a young lady and a blessing to her mother, and useful in the world. She is happy. Your little son and you can be the same."

What's your verdict?

Do you believe that Rose should keep her baby; that she can give him a real chance in the world?

Fay King Comments on Breach of Promise Riches

By FAY KING

When a girl sues a rich man for breach of promise the case is usually settled out of court.

Rumors fly fast and furious regarding the sum she has received, and gossip greatly exaggerates it. Naturally she does not deny this, because the more it is thought to be, the more she is flattered.

This prompts her to spend the smaller actual sum in a way that will verify the larger supposed sum.

She will spend a great part of it for adornment to try and capture another wealthy admirer; but to have won a breach of promise suit scares most of them off.

Some scheming fellow will probably win her love and confidence and see that she squanders plenty of the money on him.

Dicky Stifles Jealousy and Comforts Madge

The anger which I feared flashed into Dicky's face at my admission that I had torn up the letter Hugh had sent me when he followed Charles Owen to Philadelphia.

"You tore it up" he repeated, and there was in his tone the old, hot jealousy which any reference to Hugh Grantland brings to his voice. "Why, may I ask? Or perhaps I do not need to ask. I noticed that you repeated only the body of the letter. Probably the salutation and the farewell were too sacredly tender for repetition."

His voice was raucous and ugly, and it aroused me to defiance. I threw up my head and looked at him steadily.

"I expect you to believe me when I tell you that I have repeated to you every word that was in that letter," I said. "There was no salutation, and no farewell or signature save the single letter H. I never have received any letter or card from him with any endearing salutation."

"All right, all right," he answered grudgingly. "But why did you tear it up when you kept the other one?"

"Because it was infinitely more dangerous if I should lose it," I explained patiently. "The one from Lee Chow only retailed a conversation overheard. Hugh's showed that he was trailing them. The letter was shorter, too; easier to memorize than was the conversation."

"Labor of love," commented Dicky with a snarl in his voice, and with a sudden impulse I went over to him and took his coat lapels in my hands.

"Aren't you ashamed of yourself?" I demanded. And then, as I saw no response in his eyes to the smile I had forced to my lips, I went on heatedly:

SOBS IN RELIEF

"At least, can't you bury your displeasure with me until after this suspense is over? Lillian has ten times more reason to be angry with me than you have, but she isn't acting the way you are."

"She ought to boil you in oil," he growled, but something in his tone belied the ferocity of his words, and I was not surprised to see a slow grin twist the corners of his mouth.

"The original Mrs. Fix-it, who has gotten herself into a mess by keeping things to herself," he said. "But I don't believe that if you had told the rest of us about it, we'd have thought of Owen and Brixton kidnaping Marion any more than you did. We'd have figured out the bank angle, too. Why! What the devil?"

For I was clinging to him, sobbing in wild relief at his comforting words.

"I—I—can't help it," I told him. "I've been nearly crazy, thinking—"

"Don't do that," he said, with a laugh in his voice that did more to steady me than any sympathy could have done. "It's dangerous. Besides, we've no surety that Owen and Brixton had anything to do with this. According to your friend Hugh, Brixton's movements are accounted for, and Owen's too—except—Repeat that letter again, will you, please?"

Obediently I recited the contents of the letter. Dicky halted me at the end of the sentence describing Owen's movements.

PLANS AIR TRIP

"Stays in hotel, except for visits to theater in evening and private airport in daytime," he said. "Hm! That's a thought. I wonder where I—"

He broke off short, and with a swift remembrance of my terrible anxiety in the days of the World War, when he was an ace in the flying branch of the service, I caught at his arm.

"Dicky!" I gasped. "You're not going to—"

He looked down at me with a glint of sternness in his eyes.

"Must we go over that again?" he said, and I stopped, as I always do upon the occasions when he flies "to keep his wings from getting rusty," as he says when he returns to me. But I never can get over the terror which possesses me all the time he is gone—a fear that had its origin in the terrible accident he suffered on the Mineola training field, before he went to France.

"No," I said, whipping my courage up, "I won't say a word. But you'll tell me what you're planning, won't you?"

"Of course, when I know myself," he answered. "The first thing, as I see it, is to get in touch with your military boy friend. Did you say you asked him to wire you here?"

"Yes, but if you call him that again I'll—" I began stormily, but Dicky silenced me with a careless but hearty kiss and embrace.

"Don't crab about trifles," he told me. And then, even as we opened the door to return to the living room, Dr. Barnes' voice sounded from the corridor:

"Telegram for you, Mrs. Graham."

Evening gowns or afternoon frocks trimmed with metal tissue or lace should be entirely covered when not in use.

Never throw away cups that have lost their handles. They serve as excellent jelly molds or small pudding basins.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Finding the Setting Trick

Mr. Joseph E. Cain, of Indianapolis, Ind., with Mr. Walter J. Pray, of the same city, recently won the National Contract Pair championship of the American Whist League at Cleveland. One of the hands which contributed to the victory of the pair and gave them the much coveted trophy was the following, which they played defensively against a contract of four hearts. Mr. Cain held the South hand and thus was charged with the burden of the defense, if, indeed, defense was to be found. After considering the matter, he did find a novel defense to defeat the contract, and while in finding it he departed from conventional lines, his play was absolutely sound, because it is not only wise to know the conventions, but it is equally wise to know when to disregard them.

The hand and bidding were:

	♠ 8 6 5 3 ♡ 9 ◇ J 9 5 2 ♣ Q 10 3 2
♠ K Q 9 ♡ Q 10 5 4 ◇ Q 7 4 ♣ A K 8		♠ A J ♡ A J 8 6 3 2 ◇ 10 8 6 ♣ J 7
	♠ 10 7 4 2 ♡ K 7 ◇ A K 3 ♣ 9 6 5 4

Mr. Cain

South—Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 N T	Pass	3 ♡
Pass	4 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

Obviously, in looking at the four hands, four hearts can be made against any defense, as the only necessary losers are two diamonds and one trump. In view of the fact that Mr. Cain felt he could see enough tricks to produce the defensive book in his own hand, he decided that nothing could be lost by a departure from convention in his Opening lead. Hence, even before a card was exposed, he laid the plans which brought about the defeat of the Declarer. Of course, with the Ace-King-3 of the suit, the proper lead was the King, because this lead is hallowed by tradition and conveys information to partner. On this occasion, Mr. Cain could see no harm in, for the moment, deceiving his partner, and chose as his Opening lead not the diamond King, but the diamond Ace.

When the Dummy was spread on the table, in view of East's strong bidding, Mr. Cain was convinced that the only hope of defeating the contract lay in finding 3 diamond tricks.

Fortunately, he had laid a solid ground work for his deceptive plan. He did not follow the Ace of diamonds with the King, but instead played the 3. East, naturally placing North with the King, played a low diamond from Dummy. North played the Knave, which held the trick, and returned the suit. By a shrewd appraisal of the possibilities of defense, Mr. Cain was enabled to defeat the contract. His departure from conventional play was sound. All that a convention of play really means is that it was found the best in the majority of cases. It is up to the good player to find the exceptions that should be made to conventional procedure.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Dealer, vulnerable, bid two no-trump. What response should partner make, holding the following hand:

♠ K ♡ — ◇ K 10 9 8 4 3 ♣ Q 10 8 6 5 4

Answer: Three diamonds. If Dealer then bids three notrump, partner should bid five clubs. The hand is much too freakish to allow it to be played at three notrump.

Glass stoppers in bottles will almost always break off if forced when they are stuck. Wrap a cloth wrung out of hot water around the neck of the bottle and continue these applications until the stopper is released.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Never cut the cuticle at the base of the nail. Nature comes along, makes repairs, builds cuticle that is thick and heavy. The proper procedure is to use cuticle cream, detach the flesh with an orange wood stick.

Eye shadows come in many colors and are more popular every day. Cream products are more convenient than compacts, rub in evenly, don't sprinkle down over the cheeks in a powdery mess. Blonde darlings are going in for purple and brunettes are crazy-wild about a new blue-green. Nifty for the sassy gals who are stepping pretty.

Curls are going up and that's all to the good since a blanket of tendrils on the back of the neck is about as comfortable as a hair shirt on the body, especially in warm weather. Fur collars play havoc with rear ringlets, so they are being put out of the way of damage. To produce the Grecian coiffure, hair should be long enough to twist twice around the iron. The dear old kid curler is being resurrected, performs as a good friend to the gal whose beauty budget isn't exactly and precisely what it was in those dear old days of prosperity.

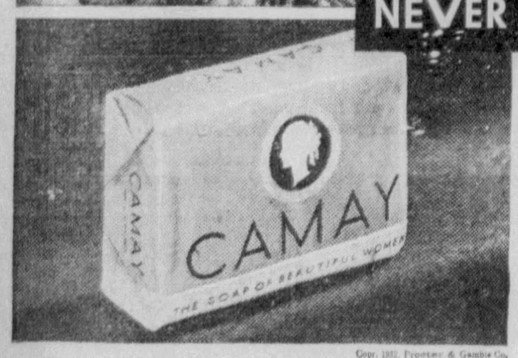
All the Daughters of Eve Against You!

LIFE is a series of victories and defeats—a daily Beauty Contest that never ends—and other women are your keenest rivals. For the winner, life is gay, indeed. For the one who loses, it's dull and drab—drab as we suspect her skin is!

Nature may not have favored you with perfect features. But dull, drab skin is your own look-out! Better look to the soap that you've been using!

One pure, gentle beauty soap keeps your skin soft and exquisite. It's Camay, the Soap of Beautiful Women. Try Camay today and see how fresh it leaves your skin. Camay costs you less and serves you better!

NEVER SUCH VALUES IN SOAP



Camay's new price ::: and Camay's new package are the sensation of the beauty soap world! Women are flocking to buy! New thousands every day! Women keen for value, keen for beauty, in themselves and in their soap.

Never has a soap so fine sold at a price so low! Camay gives a more profuse lather, and comes in a gay new dress, in Cellophane. The price is so low, you can afford a dozen cakes!

★ WE'RE FOR THE DAILY GRIND

SURE, it means more work for us to grind your coffee when you buy it. But it means better coffee for you—for less.

The Kroger Food Foundation proved this positively. So we roast our fast-selling coffees—Jewel and French Brand—rush them in the whole bean daily to the stores. And it's a Kroger law that never a pound be ground a minute before it's sold.

That's why there is an electric grinder in every Kroger Store. That's why Jewel and French Brand Coffees are now packed in simple paper bags. No tax for fancy packages. No shelf-stale coffee. But a glorious drink in your cup!

...and now Kappels, a sparkling new account, comes to the Daily Sun-Telegraph!

CONFIDENT of the ability of the Daily Sun-Telegraph to promote the success of its business, Kappels Kredit Jewelers and Opticians, after careful consideration of this newspaper's merits, now feels "that it would be unwise not to begin at once to share in the benefits it offers to all advertisers."

Appreciation of the results obtained through their advertising schedule in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph has influenced their decision in no small measure. Reproduced in the adjoining letter is Mr. William J. Kappel's very complimentary decision expressed in terms coincident with the opinions of many other progressive Pittsburgh merchants, who have likewise shared in this great retail market by consistently using Pittsburgh's greatest advertising medium—

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,
Pittsburgh,
Pennsylvania.

Dear Mr. Weston:

It is with unusual pleasure that we hereby enter into an agreement with the Sun-Telegraph to advertise in its daily issues extensively and regularly during the coming year.

Our experience as a consistent user of your Sunday paper has shown us its remarkable acceptance in the Pittsburgh territory and the great value of your newspaper as an advertising medium. We have now come definitely to the conclusion that the daily Sun-Telegraph reaches so large a proportion of Pittsburgh homes which have the ability to buy that it would be very unwise not to begin at once to share in the benefits it offers to all advertisers.

Our three stores--downtown, North Side and East Liberty -- are very conveniently located, and we believe the Sun-Telegraph effectively reaches the newspaper readers of all Pittsburgh who use any of these three centers as shopping points.

In the confidence that our increasingly pleasant relations with the Sun-Telegraph will continue in mutual benefits, and in value to the public, we are, with warm personal regards.

Sincerely yours,
WM. J. KAPPEL COMPANY
President.

DC

The three Kappel Jewelry and Optical Stores are conveniently located in Pittsburgh's major shopping centers . . . downtown, North Side and East Liberty. The Sun-Telegraph effectively reaches the citizens of all districts who use these three centers as buying points.

With the addition of Kappel's advertising to our daily columns we now bring to our readers a more complete representation of Pittsburgh's Jewelry and Optical advertisers.

OYSTERS PREVENTIVE OF GOITER

United States Senator From New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Recent experiments show that sea food should be an important item in the diet of every individual. Certain substances are found in this food that are not contained in foods grown on land.

Oysters, formerly considered a delicacy, are now accepted as one example of a highly nutritious seafood. In oysters are certain substances which are capable of preventing certain constitutional diseases. The luscious bivalves have been used successfully in assisting to ward off rickets, goiter, anemia and other disturbances.

Oysters contain 200 times as much iodine as an equal amount of eggs, milk or beefsteak. When there is a deficiency of iodine in the diet and water supply, goiter and cretinism occur.

FORM NEW BLOOD CELLS

In addition to iodine, the oyster contains important inorganic substances such as copper, iron and manganese. These elements form new red blood cells and the coloring matter of the blood, the hemoglobin. Iron has always been recommended for the correction of anemic disorders. Recently it has been shown that iron is of greatest benefit when combined with copper. This discovery increases the value of oysters as a food for the prevention and cure of anemia.

During the summer months the temperature of the water is high and more germs are found in the water. At that time of year, oysters are not as healthful as during cold weather.

Formerly oysters were the cause of spreading infectious diseases. Indeed, typhoid fever was a common ailment traced to the eating of contaminated oysters. Today this menace has been removed by rigid federal, state and local regulations. It is against the law to sell oysters from contaminated waters, and every precaution is taken in the handling and shipping of this food.

MANY VARIETIES

There are many varieties of oysters—small ones and large ones. When the oyster is taken directly from the ocean, it is small and greenish gray in color.

The common plump and white oyster is artificially fattened by a process called "floating." The oysters are removed from their beds and placed on rafts. The rafts are floated in water containing less salt than is found within the oyster. In consequence, the water enters the oyster, causing it to swell or "fatten."

Oysters are easily digested and, contrary to the common belief, they are more easily digested when eaten raw than when cooked.

All investigations confirm the belief that oysters possess great nutritional value. They deserve greater popularity and should be included in the diet more frequently.

Mine Blast Survivor Pays Sister Visit

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 18.—D. E. Fulwider, one of eight men who escaped alive from the mine at Cherry Run, Ill., an explosion taking a toll of many lives, passed through this city en route to Connellsville, Pa., to visit his sister, Mrs. E. J. Yingling. Fulwider said the explosion was caused by a donkey boy lighting a match for a cigaret. Fulwider and his seven companions lived for 14 days in a room 10x12 before they were rescued.

MARTINSBURG, W. RECIPES BY PRUDENCE PENNY

Pages and pages are written every year about Thanksgiving dinner. If all the words were laid end to end, we'd probably get indigestion—or something. And what it all comes to is that you should have turkey and cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie.

But what if you don't care for turkey, and cranberry sauce isn't your favorite indoor sport, and the sight of pumpkin pie makes you wish for ice cream? Strange as it may seem, there are people like that, and they aren't such freaks, either.

You may have your turkey dinner if you want it. You'll find plenty of menus and trick new stuffings described in the magazines. But we are going to have roast goose. We're going to stuff him with oysters and cracker crumbs, and cover him with delicious rich brown gravy, and do him to such a turn that he'll put the nearest turkey to shame.

And we're going to have candied sweet potatoes, baked in a casserole until they're thick and syrupy, with crisp brown crust. And we'll have new broccoli, glorified with a beautiful golden Hollandaise sauce. Perhaps, just to be different and a little extravagant on Thanksgiving, we'll have alligator pear salad.

But the piece de resistance, the coup d'etat, and all the other French phrases that mean the high spot, will be the dessert. The dessert, ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience, is going to be Eggnog Pie with Ginger Crust.

But in case you're interested, we're giving you the recipe. Cast your eye on the list of ingredients. Observe that they're thrifty (to make up for those alligator pears). There's hardly an item that you haven't already on your pantry shelf. Note, too, how easy it is to make this pie. No complicated crust-making—a bit of butter, a bit of sugar, some crumbled ginger snaps, and the deed is done. But for elegance, for goodness, for a real holiday dessert, there never was such a pie!

* * *

EGGNOG PIE WITH GINGER CRUST—2 teaspoons gelatin, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ cup cream, whipped, ¾ cup unsweetened evaporated milk, 18 old fashioned ginger snaps, ⅛ teaspoon salt, rum flavoring, 3 tablespoons cold water, ¼ cup water, 2 eggs, separated, ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon sugar, ⅓ cup softened butter.

Soak gelatin in cold water, 5 minutes. Combine milk and ½ cup water and heat. Beat egg yolks with sugar and salt and stir hot milk into them. Return to double boiler and stir until thickened. Remove from fire, add gelatin and flavoring. Cool, beat with rotary egg beater and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and cream.

Crumble ginger snaps very fine and mix with sugar and softened butter. Line a pie plate with this mixture, pressing firmly against sides and bottom in an even layer, and bake 10 minutes in hot oven (425 degrees F.). When cool fill with the eggnog filling. Let stand 2 or 3 hours. Makes 8-inch pie.

And then, to make our table look bountiful on this day of days, we're going to have a bowl of fruit, some crisp salted almonds, and a plate heaped high with cakes and cookies. In keeping with the season, our cookies will be festive in appearance; some of the chocolate-covered varieties, cakes studded with raisins, and creamy-filled wafers.

Erskine, Downes With Philharmonic

John Erskine, president of the Juilliard School of Music and noted writer, and Olin Downes, music critic of the New York Times, will appear as guest pianists with Ernest Schelling and the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra in the first of the advanced series of children's and young people's concerts presented over WJAS tomorrow morning from 11 to 12 noon.

A feature of the concert will be Bach's Concerto in D minor for three pianos with Downes, Erskine and Schelling as soloists.

Three Football Games On Air Tomorrow

For the football fans tomorrow: Yale-Harvard, WCAE and WJAS at 1:15; Notre Dame-Navy, KDKA at 1:45; Stanford-California, WWSW at 5. Graham McNamee and Ted Husing preside at the microphones for NBC-WCAE and CBS-WJAS respectively, with Ford Bond announcing the Irish-Navy game. The Stanford-California clash will be recreated from a telegraphic report as usual, with Joe Sartory at the key and Ed Sprague at the microphone.

A play-by-play account of the Duquesne University-Catholic University football game at Washington, D. C., tonight is listed on WWSW at 8 o'clock.

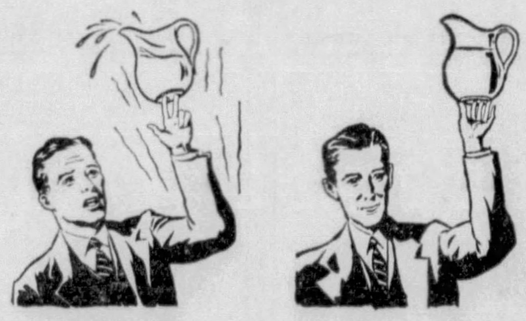
IT WILL SPILL ON TWO FINGERS!


EVER try to balance a pitcher of water on two fingers? Look out for a wetting if you do! You need the support of two other fingers for safety!
And it's no different with radio tubes. The delicate arrangement of vital elements needs four-square support — the kind it gets in Eveready Raytheons, with four pillars!
All other radio tubes have only two supports. Thus the vital accuracy of their elements is constantly exposed to becoming unbalanced from jolts, jars and vibrations, inside and outside the set. And once these lose their accuracy, tone spills — just like the water in the pitcher.
In Eveready four-pillar Tubes you get guarded accuracy — uninterrupted true tone, longer life. They cost no more. Accept no less. Ask your dealer about them!

AL JOLSON :-: Noted Stage Star In New Series :-: ON THE AIR

Marx Boys, Lionel Barrymore, Nagel, Laurel and Hardy In Movie Star Broadcast

Augmenting the long list of celebrated stage stars now featured regularly over nation-wide networks, Al Jolson, of theatrical and screen fame, comes to the air in his first extended network series to be known as "The Big Six of the Air with Al Jolson," over NBC-WCAE tonight at 10 o'clock. During the series Jolson will be supported by a group of distinguished artists and an orchestra. The programs, sponsored by the Chevrolet Motor Car Company, will be heard each Friday night at the same hour.

Mr. Jolson

The history of Jolson's career dates back to 1911, when he was signed by the Shuberts for their new Winter Garden. His first shows were "Bow Sing" and "La Belle Paree," while outstanding stage hits of his early years were "The Whirl of Society," "The Review of Reviews" and "Vera Violetta." Then followed "Bombo" and "Big Boy," and with the advent of talking pictures Jolson starred in "The Jazz Singer," "The Singing Fool," "Mammy" and "Happy-Go-Lucky."

* * *

Program Pointers

Florence Gerber, Johnstown (Pa.) soprano and Atwater Kent audition winner in Cambria County, is listed to make her bow from the studios of KDKA tonight at 10:45. Miss Gerber is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music and of the Indiana State Teachers' College . . . At 7:30 on KQV tonight, a studio presentation opening Carnegie Tech's football rally and featuring the Carnegie Tech Band and a number of prominent Tech students is scheduled.

Miss Gerber

Conrad Nagel, Laurel and Hardy, Lionel Barrymore and Harpo and Groucho Marx come to the microphone during the broadcast of the annual banquet of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, at which awards are made for achievement in various branches of the industry, over NBC-WCAE at 12:30 a. m. Among the leading candidates for the actress' award are Helen Hayes and Marie Dressler, while among the actors Frederic March and Wallace Beery are prominent contenders.

Children Present Operetta on Air

"The Royal Playmate," an operetta, is presented by a group of children from the D. T. Watson Home, at Leetsdale, under the direction of Miss Amanda Vierheller during the Sun-Telegraph Family broadcast from the studios of WCAE today at 4:45.

In order that WCAE and WJAS listeners may hear the Yale-Harvard football game tomorrow, the 2:15 p. m. broadcast of news by Louis L. Kaufman, Glob-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, will be omitted. His schedule will be as follows: WCAE-WJAS, 9:05 a. m. and 12:15 p. m., and WCAE, 6:30 p. m.

Today the Globe-Trotter goes on the air over WCAE and WJAS at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m., and over WCAE at 2:15 p. m.

James J. Long, sports columnist of the Sun-Telegraph, reviews sports news and activities of local and national scope during his weekly talk from the studios of WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock.

Winchell 'Listens In' for Radio Gossip

The date for Walter Winchell's return to the air has been set for Sunday, December 4. His new series, to be heard weekly, will resemble his widely syndicated newspaper column, featuring facts about the great and near great, advance tips on tomorrow's headlines, interesting things that Winchell didn't know before and reflections on Broadway life . . . Arthur Tracey leaves that program January 1 for the Pacific Coast to be starred in a movie called "Street Singer," so-o-o Dame Rumor has it that Fannie Brice has been signed by the same sponsor . . . Irvin S. Cobb's "Scattergood" stories soon are to appear on the air.

Mr. Winchell

Vaughn de Leath, CBS songstress, is allowed to violate a long-standing studio rule these days, leaving the broadcasting room before the program is off the air . . . because she has a vaudeville engagement a long distance from the CBS headquarters and has scarcely time to make the curtain call.

Ann Leaf bears witness to a bit of trans-Atlantic songplugging. Recently she received a sheet of music from the British composer, Ketelby, who wrote "In a Persian Market" and "In a Monastery Garden," with the note:

"I hear your work regularly by short-wave and thought you might like to play my new piece."

Despite his 36 years, "Whispering Jack" Smith's mother buys all of his shirts and socks and accompanies him when he gets a new suit.

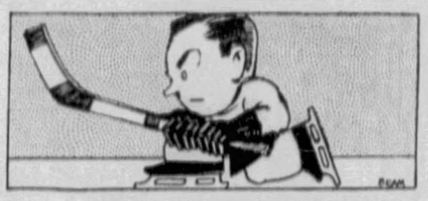
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

THIRTY — FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1932 — BEST IN PITTSBURGH



SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Spirit to Improve Tech. | Michigan's Fine Record.
Old and Young Fixtures. | Economy in Baseball.
Fumbling After Tackle. | Cross-Country Strain.

CARNEGIE MAY GIVE PITT REAL FIGHT

ON PAPER, PITT would appear to be practically a sure winner over Carnegie Tech tomorrow in the nineteenth gridiron meeting of the old city rivals. This is particularly true since the Skibos, underdogs even in the early dope, have been weakened by the loss of Halfback Bill Spisak, forcing the use of Tom Coulter, a track specialist, who, though a senior, never played football before the present season. But it takes more than paper advantages to win football games, and if the Panthers are not at their peak they may find that they have more trouble on their hands than has been anticipated.

Tom Coulter

The Scots may be depended on to make a fight of it. This is the game on which they annually set their hearts, and spirit is the main thing in football. When players are not enthusiastic they can't do a good job. Blocking and tackling are primarily a matter of enthusiasm and determination. Without the proper mental attitude no team can block well enough to make the offense click, or tackle decisively enough to have an air-tight defense. With it, a team may rise far above its normal heights. The Tartan will have that mental attitude tomorrow, and it means a real fight for the Panthers, regardless of the outcome.

WHILE HARVARD AND Yale, meeting for the fifty-first time, are staging one of football's oldest features tomorrow at New Haven, Notre Dame and Navy will be playing one of the youngest annual fixtures in Cleveland's municipal stadium. It will be the sixth game between these teams.

Navy never has beaten Notre Dame. The Irish won 19 to 6 in 1927, 7 to 0 in 1928, 14 to 7 in 1929, 26 to 2 in 1930 and 20 to 0 last year. Cleveland will be the fourth city in which the game has been played. The teams met in Baltimore in 1927-29-31, at Chicago in 1928, and at South Bend in 1930 to dedicate the Notre Dame Stadium.

TO AVOID DISPUTES as to whether a fly ball is caught or muffed, the baseball powers abolished momentary holding. Bumping into a fence or falling is part of the catch. The player either catches the ball or he doesn't. Holding it momentarily no longer is a catch.

The football rulemakers will now be called upon to decide whether holding the ball when tackled is part of a run. Walter Clifford, Holy Cross ball carrier, fumbled when tackled on the Harvard four-yard line. Harvard recovered, but the pigskin was given back to Holy Cross under the rule which says that the ball is dead when a player's forward progress is stopped.

AS IT WAS after the tackle, when he had fallen on top of two other players, that Clifford dropped the leather, it was ruled that the ball had automatically become dead and legally could not be fumbled. Under a proposed amendment, the officials would have to determine whether a ball carrier fumbled because of a tackle, and whether the opposing team should be entitled to possession if it recovered the ball. There will be a fight against putting that extra burden on the officials. The latter would be helped by a rule like the baseball regulation, simplifying the whole thing by making it merely a question of whether the ball is held or muffed.

Harry Newman

ONE OF THE hardest battles of the gridiron campaign is in prospect for tomorrow at Minneapolis, where Harry Newman and his Michigan mates will risk their perfect record against Minnesota. The Big Ten Conference championship will be at stake for the Wolverines.

Minnesota has been defeated by Purdue, but that happened in October. Beating the Gophers in November is a different proposition. Though having no player to equal Newman, they have power and speed and in general shape up as a team that may topple any opponent.

WIN OR LOSE tomorrow, Michigan boasts a record that is a stunner. Since bowing to Illinois, 14 to 0, in 1929, the Maize and Blue has lost only one game out of 29 played, a 20-to-7 defeat at the hands of Ohio State on October 17, last year.

Of the 28 other games, in which they met 15 different opponents, the Wolverines won 25 and tied three. Two of the draws were with Michigan State and one with Iowa. Harvard, Princeton and Ohio State were beaten twice each, and Minnesota, Illinois and Chicago three times. In 19 of the last 26 games, opponents have failed to score. Michigan has won her last 13 games without a slip, and in that time has permitted foes to score only two touchdowns.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL magnates continue to talk economy, leaving no doubt as to the course they will pursue at the annual meetings next month. "The overhead must come down," says President Sam Breadon, of the Cardinals. "The club owners realize, in view of the times, that something must be done to give all of us a chance to break even financially. This means still greater reductions in the pay of the players. If we find that we can knock the overhead down to a point where it is possible to make ends meet with 23 players, well and good. Personally, I favor a limit of 21 to 22."

DID YOU NOTICE that the University of Pennsylvania was not among the 16 colleges that competed in the twenty-fourth annual intercollegiate championship cross-country run in New York this week? The explanation is that Lawson Robertson, Penn track coach, will not permit his charges to take part in a grind of that length.

The length of the Van Courtlandt Park course is six miles, the usual cross-country route, and Robertson takes the stand that the distance is too long, too stamina-sapping, for a growing college boy.

MANY A POTENTIALLY great runner would have escaped being ruined if all coaches were as considerate of their boys as is Robertson. At some high schools throughout the country, young distance runners are allowed to burn themselves out through mistaken notions of what they can do.

Lawson Robertson

In this connection a veteran distance star told Ed Hughes that the commonest mistake is the age-old theory that there is a "second wind" in running. "That second-wind thing is the worst notion a young runner can get in his head," he declared. "Any man who has ever done any great amount of distance running will tell you there is no such thing as a second wind.

"THAT'S JUST A silly idea runners get when they're kids. There's nothing in it but danger for the fellow who long persists in it. What really happens is this: The youngster sees an experienced runner show signs of weariness, slow up for a while, and then suddenly seem to perk up as if by magic. The kid thinks that is the business of getting a second wind. Actually, it is nothing of the kind. It is simply a matter of proper pacing, generalship. When a heady runner feels the least sign of labor, he immediately adjusts matters, coasts a while to replenish his weakened vitality, thus creating a sinking fund of energy. The novice plugs on without a letup, fearing some one will say he lacked staying power if he eases up. Of course, it isn't long until he has nothing left. He drops out in a state of collapse with the pathetic excuse that 'I couldn't get my second wind.'"

SCHOOL CHAMPS BATTLE

FOUR PANTHER RESERVES TO START FRAY

By JESS CARVER

Pitt's "Little Hard Guy" is going to start in another big-time football game tomorrow . . . Little Hard Guy, the toughest and at the same time the most colorful man on the Panther squad, will be in there at right guard against Tech in the Stadium classic. Introducing then, Francis (Cowboy) Seigel, pride of Sioux City.

Francis Seigel

For four long years, Little Hard Guy has been football at Pitt. He followed Rip Collins here from Iowa. He had a fair record as a freshman and was a third-stringer as a sophomore and junior. Last year, he saw some service as a reserve guard, and until last Saturday, when he was in there at the start against Nebraska, was Tar Onder's sub at right guard. The Cowboy only weighs 168 pounds soaking wet, but has as much fight and pep as a Notre Dame signal practice.

Now Onder, along with Bob Hogan and Paul Cuba and Mike Sebastian, have fallen from the good graces of Dr. Jock Sutherland, the Pitt coach, and he'll warm the good old bench on the morrow as the action starts against Carnegie, and in his place will be Mister Seigel.

WHAT A MAN!

Little Hard Guy is strictly a "muscle" footballer. Signals to Hard Guy are merely something to confuse backfield men and with which quarterbacks exercise their voices. The idea is to hit 'em hard and hit 'em often, and if you happen to pull out of the line the wrong way once in a while—well, after all, there is more to life than just coming out in the interference correctly. Shucks, in coming out wrong and running into the other guard, the Cowboy has only been hurt once in three years—not a bad record, claims Mister Seigel.

With Seigel a definite nomination for right guard in the Pitt battlefront, the rival lineups for tomorrow's clash are just about set, unless the Tartans are pulling a fast one on the Spisak deal. Spisak, regular left halfback, was reported so badly jammed up in the Xavier game that he was out for the Pitt fracas, and Tom Coulter elected to his place, but there is a rumor popping about that Spisak will be in there tomorrow. The Tartans deny it, of course, but any and all football denials are to be taken with a ton of salt. It's a racket.

Both squads will complete their training for the game today. Signal drills will be the order of the afternoon both at the Stadium and in the Tartan Bowl. The Pitt first team will line up with either Rooker or Dailey at left end, paired with Muggsy Skladany; John Meredith and Walton at the tackles; Seigel and Doc Hartwig at the guards; Tormey at center; Mungas at quarter; Capt. Bulldog Reider and Warren Heller at the halves, and Izzy Weinstock at fullback.

DAILEY MAY PLAY

Ted Dailey, who was out of the Nebraska game with an injured back, is reported improved enough to rate a starting assignment. His presence on the left wing definitely strengthens the Pitt force.

The Tipoff

Richard (Tricky Dick) Hyland, former Stanford halfback star, who has been trapesing about the country since graduation working as a football feature writer, tells one that he pulled out on the Coast, Hyland, to say the least, has a mind of his own, and frequently clashed with his coach, Pop Warner, while a player. If Pop thought a play should be worked one way and Dick had other ideas, Dick would as likely as not cross the veteran mentor and run the play his way.

Anyway, last year, Richard wrote a feature article a Coast paper on Warner, Bill Ingram and Howard Jones. In it he referred to Pop as "Big Shot," to Jones as "Old Stone Face" and to Ingram as "Wild Bill."

Warner was the first to get on Tricky Dick. Said Pop:

"Dick, I didn't like that 'Big Shot' business very well, but it's O. K. . . . You certainly had Jones and Ingram pegged right. I got a laugh out of what you called them."

A day or so later, Hyland received a phone call from Ingram. Roared the California coach:

"Hey, you, what's the idea calling me 'Wild Bill?' I ought to come down there and kick your head off, but I won't, because you sure had Warner and Jones right. 'Big Shot' and 'Old Stone Face'—ha, ha, ha!"

In Los Angeles a week later, Hyland ran into Jones. Howard was somewhat wroth as he addressed Dick:

"Say, Dick, that wasn't a very nice name you called me. Where do you get this 'Old Stone Face' idea? But it's all right. . . I had to laugh at the way you nailed Warner and Ingram. What names!"

CRICKET TEAMS CLASH

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The touring Marylebone Cricket Club of England started inauspiciously against an all-Australian eleven today, getting 238 runs for eight wickets in their first innings.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

(Reg. by U. S. Patent Office)

By RIPLEY

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE LETTERLESS ALL-CONFERENCE QUARTERBACK—Though Boob Nash, star quarterback of the Lon Morris College, of Jacksonville, Tex., excelled on the gridiron to the extent that he was chosen for the All-Conference eleven, his classroom standing preventing him from receiving his football letter last season. The college required all athletes to make a passing grade in not less than three courses before a letter is given, which Nash failed to do.

TOMORROW: A PAINFUL DIET.

LOCAL SOCCER CARD CUT

With the Clan Douglas-Union Switch and Signal game postponed only three games will be played tomorrow in the Central Soccer League, but these three will provide plenty of interest.

The outstanding game finds the German Sport Club, with a fine string of victories, traveling to Mt. Lebanon to meet the Firemen's aggregation. The Sport Club is one combination the Firemen must stop to get back into that pennant race.

Sunday finds the initial games in the National Amateur Cup carded. South Park probably will see another capacity crowd when the Union Switch and Signal eleven stacks up against Curry.

BIG FELLOWS BOX TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The largest two heavyweights in the boxing business—Primo Carnera and Jose Santa—will launch themselves upon each other tonight in a 10-round match in Madison Square Garden.

For the first time in his rambling career, the Italian Gondola man must make physical concessions to an opponent. Santa, discovered in Portugal after Carnera started the craze for super-sized gladiators, is 6 feet 8 inches tall.

Carnera stands a mere 6 feet 6½ inches, but he makes up this disadvantage by outweighing the Portuguese 260 pounds to 251. Otherwise their fantastic measurements are almost the same, including items such as 84 inches of reach for Carnera and 83½ for Santa.

Interest Widespread In Warner Contest

From near and far they come, entries in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Glenn Warner football contest for 10 pairs of tickets for the Pitt-Stanford game next week and six all-America football blankets donated by Warner himself.

Among the very first entrants was one from a hospital in Cleveland. Others are at hand from points all over Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and Maryland, as well as hundreds from Pittsburgh in the few days the contesct has been under way.

POP TO PICK 'EM

Many of the questions asked Warner in the contest undoubtedly will be duplicated. In cases where there are duplications the letters selected by Warner will be the ones that will count. The questions must be of a general nature applying to football, which, when answered by the Stanford coach, will prove as interesting to radio listeners throughout the land as they are locally in Pittsburgh.

Warner's stunt will be featured on the weekly broadcast of Christy Walsh's All-America Board of Football Postum-Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Show, on a Columbia chain national hookup through WJAS, Friday night of next week.

The contest closes at midnight next Tuesday, to allow for sufficient time to properly distribute the awards. Names of the winners will be announced next Wednesday evening during the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE, at 7 o'clock, and will be published in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph of the following day. Tickets for the game are located in a choice section of the Stadium stands. The blankets will be displayed in a downtown store as soon as they arrive.

MAKE QUESTIONS BRIEF

Join the army of football fans and ask Pop Warner that big football question that has been agitating your mind. Send only one question in a letter, but submit as many letters as you wish. Make your questions brief and to the point.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is the only newspaper in Pittsburgh which publishes the articles of the members of the All-America Board of Football and their annual all-America teams. Warner, Eddie Casey, Bill Alexander, A. A. Stagg and Hunk Anderson write exclusively for your favorite sports pages, along with Howard Harpster and other talented writers who know the autumnal sport.

If you haven't submitted your question in this contest, DO IT NOW. Everyone is eligible except employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and members of their families.

Tiger Star Denies Rum Runner Charge

DETROIT, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—William Rogell, Detroit Tigers' shortstop, has written to Frank J. Navin, president of the club, explaining that he had been arrested by Coast Guardsmen off the coast of Massachusetts as a suspected liquor runner, while he and his party were on a duck-hunting trip three miles from a liquor-laden ship that was seized.

Rogell criticizes the newspapers for capitalizing his name when the other men are barely mentioned and said the thing he cannot understand is how they can connect him and his party with the British boat when it was three miles away.

BEARCATS FACE MORRIS HARVEY

LATROBE, Pa., Nov. 18.—St. Vincent Bearcats are primed for their game on the local field this afternoon with the Morris Harvey eleven, of West Virginia.

The Bearcats are winding up a successful season, only one more game remaining of their schedule That is with the Scarlet Hurricane of Davis and Elkins College here on Thanksgiving.

The game originally was scheduled for tomorrow, but in order to avoid a conflict with the Latrobe High School engagement it was decided to stage the battle today.

Tri-State Briefs

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 18.—Many students will follow the Westminster College football team to Beaver Falls tomorrow afternoon when the Titans close their season against the Geneva College eleven at Reeves Stadium. Plans are being made to take the Westminster band to the game.

BEAVER FALLS, Nov. 18.—When the Geneva Golden Tornado winds up the 1932 home gridiron campaign against Westminster here tomorrow seven boys will be making their football farewell. The group includes Sam Cooper, of Mon City; Edward Rodimoyer, of Pittsburgh; Dick McKee, of Willard, O.; Marty Howell, of Freedom; Johnny Ifft, of Zelienople; Paul Heffley, of Willard, O., and Robert Evans, of Zelienople.

GROVE CITY, Nov. 18.—The Grove City football squad will welcome the end of the campaign after the game with Thiel here tomorrow afternoon. Coach Amos is working at mid-season speed in an effort to overcome the sloppy ball-handling of his charges. He has warned the squad repeatedly this week that Thiel will be "up," as usual, for the Grovers, and the Greenville team will have its best opportunity in years to come through with a victory.

ELKINS, W. Va., Nov. 18.—The Davis and Elkins College football squad will make its headquarters in Fairmont tonight, leaving here late this afternoon en route to Morgantown, where West Virginia will be met tomorrow afternoon. The Senators will remain in Fairmont until tomorrow morning, when they will be driven direct to their quarters at the stadium. Coach Cam Henderson will lead into Morgantown one of the smallest squads in the history of the Scarlet Hurricane grid warfare. There is a strong possibility that Bud Shelton, Elkins boy, will be in the backfield when the game opens. It is likely that another local youth, Ken Talbott, will hold down the quarterback post, with Ehlarts, of Mannington, and Winters, of St. Albans, at the halfback berths.

By JULIUS LEVIN

The post-season battle between Westinghouse and Perry at Peabody High School Field heads an attractive schedule of scholastic football games in Western Pennsylvania this afternoon.

Since 1924, when the league was divided into two divisions, the Section I representative has won the laurels no less than seven times, South Hills, 1931 champion, being the first Section II standard-bearer to take the crown.

LAKERS FAVORITES

The Westinghouse eleven takes the field in the post-season game a favorite to defeat the North Siders because of its fine record in Section I this season.

Perry's hopes are based on comparative scores compiled in the contests with Allegheny. Allegheny upset the dope by defeating Westinghouse in an intersectional game, 6-0, while Perry defeated its North Side rivals in a league encounter, 14-6.

Both contenders for the championship met Allderdice this season. Westinghouse winning, 13-0, while Perry lost to the Irvin eleven, 18-0.

Comparative scores, however, often are misleading and Westinghouse cannot afford to take the battle with Perry too lightly. Perry showed a lot of class in winning the Section II crown. One thing in its favor is its ability to fight from the start to finish. The North Siders never give up, an important asset to any successful football team.

TEAMS IN FINE SHAPE

Coach Burton, of Westinghouse, and Coach Smith, of Perry, announce their teams in fine shape for the contest and both teams will take the field with every regular available for action.

As has been the case in past post-season games, members of all teams enrolled in the two sections of the City League will be guests of the contesting elevens.

A victory for the Silver Lakers this afternoon will enable Westinghouse to establish a new record for City championships. Westinghouse and Schenley each have won the local championship four times.

Perry's appearance in the post-season frays marks the first time any eleven from that school has entered the championship battle.

OLD RIVALS CLASH

Old rivalries are being resumed throughout Western Pennsylvania this afternoon. Among the headliners are Centerville and Burgettstown Union at Burgettstown, Avalon and Bellevue at Bellevue, Sewickley and Ben Avon at Ben Avon, Springdale and Mars at Mars, St. Justin's and Central Catholic at Frazier street field, and Bellevernon and Fayette City at Fayette City.

The records compiled by Westinghouse and Perry this season follow:

WESTINGHOUSE
Westinghouse	0	Wilkinsburg	7
Westinghouse	0	Allegheny	6
*Westinghouse	12	Peabody	6
*Westinghouse	7	South	7
*Westinghouse	41	Fifth Ave.	0
*Westinghouse	14	Schenley	0
Westinghouse	0	Mt. Lebanon	7
*Westinghouse	13	Allderdice	0
Westinghouse	87	Opponents	33

PERRY
Perry	0	Allderdice	18
*Perry	0	South Hills	12
Perry	6	Shady Side	0
*Perry	14	Allegheny	6
*Perry	7	Oliver	0
*Perry	18	Carrick	6
*Perry	0	Langley	0
Perry	45	Opponents	42

IRISH FAVORED OVER NAVY

CLEVELAND, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—With 55,000 seats already sold, a crowd of from 60,000 to 75,000 is expected to witness the Navy and Notre Dame game here tomorrow.

It will be a gala football day for Cleveland and Northern Ohio, which will have its opportunity to see its first "big league" game in the Cleveland Municipal Stadium.

The Ramblers once more will be top heavy favorites to sink the Navy, but Coach Heartley Anderson hasn't forgotten that defeat at Pittsburgh, while the Navy is encouraged by the belief it finally has reached its full strength.

NAVY ON WAY

TECH MUST STOP HELLER TO HOLD DOWN SCORE—HARPSTER

GOOD PANTHER ELEVEN BIG FAVORITE

By Howard Harpster

Tomorrow's game at the Stadium between Pitt's unbeaten football team and Carnegie Tech will be one of the high points of the season so far as local interest is concerned. They can bring in their nationally known teams such as Notre Dame, New York University, Ohio State, Purdue and others to play our local elevens and the fans always are treated to a good afternoon of high-class football, but, for color and excitement, and real old-fashioned rivalry, Pitt-Tech games are in a class by themselves.

H. Harpster

In recent years, or since the two schools resumed relations in 1923, the series has been quite even. Tech has won four games, in 1923, '24, '26 and '28, while Pitt has won five, in 1925, '27, '29, '30 and '31. There have been three big upsets in the series, Tech's victories in '23 and '24, and Pitt's 7-to-6 victory in 1930 over a very strong Tech team.

PITT BIG FAVORITE

The dope for tomorrow's game points to a Pitt victory by quite a sizeable score. The Panthers' record to date is one of the outstanding ones in the country. Unbeaten, the Pitt team has two scoreless ties as its only blemishes, one with Ohio State and the other with Nebraska. Its victory column shows many notable victims. West Virginia, Army, Pennsylvania and Notre Dame are nationally known teams which have fallen before Warren Heller and his mates.

On the other hand, Tech's record is not impressive. Small score victories were registered over Geneva, Western Reserve and Xavier, while W. & J. and Temple were played to tie scores. A decisive 42-to-0 defeat at the hands of Notre Dame is the only game the Tartans have dropped. Both teams have played Notre Dame, and, on the basis of Pitt's fine 12-to-0 victory and Tech's 42-to-0 defeat, it would appear that the Panthers are about 54 points better than their Schenley Park rivals. However, if anyone is offering 54 points or even 50, he can find the writer's telephone number in the directory.

MUST STOP HELLER

If Tech has any hope of pulling an upset by winning, or even hopes to keep the score down, it looks as if the first thing the Tartans will have to do is to stop Heller. On paper such a possibility doesn't appear to be unreasonable, but when you consider that no team this season has completely stopped this skillful player, it seems doubtful if the Tech team can rise to the occasion.

The injury which put Spizak out for the remainder of the season is the cause of Tech's offensive hopes taking a definite drop. The Midland halfback was one of the best ball carriers on the squad and his loss will be keenly felt. Capt. Kavel will be the main offensive hope in the Tech backfield. He is the hard driving type of runner who may break away at the least opportunity.

Geneva meets the big Westminster team tomorrow to decide the runner-up position to Waynesburg in the Tri-State Conference, and, from this angle, it looks as if the Covenanters have an excellent chance to drop their second consecutive game, something they haven't done for three years.

Big Grid Battles On Air Tomorrow

Stations WCAE and WJAS will broadcast the Yale-Harvard football game tomorrow afternoon, with Graham McNamee at the microphone for the former station and Ted Husing for the latter. Both broadcasts will get under way at 1:15 p. m., from the Yale Bowl.

KDKA will handle the Notre Dame-Navy game from Cleveland at 1:45, and WWSW will transmit the details of the Stanford-California game at Berkley, Cal., with Ed Sprague doing the announcing at 5 p. m. Ford Bond will broadcast the Navy-Notre Dame game.

James J. Long's weekly review of the world of sports will be on WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

ROONEYS RISK FINE RECORD

By TOM BIRKS

The J. P. Rooneys will attempt to keep their perfect record intact Sunday as they complete their West Penn Conference schedule by meeting the Bellaire Eagles at Greenlee Field. The big Green machine, under the leadership of Art Rooney, has played and won all of its nine games.

Bellaire was anything but satisfied with the result of the game against the Rooneys at Bellaire, when the big Green won by a touchdown. Some hectic arguments prevailed in that game, and it was only smart handling by the officials that prevented an open outbreak.

The Eagles contended that they scored at least one touchdown but the officials could not see it that way. Three times they lost the ball on downs within the Rooney 10-yard line.

The game undoubtedly will draw the largest crowd of the season. Bellaire is one of the best looking, and smartest clubs ever to play in the big conference, and every player is a former college star.

The Rox Rangers moved nearer the Lightweight Conference football championship last night at Greenlee Field as they defeated the Etna Sycamores, 6 to 0, in a hard-fought battle before a fine crowd.

The elevens battled on even terms until midway in the fourth period, when the Rangers secured possession of the ball on the Etna 28-yard stripe. A pass, Uansa to Antonelli, netted 12 yards, and then Toby hurled another one to Dundee Rodgers, who pulled the ball in on the three-yard mark and ran over for the score. The Sycamores blocked an attempted placement kick for the extra point. The lineup:

Rox Rangers—6		Etna—0
Zytoll	L. E.	Medock
Panik	L. T.	Franz
Spisak	L. G.	Barsch
Pavalvich	C.	Lucas
Mikovitz	R. G.	Skurtich
Rinsel	R. T.	McKee
F. Kolinski	R. E.	Witters
Antonelli	Q.	Turner
Karkoski	L. H.	Kormick
Kolassa	R. H.	Cannon
Uansa	F.	Miller

Score by periods:

Rox Rangers	0	0	0	6	—6

We no sooner set up a new idol than we move about tearing him down.

When a youngster starts out and shows promise everybody is for him. They want to see him become a champion. Then, when he is well on the way, they begin to look for flaws in his work and try to hasten the day when they'll see him get his wings trimmed. After he's beaten, they turn to him again. It's a strange human trait.

That's the way the fight fan's mind works, and it really isn't much different from the minds of folks in other walks of life with regard to those who win success.

YAROSZ ON SPOT

Tonight, at the Arena, on the North Side, they'll probably have the largest crowd of the season, turning out for the "kill." They want to see someone come along and take the measure of this young upstart from the Beaver Valley, Teddy Yarosz, a welterweight boxer, who remains undefeated in almost 60 bouts. The fan army thinks the promoters finally have dug up a live candidate for the job in Jack King, the Little Rock product, who has beaten Billy Holt, Tiger Joe Randall and Jimmy Belmont in his previous local starts. He took all of these bouts handily, well within his stride. It was the ease with which he won over the rugged Jimmy Belmont in the same ring last Friday night that clinched tonight's match.

MAY HALT STREAK

Of course, Yarosz isn't going to continue winning forever. Recently, Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, who fights Pee Wee Jarrell at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, held Ted to a draw in New York's Madison Square Garden and, following that, Meyer Lichtenstein gave Yarosz a busy evening at the Arena. The fans think Ted's about due to lose, and they wouldn't miss seeing this happen. A defeat at this stage wouldn't hurt Yarosz. It would take away the strain of eternally having to protect that record of no defeats.

King is a tall, rangy youth who can box and punch. He looks like much the best possibility to encompass the defeat of Yarosz that we've ever had against the Monaca star in a local ring. If he fails, we'll probably have to wait around until we see Ted in there with Jackie Fields or some other champion or near-champion.

ALVIS TO SECOND KING

Your fight fan can scent a good match a mile away. That's why there's been a rush on tickets for tonight's fight since it was announced. It's a suddenly developed "natural." It doesn't need any steamup. Ray Alvis, of Chicago, King's manager, will second the latter in person tonight. He realizes this is an opportunity to make King an ace box office attraction around here, just as his Tony Herrera has been for several years.

Red Bush, Cumberland middleweight, with two knockouts to his credit in as many starts here, meets Carl Montebano, Frank Klaus' rough and ready middleweight, of Braddock, in the six-round semi-final. Jerry Clements boxes Fritzie Zivic in the second bout, and Max Elling and General Burr are in the opener, scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

Between Rounds

Charley Massare, of Monongahela, who meets K. O. Christner in the semi-final to the Eddie (Kid) Wolfe-Pee Wee Jarrell bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, boxes Juanito Olaginbel in one of the six-round preliminaries to the Primo Carnera-Jose Santa battle in New York's Madison Square Garden tonight.

The St. Peter's A. A., of the North Side, will hold an amateur boxing show in the Arena Tuesday night.

Jacquette Elverille is back in training again following his recovery from a back injury suffered in his bout with Davy Grove, and would like to meet the latter in a return bout.

Pee Wee Jarrell, the Clown Prince of the ring, who returns here to box Eddie (Kid) Wolfe at the Garden, Monday night, as a result of the hit he registered in beating Davy Grove recently, has boxed Jackie Fields, the welterweight champion; Sammy Mandell and Jimmy Goodrich, former lightweight champions, Harry Dudlinsky, Jack King, Morrie Sherman, Red Holloway, Tony Lombardo, Manuel Quintero, Eddie Rau, Herman and Henry Fertick, Spug Myers and Jackie Brady, among others.

George Courtney and Vince Forgione have been matched to box a 10-round bout in Philadelphia Thanksgiving afternoon. It is their third meeting, each having won once.

Y. M. H. A. WINS

McLaughry and Kerr W. Pa. Grid Products

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Neighborly Ol' Uncle Sam knocks at Pittsburgh's door whenever he wishes to see a great painting, hear the "Sewanee River" or buy the best steel. And when Uncle wants a sportive leader with whom to balance life's budget he frequently beckons in the same general direction.

Almost half of baseball's major league pilots have pronounced Pittsburgh connections—they either learned their A B C's or took graduate courses here. The football symphony having reached a crescendo on the scale of our emotions, do we not find Pittsburghers whirling the baton?

Tuss McLaughry

Andy Kerr

Forgetting, for the present, Jock Sutherland and his Panthers, who may or may not be the best grid team in the nation, let us turn eastward to visualize the two great unbeaten and untied teams—Brown and Colgate.

TUSS AT WESTMINSTER

The inspiration to be found in both the two aspirants for gridiron supremacy easily may be traced to Daddy Pitt's district. De Ormond (Tuss) McLaughry, head coach of Brown, is a native of Sharon, Pa., a graduate of Westminster College at New Wilmington, Pa., and one of the best fullbacks of the game, even if he did hide his light under a bushel. Tuss, if you want the truth, was a Joe Savoldi operating behind a Three-Eye League line. If Tuss weren't a modest boy his calling card would show a touchdown scored against a Pitt line, but the big fellow never has paraded himself.

Andy Kerr, head coach of unscored-upon Colgate squad, certainly needs no introduction around Pittsburgh. Glenn (Pop) Warner during his reign at Pitt liked the ways of Andy to such an extent he prevailed upon his freshman coach to precede him to California and lay the foundation when he took his present job at Stanford. Emulating McLaughry at Brown, Andy has brought the grid sport to new heights at Colgate.

SCORED ON PITT

The Thanksgiving Day clash of the natural rivals is the biggest date left upon the football calendar. The two Pittsburgh district mentors thus are thrust into the glare of the spotlight. To paraphrase the poet, both are ambitious and both are honorable men. This city will thrill, even though the battle be a draw.

Tuss McLaughry's Iron Men probably are not quite as tough as their mentor when he smacked the class A and B lines while starring for Westminster. The grid records of 1914 disclose that the big kid was the hero of a Tital clash with the Panther on October 3 of that year.

BUCKLEY CO-STAR

The little Westminster team was fortunate in having Big Tuss and Quarterback Ted Buckley, now a prominent attorney of Mercer County. The spark furnished by these smart and capable performers made a Panther team composed of Carlson, Thornhill, Sutherland, Peck, Herron, Williamson, Hastings, et al, extend themselves to win, 21 to 10. Buckley kicked a field goal in the early moments of the game and Tuss smeared the Panther line for a touchdown in the closing period. And every player in the Pitt line figured Tuss would carry the ball on the scoring play, and was set to stop him.

Writing of the contest in the Pittsburgh Gazette Times of that date, Richard (Dick) Guy, sports editor, among other things, said:

"The new Pitt football faces were exhibited to a large crowd at D. C. and A. C. Park yesterday afternoon, and Coach Joe Duff's pupils had to work every minute to beat the Westminster eleven, 21-10."

PLUNGES TO SCORE

A blocked kick gave Big Tuss the opportunity to do his stuff against the Pitt line. Touching on this phase of the game, Guy wrote:

"Williamson had to kick from the 20-yard line and Stewart blocked the kick. The ball bounded back and rolled to the one-yard line, where Stoops fell upon it.

"On the first line play Stoops gained six inches, and in the second attempt, McLaughry failed to gain. McLaughry tried on the third attempt and went through the left side of the Pitt line for the touchdown. Buckley kicked the goal."

Two years later, this Panther team-in-the-making crystallized into historic fame in the great 1916 eleven.

TRIBUTE FROM LITTLE

Coach Lou Little, of the Columbia team, defeated by McLaughry's Brown Bears last Saturday, paid a rich tribute to Tuss and his players as he talked with Burt Whitman, sports editor of the Boston Herald. Touching on Columbia's defeat, Coach Little said:

"Naturally it was a disappointment to us. I'm not so upset about the loss of the game, however, because that Brown team is well coached and has a truly fine teacher and gentleman in charge, Tuss McLaughry."

Brown, by the way, has a schedule which is second only to that of the Panther card in its exacting qualities. The Providence collegians had to lick Yale, Harvard, Holy Cross and Columbia to gain their present fame.

FIVE BATTLES END EARLY

Two straightaway and three technical knockouts marked the 10-bout amateur boxing show staged by the McKeesport A. C. at the Palisades last night.

The quickest two victories were scored by Jim Ferry, 126½, of the Monon Valley Club, who stopped Charley Moyer, of Irwin, in the first round and by King Edwards, 131, of the Sands A. C., of Uniontown, who put Hy Velky, of the Braddock A. C., away also in the initial stanza.

Art Stone, 150, another Sands A. C. boxer, won by a technical knockout over Eddie Shaffer, 157, of McKeesport, in the second round. John Bodnar, 137½, of the Dan Billick Club, won by a technical knockout over Patsy Greco, 136, of the Todd A. C., in the third round and Steve Steffek, of the Sands A. C., 157½, scored a technical knockout over Lewis Caril, 153½, of the Patton A. C., in the second round.

Jess Cunningham, 109½, Monon Valley A. C., defeated Al Lang, McKeesport A. C., 111, 3 rounds; Frankie McLaughlin, 143, McKeesport A. C., defeated Carl Farrell, 141½, Sands A. C., 3 rounds; Teddy Movan, 147, McKeesport A. C., defeated Robert Bennett, 140, Patton A. C., 3 rounds; Duke Bryant, 155½, Braddock A. C., defeated Bruno D'Velle, 150, Patton, 3 rounds, and Shorty Washko, 125, Dan Billick A. C., defeated Young Gizzy, 126½, Todd A. C., 3 rounds.

Gizzy Beats Reilly On Technical K. O.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Battling Gizzy, 134, of Pittsburgh, scored a technical knockout over Frankie Reilly, 134, of Fairmont in the third of a scheduled 10-round bout last night.

Steve O'Malley, 138, Bellaire, O., won a close decision over Jimmy Reilly, 138, of Fairmont. Mike Mitchell, 170, of Bellaire, knocked out Ed Riffle, 158, of Morgantown, in the second round of a scheduled four-rounder. Ken Nutter, of Worthington, knocked out Billy Delaney, 138, of Fairview, in the second of a scheduled four-round bout.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18.—Paul Abele, captain of the Duquesne University football squad, which is here to meet Catholic University in the latter's homecoming game in Griffith Stadium at 8:15 tonight, today wired a word of cheer and a promise to carry on to Halfback Ben Pawlina in Pittsburgh.

A broken leg, sustained last week, forced Pawlina to remain at home, in Mercy Hospital, where he will hear over the radio the game which was to be the second last of his career.

The return to uniform of Charley McVean, sensational Catholic University quarterback, has changed the complexion of tonight's game, and local experts favor the big Cardinal eleven over the visitors.

ABLE FIELD GENERAL

McVean, Coach Dutch Bergman's field general genius, had been thought lost, due to a leg injury.

The Dukes enjoyed a short recreation following mass and breakfast this morning, but will remain at the Willard Hotel resting throughout the afternoon. Although the gridiron will be soft and wet tonight, the weather is clear here.

With both coaches, Layden of the Dukes and Dutch Bergman, of Catholic U., former Notre Dame stars, the battle will be one between teams employing the Rockne system of play. Last year, Catholic University defeated the Dukes in Pittsburgh, 20 to 12, after having been defeated in the other two games played with the Pittsburghers.

Coach Layden announced today that he planned to send Dick Nussbaum into the game to fill the gap made by the injury to Dick Pawlina, who suffered a broken leg in the South Dakota State game at Pittsburgh a week ago. Al De Luca will team with the substitute at the other half, with Sullivan at quarterback and Zaninelli at fullback.

Capt. Abele and Krankota will take care of the terminal posts, Sino and Niccolai at tackles, Weinberg and DeCarbo guards and Cicone at center.

Many to Attend Dinner For Pop

More than 200 invitations already have been accepted for the testimonial dinner to be given Glenn (Pop) Warner, Stanford coach, and former Pitt mentor, by the Letter Men's Club of the University of Pittsburgh one week from tonight, when Warner will be here for his team's game with Pitt on the following afternoon.

A meeting of the committee in charge will be held at the Schenley Hotel following a dinner at 6 o'clock this evening.

ARMY DEVELOPS INTO EAST'S BEST TEAM—ANDERSON

HUNK EXPECTS HARD BATTLE WITH CADETS

By HEARTLY W. (HUNK) ANDERSON
Notre Dame Football Coach

We still are wondering at Notre Dame what hit us at Pittsburgh, and whether we have the great team we thought we had last September. So far, the boys have not reacted as well as they might have. The mere fact that Pitt beat us is enough to eliminate us from any title consideration, but we hope to make a comeback against Navy, Army and Southern California to regain lost prestige.

Hunk Anderson

Personally, I think Army is the greatest team in the East right now, even though Pitt did beat them. Army has improved since the Pitt game. Pitt, on its record, is a better team, but Army has come along after its usual slow start and is burning up the East. Its one-sided victory over Harvard shows what we'll be up against on November 26.

Pitt is another great team, and I do not want to discredit the fine players Jock Sutherland has turned out. Sklandany, Heller, Hogan, Dailey, Walton, Weinstock and the rest have shown themselves to be real football players. And Pitt is playing a real schedule.

The Panthers were off with a bang this year and they've kept going right at the peak all the way through, with the exception of their let-down between Notre Dame and Army games when Ohio State tied them.

TROJANS GREAT TEAM

Southern California is a great team which has developed slower than usual this year. Coach Howard Jones, who knows football and knows men, did a lot of experimenting with his backs until he hit the right combination. Then Orv Mohler was lost for the season, and Howard had to start all over. But he has kept his team in the winning column all year, and deserves plenty of credit for being a fine coach.

In the Middle West Purdue and Michigan have stood out. Michigan has gone along just like Pitt—off to a flying start and never showing a sign of weakness. The Michigan boys have had to resort to passes to save some of their games, but that's just more credit to Harry Newman, their quarterback, who does the throwing.

Purdue has developed rather slowly, but now ranks as one of the best teams in the country. I won't say whether Purdue is better or weaker than Michigan, but I think they were unbeatable the day they trounced New York University. Michigan would have had all it could handle that day, and it is only problematical, of course, how the game would have come out.

Some of the teams which have started out fast, like Notre Dame, and then slipped are Chicago, which looked great until the going became a little too tough for its scrappy sophomores; St. Mary's, which was going good until it hit Fordham and then folded up, and Santa Clara, which also started fast only to weaken.

OHIO STATE ADVANCES

Ohio State is another midwestern team which is coming along better every week. They lost to Michigan and then came back to tie Pitt and win some real games later in the season.

We are down right now to Notre Dame. I did everything possible to bring the team along slowly, only scrimmaging once a week or less often, but we were evidently at the top of our stride for Carnegie Tech. Then Pitt hit us and we've been down ever since. Maybe we'll make a comeback against Army and Southern California, but it will take a different team than we have now to do it.

School Basketball Rest Time Boosted

HARRISBURG, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Directors of the Central Pennsylvania Interscholastic Baseball League at their fall meeting last night decided to allow a period of two minutes between quarters in league games this season.

This action was taken because it was thought that a rest between periods of two minutes rather than of the one minute previously permitted might be advisable for players of high school age.

PLANES READY FOR GOLD RUSH

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Nov. 18.—(Universal)—Thirty-four charters for airplanes already have been signed for the first movement of gold-seekers into the God's Lakes Country, Northern Manitoba, 275 miles north of Winnipeg, it is reported.

There is every indication of this winter seeing an unprecedented traffic into the gold regions beyond Winnipeg.

The "big push" will start as soon as the present snappy weather forms enough ice for freighting.

REPAIR CHURCH TO PAY PLEDGES

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The Fernwood Methodist Episcopal Church is going to look like new.

This is because 28 jobless members of the congregation agreed to repair and repaint it as a means of making good their original pledges of financnal support to the church for the year. They have been at work for a week, each receiving 75 cents an hour as credit on pledges.

In addition each workman is to receive a turkey dinner.

HOW TO STOP A COLD ALMOST INSTANTLY

Almost Instant Relief In This Way

It is recognized as the QUICKEST, safest, surest way. For it will check an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

That is because the real BAYER Aspirin embodies certain medical qualities that strike at the base of a cold almost INSTANTLY.

You can combat nearly any cold you get simply by taking BAYER Aspirin and drinking plenty of water every 2 to 4 hours the first day and 3 or 4 times daily thereafter. If throat is sore, gargle with 3 BAYER Aspirin Tablets crushed and dissolved in a half glass of warm water, repeating every 2 or 3 hours as necessary. Sore throat eases this way in a few minutes, incredible as this may seem.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get the real BAYER Aspirin Tablets. They dissolve almost instantly. And thus work almost instantly when you take them. And for a gargle, Genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablets dissolve with sufficient speed and completeness, leaving no irritating particles or grittiness. Get a box of 12 or bottle of 100 at any drugstore.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Vitamin D Will Keep Baby Well

Just now they are having a great tariff fight in England. Criticism has been directed particularly against any legislation that will increase the cost of cod liver oil. This is natural, because most doctors advise and constantly emphasize the importance of cod liver oil in the diet of every infant and growing child.

Dr. Copeland

There has been a great deal of discussion in medical circles over the merits of this product. It is alleged that substitutes doubtful as to their value and their vitamin content have been thrust upon the unsuspecting public.

In a recent article I told you about a nutritional disorder called "rickets," and pointed out that this disease can be prevented by giving the child abundant sunlight and vitamin D, richly provided by cod liver oil.

In fact, cod liver oil has been used for many years in the diet of children suffering from rickets, and recently it has been used for the prevention of other nutritional disorders in children.

Cod liver oil varies in its merits, depending upon the sunlight and food the codfish receives. On this account the season at which the cod are taken becomes a matter of importance, as well as the method of obtaining the oil. Inferior cod liver oil is of no value.

Within recent years the manufacture of cod liver oil has undergone tremendous improvement. It is produced in many different countries — Norway, Iceland, Japan, England, Labrador and New Foundland.

The best cod liver oil is said to be obtained from geographical sections where there are many small bays in which many other fish are found. The cod follow these and devour them in great numbers, and in consequence are extremely well nourished.

The livers removed from selected cod fish are at once placed in sanitary containers, only the healthy livers are used. These are carefully washed and boiled and the cod liver oil is separated from the blubber.

The method used in the manufacture of cod liver oil at present differs greatly from that in vogue a few years ago. The oil has improved in taste and odor and is well tolerated by infants.

The American Medical Association approves only cod liver oil that will respond to a standard test. Cod liver oil of an inferior quality does not bear the stamp or seal of approval of the Council of Pharmacy of the American Medical Association. Cod liver oil that bears this seal is put up in brown bottles, and these prevent deterioration of the oil by the action of light.

Cod liver oil may be given to an infant as early as the third or fourth week after birth. Begin with a half teaspoon twice a day. By the end of six weeks, increase the amount of oil to one teaspoon twice a day. At the end of the third month, give one and one-half teaspoons twice a day and continue its use until the child is 2 years of age.

Do not permit the child to learn that you dislike the taste or smell of cod liver oil. If it is given regularly, the child will show no dislike for it and will take it as a matter of course.

U. S. PUTS CURB ON OCEAN HOPS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Adventurous airmen planning hazardous flights to foreign lands will have to pass strict government scrutiny in the future and may be denied permission if the undertaking seems too risky.

The aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce has served notice that it will exercise closer supervision over preparations for such flights by Americans than in the past.

Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, said the action would be taken under an amendment to the air commerce regulations which requires the owner or pilot to secure authorization from the department for foreign flight except on regularly-scheduled operations.

Young said the amendment was designed to discourage inexperienced pilots and inadequately equipped aircraft from attempting trans-oceanic flights. The department heretofore has kept a close watch on such flights but has not officially intervened in the preparations.

Arnold Borough Slashes Payroll

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Nov. 18.—Arnold Borough Council has pared its monthly payroll to $1,000, slashing $375 from salaries and wages of all borough employes, the result of limited finances and slow receipt of taxes.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Introducing a Doctor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When one is introducing a doctor to close friends, must one repeat "Doctor" before the introduction?

2—Would this also apply if one's husband were a doctor?

F.

1—Yes, for in this case the title of DOCTOR takes the place of MR.

2—If one gave the name. In family introductions often the name is omitted. For instance, "Mrs. Graham, this is my husband," or "Mrs. Graham, may I present my husband."

Gift to an Employer

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am the only employe in a small office, besides the manager. The manager is ill in a hospital. Would it be proper for me to pay him a visit?

2—Would it be well to have the florist deliver some flowers the day before I pay my visit?

THANK YOU.

1—Unless the manager sends for you to come to the hospital, so that he can keep in touch with the office business, I think that it would be best for you not to go to the hospital to pay him a visit.

2—It would be generous of you to send some flowers to the hospital, or some fruit, if you think that this is permitted in his diet. Or, better than either perhaps, in this case, a book or several books.

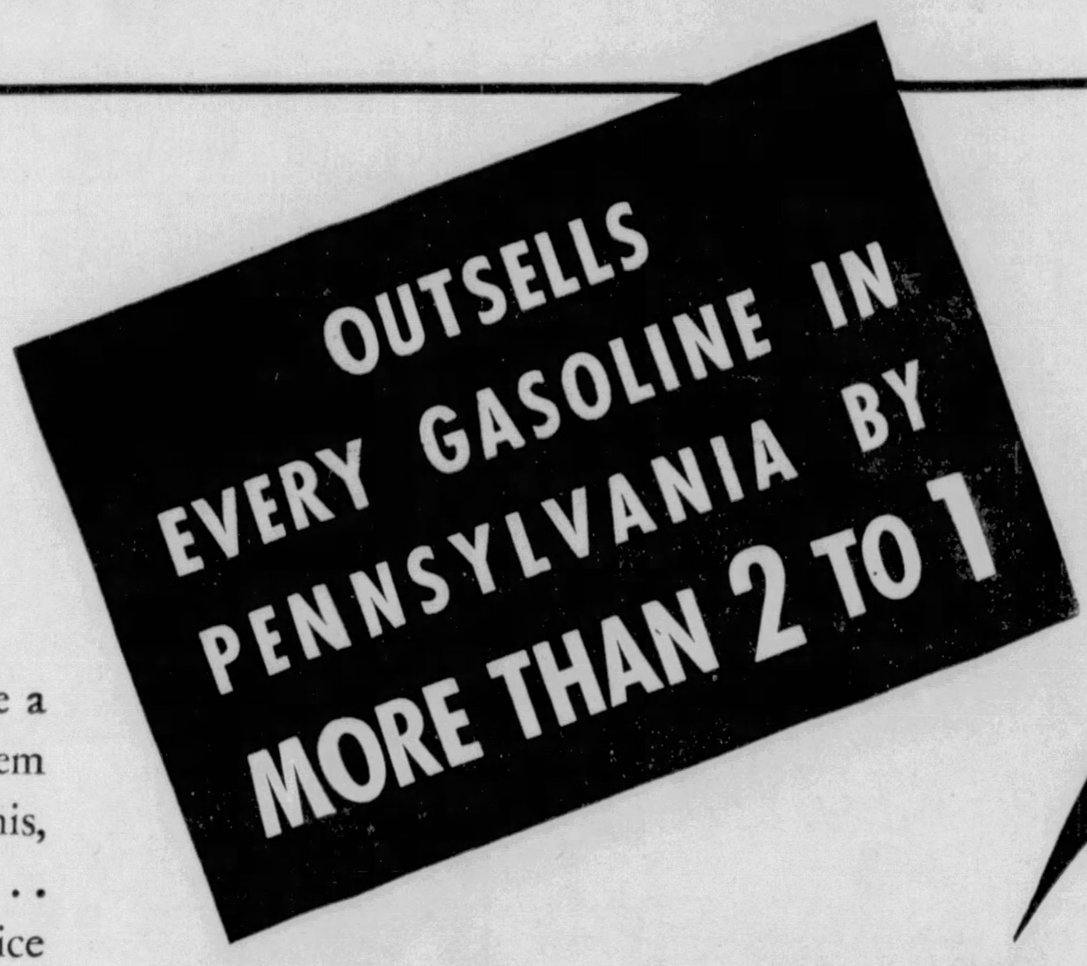
"IT'S A BETTER MOTOR FUEL"



There are two good ways to choose a motor fuel:

One is to take the advice of people who drive a lot . . . people who know fuels because they use them under all kinds of driving conditions. If you do this, you'll quickly come to ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH . . . because Pennsylvania motorists buy more than twice as much ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH as any other gasoline; overwhelming proof of the extra qualities they find in this great fuel.

Change to ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH for at least two weeks. See how quickly it flashes into action, even on the coldest mornings. Note how seldom you have to use the costly choke. Test it for pick-up at traffic-lights; for speed on the straightaway; for power on the hills.

You can take the word of Pennsylvania, or you can prove it for yourself: "ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is a better motor fuel."

ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH

STOCK MARKET DOWNTREND REVERSED

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The stock market took on a little healthier complexion today, but was still extremely sluggish.

The decline of the past two sessions was checked, and prices stiffened moderately, several issues getting up a point or two, but trading was in small volume, with floor traders apparently contributing much of the activity.

Short covering appeared to provide much of the upward impetus, but the weekly mercantile reviews were moderately optimistic. Dun's reported that retail trade had expanded further, helped by cold weather, and that industrials operations were most of the autumn improvement. Bradstreet's stressed the post-election stiffening of commodity prices as particularly hopeful.

Nevertheless, brokerage opinion remained decidedly mixed. The weekly report of freight car loadings, to appear tomorrow, was expected to show a further seasonal decline, following the usual trend in November and December.

Hesitancy in the securities markets was described as reflecting in part the uncertain status of the war debt payments, due December 15, together with possibly reactions upon sterling exchange. Furthermore, the approach of the December session of the old Congress, with the possibility that further taxes may be sought to bring the federal budget into actual balance, was also regarded as an influence toward uncertainty.

PUBLIX MOVES FOR ECONOMY

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Four new subsidiaries will be formed by the Paramount Publix Corporation in connection with its program for reorganizing departmental activities for greater efficiency and economy, it was announced today.

The plan, said President Adolph Zukor, will affect some theater chains under the company's control and is a part of the decentralization policy which Paramount Publix is working out following the recent changes in management. The new subsidiaries will be qualified in certain states, and the parent company will withdraw.

E. F. Richards, formerly one of the principal owners of the Saenger Theater Circuit in the South, has reacquired an interest in the circuit and will immediately assume its general management, Zukor said.

New York, Nov. 18. — (AP.) — Loew's, Inc., large motion picture corporation, announced today that auditors had been called in to assist the firm's own accountants in working out a new and more drastic scale of film amortization, asserting that the audit had not been ordered at the request of the company's bankers.

GRAINS TURN UPWARD

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Responsive to Liverpool quotations higher than expected, grain prices here showed an early upturn today. Reportts from Liverpool said Argentine crop estimates were being reduced. Opening unchanged to ⅜ advance, Chicago wheat futures held near afterward to the initial limits. Corn also started unchanged to ⅜ higher and continued firm.

Corn and oats fluctuated in unison with wheat. Little was doing in provisions, and prices were nominally unaltered despite hog market setbacks.

WHEAT—
July....	49⅝	49⅞	48⅝	48⅝	49¼

Forbes

Significance of Lamont's View Turn Has Come.

By B. C. FORBES

ACTUALLY, the most influential banker in America is Thomas W. Lamont, J. P. Morgan's right-hand partner. Mr. Morgan shuns the strenuous life. He prefers to spend much of his time in England. He leaves the brunt of the hard work to others. Mr. Lamont shoulders most of the responsibility of actively directing the far-flung operations of the house of Morgan.

Mr. Forbes

Incidentally, Lamont owes his rise neither to birth nor affluence. His father was an impecunious preacher and educator. Tommy's weekly allowance, after he got on a bit, was five cents. One of his relatives told me that Tommy used to hold on grimly to the nickel because, Tommy found, "once you break it, it goes very quickly."

Lamont was, first, a reporter and then a businessman before he gravitated to banking. When Henry P. Davison, the ablest of all Morgan partners, died, in 1922, Lamont, who had already made his mark, began to be consulted more and more often by other partners. And Lamont's stature has grown ever since.

Why this recital?

Because it emphasizes the significance of a pronouncement Lamont now makes to the effect that the turn has come. Seeing that he is a powerful factor on some of the most important corporation directorates in America, and seeing that the Morgan firm's influence is unprecedentedly far-reaching, Lamont's cheerful view of the outlook is not likely to be without effect when dividend and other problems come up for decision during the coming months. Says Lamont:

"The panic of fear has subsided. Normal processes get under way. Gradually we see again the genius of the American people come to the fore. Efforts, systematic and gigantic, have been started and are now beginning to work.

"Almost the whole community seems banded together, determined, first of all, each man to help his fellow, determined that no one shall perish from lack of food or shelter. Manifestly, and with renewed confidence on all sides, men are exerting their best efforts towards construction.

"The deflation of commodities seems almost at an end. Hard work begins to fill up the gaps. The fingers of a new dawn stretch their tips above the horizon. There are signs of betterment decidedly more tangible than hope."

APROPOS OF the swamping of the American market for Christmas and other miniature electric bulbs by the Japanese, one reader wrote that this served the principal American manufacturers right, because they had furnished Japan with their patented machinery for making these lamps, to be sold in competition with the American product. President Gerard Swope, of General Electric, asked for an explanation, tells me:

"We are largely interested in a lamp company in Japan, which is licensed under our patents. We have sold machines to them, but this company in Japan and its licensees are under contract not to ship lamps into the United States.

"The lamps coming into the United States are not made by any licensee or any company which uses our methods or machinery, but are made by infringers of our patents. It is largely production in the home, without much, if any machinery, and the low prices are due not only to the very low price of labor, but also to the very low exchange rate of the Japanese yen, now almost 60 per cent below normal."

Japan's is not the only foreign currency which has depreciated, thus giving foreigners and exporters an advantage in the American market as well as in world markets. So far has currency depreciation gone in a number of countries that their goods can be sold here below even the cost of materials here, to say nothing of the tremendous difference in the wages paid here.

This condition should prod Congress into devising machinery for injecting flexibility into our tariff schedules. This flexibility should not be operated by politicians, but entrusted to a non-partisan body commanding public confidence.

The objective must not be, of course, to shut out all foreign products, for obviously we cannot continue to sell freely to other nations if we refuse to buy from them. Especially would it be absurd to insist upon repayment of billions of war debts and, at the same time, render it impossible for our debtors to make payment in the only form possible, namely, mainly in goods.

We need more, not less, foreign trade—but trade conducted on an equitable basis.

Bank Clearings Higher for Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Marked by a substantial rise in New York City, bank clearings last week increased 19.2 per cent above the figures of the preceding week Bradstreet's reported today. The clearances were $4,282,934,000, compared with $3,591,971,000.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Operations in the bond market continued to follow a narrow range today, with little or no activity apparent except in a few specialties. The foreign section was mixed and generally dull. United States government bonds were quiet and steady.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Joyce Appeals to Mother When Louisa Forbids Party Attendance

CHAPTER XXVI.

At five that morning, when light lay across the dew on the grass and birds were waking, Elizabeth rose, cramped, her face sodden with tears.

"Fred," she wrote, sitting there at her little desk, "Fred, I can't marry you. I can't. Forgive me—and please forget. Don't try and see me. I shall not see you if you come—not ever."

The warmth at her heart was gone, the singing was stilled. She felt a chill there, as if death itself.

Waiting for Louisa's inevitable question was not hard. Nothing was hard any more, the white night had been edured, the letter written. When the question did come, several days later, it was pronounced with an utter casualness.

"Have you reached a decision?"

"We—will not be married—"

"Ah? You have told him?" pursued Mrs. Shelddon with deliberate malice, a rhetorical question merely. She knew even as she wrenched the knife in the young woman's breast how it afflicted her own. She waited for an answer, not needing one. It came on the breath of a whisper.

"No—"

LETTERS UNOPENED

Although Mrs. Sheldon had expected the negative, although she had considered nothing else possible, she was conscious of triumph. It was so frankly an admission of impotence, another link in the chain, another fetter.

Van Alstyne did not take his dismissal easily. Day after day his car turned in at the Sheldon drive, he walked up the shallow steps, put a belligerent finger on the bell, met, eventually, the professionally regretful eyes of the servant. Mrs. Mrs. Sheldon is not at home—Mrs. Sheldon is not at home.

He asked himself, walking the wild, autumnal beaches—why? In name of God and justice, in the name of love—why? Senseless and cruel and wrong. He had had her in his arms, he had felt the flame kindle within her, a superb thing, a thing of whitest wonder.

She loved him, had told him so, had kissed him. Now she would not see him again. Not ever.

"New York's a small place," he informed himself, savagely. "Well, I'll not trouble her." He flung himself angrily on a boat and went abroad. He'd money and an aching leisure—the Van Alstyne men hadn't worked for generations, they'd cut coupons instead.

Europe was not exactly a playground, he discovered. But it offered a red and bitter Lethe. All right, let's get killed then! He equipped an ambulance and went along with it. It was the spring of 1917. And for the next year or so Van Alstyne was too occupied to wonder why—and again—why? Mud and noise, ache and fatigue and smells—the wondering part of his mind slept heaviiy.

He was twice wounded. Elizabeth Sheldon read the reports, her eyes veiled in the white, moving face that was hers of late, the face that the pressure of years was not hardening, but was softening pitifully into a little, plastic mask of futility and fear. Yet she had strength of a sort, strength to endure the terrible nights and the recurrent memories. Lennox, that boy lover who had died twice to her, once agonizingly, and again, tenderly, had come back to a curious life. It was not he whom she now loved, it was Van Alstyne, but she remembered.

STAYS IN EUROPE

After the armistice Van Alstyne remained in Europe. He bought a house in England, he wintered in the south of France. He told himself, with an ironic humor, that the spiritual atmosphere of old countries was light and dry, it mummified a man's heart. There were pretty women for playmates, wherever he went; there was sunshine, and a sort of amazed laughter with a deep shudder behind it. There was plenty to do, one could even help, a very little. He'd given over wondering. He'd seen too much sudden death. When you have become used to that, nothing stirs your sense of marvel very much.

He looked at Elizabeth across the years. "She couldn't have loved me after all," he said, and let it go at that. Now and again he thought, oddly enough, of Joyce. She was a dear youngster, leggy, as he remembered her, eager, and in some ways very like her father. What would happen to Lennox's daughter in that gloomy, smothering house?

What was happening to her was that she was growing up. She was reaching out. Alert, immensely amused, receptive, she was holding out her hands to life, closing her eyes, waiting for a present, a sweetmeat. "Open your mouth and shut your eyes and I'll give you something to make you wise."

Joyce was attending a sedate, excellent day school in town. She made friends there, she brought them home with her, she was confident of their welcome.

Mrs. Sheldon permitted this invasion of her house with a bleak smile. Girls were otherwise in her time, but changes must be endured. These children were rowdy, they wore shorter skirts than was decent; some of them dipped into the rouge pot, and presented faces unashamed of paint, and by contrast, all the more dewy and childish for it; these children sang to unmusical instruments, they chattered and laughed, in and out the great rooms. They spoke a language that was harsh and alien to her affronted ears.

Yet she allowed them to come, as her guests. Better, far better, that they should be here; then she knew where Joyce was.

ALWAYS CHAPERONED

Chaperonage was becoming very lax, but not in her household. When Joyce went to dances some one went with her, occasionally Elizabeth, more often the mother of another girl who was being brought up in the same fashion; now and then Louisa herself, very bored. When boys came to call, as they began to do when Joyce was 16, Louisa remained within earshot and vision. The young men were tremulous with amazement. They invented names for the elder Mrs. Sheldon: "Old Four Eyes" and "The Witch of Washington Square." Some of them ceased to come after a time; they regretted Joyce but announced to their fellows that the old girl made 'em nervy. Others continued to ring the echo-awakening bell defiantly. Chaperone or no chaperone Joyce Sheldon was a peach. "Gosh," they said to themselves and sometimes to their friends, "a peach!"

As inevitably as in childhood Joyce took all her problems to her grandmother. I need a new frock . . .or a pair of slippers. . . . or a fur coat. Her little hurts, her rivalries, her sudden friendships, her affections. She was realizing that grandmother did not understand very well, not always, that she was sometimes spiritually hard of hearing, but to whom else could she go?

Not to her mother. Her mother was a gentle automaton. The butterfly which had emerged from the chrysalis, which had lived out a brief summer, had returned again to the cocoon. Joyce had almost forgotten that bewildering, ephemeral life.

APPEALS TO MOTHER

"Why can't I go to the Harris' house party?"

"Grandmother says not."

"Well, then—"

"But I want to go. Every one'll be there. Oh, mother, I'm dying to go."

"Why doesn't she—?"

"Oh, how do I know? Says she doesn't like them—says they're new rich—says they're not well brought up. As if that mattered! Jim fought in the war and was decorated, all the girls are mad over him. And Maisie's sweet—and I like her mother. Oh, please, you ask her for me."

"I'm afraid I haven't much influence," Elizabeth admitted, quietly. But a slowly stultifying resentment rose and exhibited an enfeebled life. Why couldn't she say, "Of course you may go, dear?"

The resentment drove her to Louisa.

Mrs. Sheldon was at her desk, going over the housekeeping accounts. She said something abstracted about the increased cost of living and the extravagance in the kitchen. Then she laid down her pen and asked with a flicker of unpleasant amusement, "She has been appealing to you?"

"Yes, after a fashion. Why not let her go? Maisie Harris seems a rather nice child, and it would be a pleasant Easter holiday."

"I do not approve of Maisie, nor of her background. Maisie is unendurably slangy, undisciplined. The mother is fast; there are stories about the older brother. I cannot imagine what you are thinking, Elizabeth, to encourage Joyce to plot with you behind my back."

"But—"

Why can't I say it—why can't I say—I'm her mother—I say she shall go—I'm her mother, I tell you!

"And if I give her—mine?"

The little, impalpable glove lay between them. Mrs. Sheldon picked it up disdainfully, with, as it were, the tips of her fingers.

"Then I, of course, have nothing to say. There must be no conflict of discipline. By all means, give your consent—if you think you're a fit person to judge."

The waters were closing around Elizabeth's head; they were very salt and bitter. She struggled free a moment and asked, "Fit? My own child!"

"Ah, yes—exactly."

Synopsis

Mrs. Louisa Sheldon has lorded it over her daughter-in-law, Elizabeth, even before the death of the latter's husband, Lennox. Pneumonia killed Lennox a few days after he was married. Louisa and Elizabeth went abroad, where a girl, Joyce, was born. They return to New York City. Ten years pass. Elizabeth never thought of remarriage until induced to attend social affairs with Fred Van Alstyne, college chum of her deceased husband. Fred proposes marriage, she accepts, and tells Mrs. Sheldon. The latter startles Elizabeth by asking her if she intends "telling" Fred all details of her romance with Lennox.

Now Go On

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Betty Haslett, "official junior reporter" of the Rowland Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club sends in the following news items about the members.

There is one member of the Junior Komic Club in room 116 of the Wilkinsburg Junior High School who has won the plaudits of all his classmates and all the members of the Rowland Chapter. He is Billy McMinn, star pupil of the room, having made "A's" since entering the Junior High.

Sally Griffin is the proud owner of a little white angora kitten with the cutest pink eyes. Nearly all the members would like a kitten just like it.

There's an old-time superstition that a rabbit's foot brings good luck to the owner. Ruth Taggart hasn't any rabbit's foot but she has 21 rabbit tails and wants to know if any member can beat that number.

Betty McGarvey's favorite pets are dogs. If her parents would allow her she would bring home and keep every stray dog she ever saw.

Strange, but true. Loisbelle Pryor likes Latin. Come over and do mine some time, Lois, please.

Ann Helfgott, now of the Sheridan Square, reports that Manager J. O. Hooley made a great hit with the members and before the meeting was over all the members were calling him "Uncle Jack."

Warren Talenfeld enjoys playing football. He told me that he is hoping to play on Pitt's team when he is older. Did you ever see Warren imitate Joe Penner? I believe he's going to be a second Ward Wilson.

Bugs Baer

Over the Bounding Foam

Col. Jake Ruppert owns both the Yanks and a brewery. A combination that keeps him busy all year round in the summer.

We had some theories about old-time beer. But the colonel certainly upsets our stein. He dishes up some facts from his vat estate on the Hudson.

First of all, he says there never was such a thing as eight per cent beer. The ignorant but enthusiastic consumer figured content while the scientific and erudite barkeep measured precipitate gravity, malt condensation and wort fermentation. Which shows that things are going from vat to wort.

The colonel includes all the technical ingredients in his maltematics. But modestly leaves out any reference to the foam. And if we remember correctly old-time beer was nothing but wind tossed spindrift.

And that's the truth. An economical bartender could put on the air pressure and fill your glasses with some very fine eating bubbles.

The more foam, the less fluid. And a smart taproom mechanic could sure lay on the froth.

When you poked your nose down in that woolly layer of lather you had to fly blind like an aviator in a cloud.

You came up with a mustache and a small vandyke made of essence of foam. That's why soda water straws were invented. So a man could get some beer which was always at the bottom of the glass like a Japanese goldfish.

We might as well be honest about it. If beer comes back we will have to take diving lessons to get any. There never was more than one inch of brew hidden under four inches of suds.

Do you remember the ivory paper knife that the barkeep used to flatten off the top of the glass? That removed the white collar from the glass. But there still was a cuff inside the stein.

So, the boys who are screaming for old-time beer and Eighteenth Amendment repeal had better howl for another amendment against the foam.

Q. & A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Mme. Bella—

While riding on the bus the other day you sat down beside me, introduced yourself and coaxed me to hold hands. It was fun, but after you got off the bus I noticed that my $100 diamond ring was missing. My ring is gone, gone, GONE.

J. BILLINGSLEY TREMONT.

Ans.—I understood you to say I could have the ring, but I do not remember taking it. Rather than have any trouble I will give you a ring some day. Ha, Ha, Ha, oh dear, oh dear, Ha, Ha, Ha, Ho, Ho.

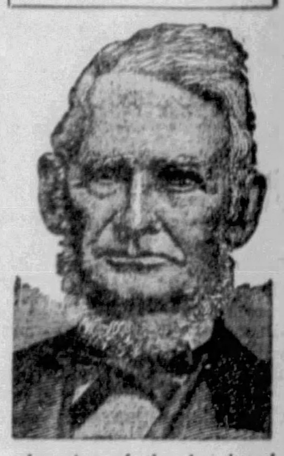
BETTER TIMES ARE COMING



In view of the broad and frequently vulgar expression of dissatisfaction with the new rules for contract bridge, this department has turned over the entire matter to a man who need answer to no one unless spoken to. In other words, we have appointed Mister Z. Glanville Umpdike as a committee of 80 winters to look over the situation and tell us what he thinks.

In his own words, Mr. Umpdike has outlined his dream of a contented bridge world as follows—

1. Furthermore, whereas, and, it shall be deemed an infraction of the rules for a system taken out of play for a substitute system to be returned to play during the quarter.

2. It shall be deemed unnecessary roughness to use ash trays or half-empty highball glasses on the offensive. Except, as provided below, against:

(a) West, who quotes Culbertson.

(b) North, who is dummy and taps on the table while whistling "Onward Christian Soldiers."

(c) East, who pretends to fall asleep as a mild satire on the amount of time you take to plan the next play.

3. It shall be deemed entirely proper, at frequent intervals, to call time-out to run down to the corner for two more bottles of ginger ale.

Power Trust Tricks

Senator-elect Brown's Knowledge of Them Will Be Helpful in Public Utility Legislation.

Fred H. Brown, the newly-elected successor to United States Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, was for seven years a member of the Public Service Commission of New Hampshire. He will carry to the Senate none of that skepticism as to the existence and reality of a power trust, which finds expression now and then among the reactionary Republican members of that body.

Speaking of his long experience on the Public Service Commission of his state, Senator-elect Brown says:

"In that time I have learned a lot of POWER TRUST TRICKS. Maybe there was a day when the American public, soaked with exorbitant rate schedules, could afford to pay interest on holding company investments watered to the tune of hundreds of millions of dollars. They cannot afford it now."

Senator-elect Brown's point of view will be helpful in the legislation which lies before the recently-elected Congress, on the subject of utility regulation and holding company control. His avowed purpose to "get some facts before the folks of America" will not be cheering news to the utility companies which have long boasted that "we regulate regulation."

"The Insulls and Kreugers have given the notion that all you need for success is a lot of nerve and a big corporation," says Mr. Brown, and he adds: "I think this country's big power combines have had a lot to do with popularizing SHADY METHODS in ORGANIZATION and STOCK MANIPULATION."

Mr. Brown's arrival in the United States Senate will be viewed by the great body of Americans as timely in the extreme. His views on the great issue of curbing parasite holding companies and REALLY regulating utility corporations, coupled with his scorn for the shady corporate practices, which have so long afflicted the people, augur a useful public career.

The Vote Fraud Inquiry

The County Commissioners Are Carrying Out Their Pledge to Work for Clean Elections.

One of the campaign promises of County Commissioners C. C. McGovern and C. M. Barr was to strive to eliminate cheating from Allegheny County elections.

It was in fulfillment of that pledge that the Commissioners arranged to hold a public hearing, at which citizens were invited to present any evidence they might have that fraud was committed in the election of November 8.

This is the first time, according to McGovern, that the Board of Commissioners ever took such action. It is a good precedent. If a non-partisan inquiry should be conducted after every election, with the Commissioners as zealous as the present Commissioners are to expose and punish crookedness, it would not be long before clean elections could be assured.

Narcotic Indictments

The Number of the Cases Is Disturbing, But It Is Reassuring That They Are Being Prosecuted.

Of the 232 persons indicted in the United States District Court this week not a few are charged with violations of the narcotic laws.

The extent of the forbidden traffic in opium, as revealed by the indictments, is disturbing. But it is reassuring that so many persons alleged to have participated in this traffic have been caught and are being prosecuted.

Compliments are due the local officials engaged in the enforcement of the Harrison narcotic act on the vigor of their campaign.

For those who violate the law for no other reason than to satisfy their own craving for opium some sort of sympathy may be felt. But there can be no excuse for the heartless scoundrel who, for mercenary motives, engage in the dope business and thereby contribute to the ruin of the poor wretches who have become addicted to its use.

The Bicentennial Finale

The Meeting With Which the Washington Observance Is to End Should Be a Red Letter Occasion.

With respect to the Washington Bicentennial celebration, too, the depression came at a very inconvenient time. It has been necessary, in the interest of economy, to omit the pageants and other costly forms of celebration that were first planned.

However, the celebration has not been completely abandoned. The Chamber of Commerce and the George Washington Bicentennial Committee of Allegheny County announce that a luncheon meeting will be held on Friday, November 25, in termination of the observance. That is a singularly appropriate date, for it will be the 174th anniversary of the evacuation of Fort Duquesne by the French and the occupation of what is now Pittsburgh by Forbes, Washington and Bouquet.

There are to be a number of short addresses on historical subjects by competent persons and a program of music.

With proper attendance this meeting can and should be made a red letter occasion.

Mt. Lebanon's Library

The Citizens Deserve Much Credit for Putting 6,500 Books at the Disposal of the Public.

During the latter part of Andrew Carnegie's life if a town lacked and desired a public library the procedure was to ask him for one. There was a good chance that the request would be granted.

No multi-millionaire has seen fit to carry on this useful benefaction to the extent that Carnegie did. To be sure, we have numerous instances of single libraries donated by philanthropists, such as the one given to Sewickley by the late W. L. Clause in memory of his wife, and that given to Ambridge by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Sr., in memory of their son, the late Maj. Alexander Laughlin, Jr. But communities needing libraries nowadays must as a rule provide them by their own efforts or do without.

Mt. Lebanon Township has just established a public library by its own efforts—a library of 6,500 volumes. It was formally opened Tuesday night.

The citizens deserve a lot of credit for their progressiveness in recognizing a public library as a community need and for their enterprise and energy in establishing one.

Feast After Famine

(Copyright, 1932.)

His eyes are almost popping out
To greet the noble sight,
"Don't wake me up if I'm asleep,
But let me slumber long and deep,"
He croons in his delight.

For when the Treasury is bare,
With nothing but the empty air
To ease that inward ache,
A load of steaming revenue
Washed down by luscious amber brew
Is not so hard to take.

Marry-Go-Round

Get a Line on Your Man

It's not a man's occasional SINS that drive a woman to murder or divorce; it is his little daily habits!

* * *

Lots of bullets might be saved, to say nothing of ground glass and arsenic, if the average girl would only interview a man's mother or his valet or his ex-wife or the maid who cleans his apartment, and LEARN something about him, before she marries him. Thus, she would acquire a working-knowledge of all his little ways and peculiarities, which would save her many shocks.

* * *

* * *

She might learn what time he wanders in at night, how many alarms it takes to get him out of bed in the morning, how many feminine telephone calls he receives, and if the neighbors complain of the noise in his apartment after 11 p. m.

Just how much ventilation he insists on having at night, and whether he throws back the bedclothes, when he gets up, or leaves them in a lump on the floor.

* * *

* * *

Whether he is addicted to patent medicines or to morning exercises and what he does with his cigaret ashes and his old razor blades.

* * *

Whether he leaves his pajamas in the middle of the floor and the water in the bathtub, and where he throws the soiled bath towels.

* * *

* * *

Whether he is satisfied with safety-pins in place of buttons in his underwear, or is the meticulous kind who carefully hangs his cravats in a row and places boot-trees in his bed-slippers. (Oh, the psychology of that!)

If he is "fussy" about not having things moved around on cleaning day and forever suspicious of "missing" something.

* * *

* * *

* * *

If he regards the wastebasket as a receptacle—or just a target.

* * *

* * *

Not that any or all of these things would deter a woman from marrying the man she loves, but that a foreknowledge of them would give her a working basis on which to start the "Cure" or the "Reform," which every woman subconsciously thinks she is going to effect on the man she marries!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Thoughts while strolling: Charles Butterworth suggests an old cab horse in head-down remembrance. Cliff Smith, Claire Luce's husband, has the most precise middle half-part. No one comes so nearly resembling John Barrymore in the movies as Warren Williams.

One word description of Neysa McMein—languid. Sam H. Harris makes me think of those rubber faces we used to pinch into shapes. A baker's window of angel food cake. It's like biting into a cloud. Clara Walsh's midget Sealyham looks like a toy out of Saks' window.

George Bye, a Kansas City (Mo.) boy, who made good in the city, Broadway seems a waterless pond, filled with minnows gasping for air. Gene Buck, excited, has the mannerisms of Jimmy Walker. Who remembers when "skidoo" meant scram? Earl Carroll, losing one theater, now has two.

A jocund coffee pot lists: "Fried murphies 10 cents." And the flood of strong man medicine shows. But what became of the chestnut vendor? Or am I walking the wrong street? The bravely forlorn yacht stores. That dowager acts as though she might have had two Old Fashioneds. You know, girlish!

Jeanne Auber hasn't much voice, but I'd rather hear her than Chaliapin. The two well known "Deacs"—Aylesworth and Parker. Their fathers were deacons. Elmer Davis, graying, too. And Bide Dudley's, for heaven's sake, is snow white. Whatever became of my career?

Wonder if Elizabeth Arden speaks to Dorothy Gray. Myron Selznick, whose income is $20,000 a week, signing movie stars. Gus Edwards, the best-loved guy on Broadway. Frank Mason's Jap airing his dachshund. Upland dirt lanes from the Hudson. Remindful of bare feet with dust, or something, sifting through boyish toes.

* * *

To me, the most exciting moment in the theater is when some obscure person tilts his frailty in brief role and romps away with the show. This recently happened in a short-lived play starring engaging Dorothy Hall. The actor, Percy Kilbride, portrayed a simple rustic in a cross-roads garage. In three two-minute bits, he brought forth the terrific taranta-ra of the evening. He always entered enthusing about some personal experience with the ladies, as though a mighty Don Juan. For instance: "She didn't put anything over on me. I looked her in the eye, and told her flatly I would have nothing but the Business Man's Lunch."

* * *

The actor, to my notion—and not because he was born in a covered wagon on the outskirts of Plattsburg, Mo.—who can take an inconsequential bit and almost dominate a play, starring even Mrs. Fisk, is Sidney Toler. Lately, I observe he is a figure in the movies and, as an iceman, gardener, butler or what-not, he looms extravagantly. I wonder if such players could handle long roles as successfully. Or if they are like so many of us—just small-bit folk.

* * *

My envy of stage folk touches the irreducible minimum. A sole longing is to be master of a piano bit, designed and executed by Harry Rosenthal, actor and orchestra leader. He plays the professor in an old-time nickelodeon as the news reel unwinds. And from the million dollar fire in Minneapolis to the skiing in St. Moritz, with Oscar Klenikoski hurdling 40 barrels, it's the best sustained laugh I know.

* * *

A Fifth avenue department store not only has a "Home Bar" department, but a mustached gent with hair in Gay 90 roach presiding over an old-time saloon bar. He explains workings of diminutive bars and their care. A sud scraper of the old school, when beer was trundled by Percherons at dawn. He tells me, he presided at the Knickerbocker, Palmer House in Chicago and St. Francis in Frisco.

* * *

I dropped into the half-century-old, never-raided saloon, Karl Kitchen discovered near First avenue, the other evening. The neighborhood tosspots were there, leaning against the bar, playing pitch and spraying the bell-mouthed goboons. But a casual dilettante had shorn it of usual sawdusty charm. In plus fours and with a police dog on leash, he bore the unmistakable stamp of Sutton place. It all looked sissy.

* * *

No speakeasy scene with its all-steamy clientele comes within a mile of expressing the reality in a thin offering called "I Loved You Wednesday." And my hat is off to Harry Bergman, vaudeville veteran, who portrayed a barroom canary. Nor will the hiccupy lady who lurched to the bar, snatched a drink, and cried: "To hell with tonsils," know how nearly she came toppling me into the aisle.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Thank heaven, the country's safe at last!

The terrible days of bitter vacillation are over—the tortured nights of fear and remorse. And now we can sit down and draw a long, easy breath and begin to plan for the future. For the fateful vote is cast. The momentous decision has been made—

Which vote? What decision? Democratic? Republican?

Migdoonessno. Who cares about such a trivial issue as politics! This, fellow citizens, is something REALLY important; something that will probably change the course of our whole national life. And, maybe, even put a few dents in the stars—

What? You haven't heard? Then f'heavensakes lissen, and get current:

THEY'VE DECIDED ON THE NEW RULES FOR CONTRACT BRIDGE!

AND THEY'VE BEEN ANNOUNCED IN FRONT PAGE HEADLINES ON EVERY PAPER IN AMERICA TODAY.

"Doubled not vulnerable undertrick penalties are increased, in the main, by a new code of laws for contract, announced today and effective Tuesday.

"The penalty of 50 per trick for undoubled not vulnerable undertricks is retained, because the authorities thought that removal of the completely psychic possibility would deprive the game of much of its zest."

So now, perhaps, you'll stop fussing about such trifling problems as 12,000,000 unemployed—20,000,000 nearing starvation—and other lowbrow bleats and yowls

Yes, indeedy!

And doesn't it make you swell with pride to think that, at a time like this, we Americans can forget our childish quibblings and protect the "complete psychic possibilities," whatever they may be, of contract bridge?

Well, if it does, somebody ought to be getting out your commitment papers, dearie—and seeing that the walls are padded, nice and soft.

And now, bigolly, here's my chance to get this thing off my chest. And if you don't like it, that's your bad luck.

Time was when, if folks dropped in of an evening, you could sit around and talk. Or have a little music. Or get into a fight over politics. Or indulge in some other pleasing and stimulating human performance. But those days are gone forever. The minute the supper dishes are stacked, out come the little green tables.

Nor is that all. Usually the missis gets in at least three afternoon parties per week, as well. And the Big Boy sits in regular on the 8:15 smoker, or with the drug store gang. Everywhere you see it going on, every afternoon, every night. Hotel lobbies. Picnic parties. Up in Mabel's room. Down at the lodge.

Haven't they anything else to do? Yes, stranger, they have a million other things to do; a million other things that need doing, DARN BAD. Books to read. Clothes to make. Problems to discuss. Budgets to be balanced. Youngsters to be cared for. Hungry people to be fed. Sick people to be cheered. And a great, big, bone-head nation that needs a complete and immediate house cleaning.

Countless tremendously important things to do—and only a very few years of life to do them in.

Avoid them? Try and do it!

You WON'T play? Then you're a Public Enemy No. 1, and somebody oughtta do something about people like you.

All right. Let 'em rave. As for me, you can write this down in the little book for keeps:

I CAN'T PLAY BRIDGE. I WON'T PLAY BRIDGE. I'D AS SOON SPEND MY TIME MAKING SPIT-BALLS. SOONER, IN FACT. AND I'M PROUD OF IT.

And, what's more, I believe that people who can't find anything better to do nowadays than snigle and snarl over a pack of cards oughtta be gathered together in one round-up—and put out of the way painlessly.

Then maybe this nation would start growing up.

Isn't It So?

The principle the professional reformer seems to work on is that if it's fun it's sinful.

The Peers' Problem: Stalin's Wife

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

We have been so much concerned in recent months with American affairs that most of us have not kept pace with the happenings across the sea. An interesting proposal for the "reform" of the House of Lords in England has been made by a committee headed by the Marquess of Salisbury. It is frankly advanced on the ground that there is a possibility of a strong Socialist government coming into power, and that the peers should so strengthen their position in the public esteem that they can, without danger, kill any Socialist program that may be presented.

It is proposed to reduce the membership of the House of Lords from 759 to 320. This should not cause any mental anguish in the more than four hundred who would be deprived of seats, since only a small proportion of the peers attend to their parliamentary duties anyway.

More interesting is the plan for choosing 150 members from among the peers by the selection of the peers themselves. They will elect their representatives, just as the people elect theirs to the Commons.

Another 150 would be chosen by county councils from among the peers who seem qualified for the work of statesmanship.

The other twenty would be members ex-officio—such as the peers of the blood, the archbishops and some bishops.

But, it will be noted, there is no proposal that peers shall be elected by the people. The strictly hereditary principle is to be maintained. And the reason set forth by the committee is this:

* * *

The Peers Were Being Taunted

Reading this story of today, I recalled the efforts of Lord Roseberry, the most brilliant of the peers in two generations, to persuade his fellows in the peerage to reform themselves many years ago. In his biography, by the Earl of Crew, I find the story of that attempt.

It was at the time of the Lloyd George Budget in 1907, when, in anticipation of the defeat of the budget in the House of Lords after its easy passage in the Commons on the mandate of the people, the peers were being taunted and attacked in all the speeches. It was assumed, on threats made, that in the event the budget failed in the house of the peers, the Liberal government would go to the people for the power to take away from the upper chamber the right of veto. While opposed to the budget, and convinced, from his viewpoint, that it was socialistic, Roseberry did not vote against it and warned his fellow lords that their action would mean a tremendous attack upon their house. And so it turned out.

* * *

Roseberry Proposed A Plan of Reform

Many years before, a full generation, Roseberry had urged that the peers reform themselves as a protection against their ultimate destruction.

He even then had foreseen the situation that developed in 1907. He was sure there was plenty to reform in the House of Lords and was positive that unless the peers did the reforming, their enemies would, and that the result would be bad. But no one else among the peers had been alarmed.

Twenty years later, vindicated by events, Roseberry renewed his attempt. For some years the question of the position of the hereditary chamber in the government had been permitted to sleep by the Liberals. Asquith was not keen about it. But the hue and cry had been raised in the fight on the Lloyd George budget and it was evident that something would be done. The Liberals cared nothing about the composition of the House of Lords; they were interested solely in its relation to the House of Commons. But in any contest that might ensue Roseberry felt that the composition of the Lords would have an effect on the attitude of the people at the polls. Thus he proposed a plan of reform.

* * *

The Two Plans Are Similar

The Roseberry plan proposed that the House should be composed of three elements. One was to be composed of hereditary peers chosen by themselves. Another was to consist of lords sitting by virtue of office. Another was to consist of men chosen from the outside. It will be observed that this plan, like that now pending, contemplated a limitation of the membership. The peers were to elect peers—as in the Salisbury plan. But the biographer of Roseberry does not make clear just what was meant by the selection of members "chosen from outside." It would seem to mean the introduction of non-hereditary members.

But, on the whole, the two plans are similar enough to justify the conclusion that even now, though dead, the brilliant Roseberry is leading the lords in the battle against absolute extinction. Perhaps too late.

* * *

Exceptions to The Rule

There are, and always have been, members of the peerage who inherited their places, who have been highly competent for public service and qualified in statesmanship. But there are, and always have been, exceptions to the rule. The majority have had no intelligent interest in public matters that did not affect them personally. Most of the titled statesmen with whom we have been familiar for a hundred years have earned distinction as commoners and been raised to the peerage. Disraeli is an illustration. Many, long commoners, who died as peers, never distinguished themselves after entering the House of Lords. Asquith is an illustration; and Morley and Bryce. It remains to be seen whether Snowden will ever be able to soar in the more rarified atmosphere of the more gorgeous chamber. Somehow he seems a bit out of place—like a musketeer in a drawing room.

However, notwithstanding occasional geniuses in the house of peers, it has had power out of proportion to the ability of its membership.

* * *

The Weakness of The House of Lords

But what does it matter what the lords do about themselves if the strictly socialist government feared comes into power? If it should decide to wipe out the lords, what recourse would they have? To the people at the polls? But there would be no socialist government unless the people at the polls so willed it. The fatal weakness of the House of Lords lies in the hereditary principle on which it rests. Ability, capacity for public service, are not inherited.

Rank Counts In Russia

Perhaps respect and reverence for station is passing out, and this is not altogether an agreeable thought. The other day in Russia the wife of Stalin, one of the most powerful rulers of the earth, died. The nation, as a nation, momentarily took no more cognizance of her passing than if she were a peasant, illiterate and unknown.

The Moscow press did not indicate in their obituaries that she was the consort of the nation's ruler. But on the day of the funeral, Soviet Russia paid its tribute to position—even rank—with a military display, with Stalin walking behind the red hearse; and so the consort of a Soviet ruler was borne to a famous monastery where lies the first wife of Peter the Great. Yes, rank does count—in Russia.

Stuff of Poems

A gleam of beach, a flash of wings,

Poems must flow in beauty's ways,

Each fragile bit of loveliness

So choose with care the thing you do;
A poem may be made of you!

A smile, a look; ah, who can say
But that you were a poem today?

By S. H. Connolly

Do you know:

1. In what battle was the Stars and Stripes first carried?
2. How did Charlotte Corday murder Marat?
3. What stone is famous because it helped to unravel the mystery of Egyptian hieroglyphics?
4. Where did the duel between Hamilton and Burr take place?
5. Why is the month of April so called?
6. In what play of Shakespeare does Polonius appear?
7. What did the Greeks call the God of the sea?
8. Who used the pen name of Oliver Optic?
9. In what square in Paris were Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette guillotined?
10. Why was the home of Washington called Mount Vernon?

11. Light of the World	Titian.
12. The Night Watch	Da Vinci.
13. Mona Lisa	Hunt.
14. Sacred and Profane Love	Alma-Tadema.
15. Reading from Homer	Rembrandt.

1. Battle of Brandywine, 1777. 2. Stabbed him with a knife while he was in a bath. 3. Rosetta Stone. 4. Weehawken, July 11, 1804. 5. From the Latin, "aperio," (to open), referring to the opening of the leaves. 6. "Hamlet." 7. Poseidon. 8. William Taylor Adams, a writer of stories for boys. 9. Place de la Concorde. 10. Named after Admiral Vernon of the British navy. 11. Hunt. 12. Rembrandt. 13. Da Vinci. 14. Titian. 15. Alma-Tadema.
